ACCUSES CARLISLE IN ASPHALT DEAL

The Warner-Quinlan Company Charges Him with Conspiracy and Wastefulness.

DENIAL BY COMMISSIONER

Asserts That Complaint Against Him Is False in Every Allegation.

HENNESSY IS BROUGHT IN

Accused of Ordering Use of Barber Product—Full Inquiry Is Called For.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 27.—Gov. Glynn made public to-day the charges of the Warner-Quinlan Asphalt Company against John N. Carlisle, State Highway Commissioner, and his reply, which was a flat denial of everything. The Warner-Quinlan Company accused Mr. Carlisle of discrimination in favor of the Barber Asphalt Paving Company, averring that he had held secret meetings with the agents of that company in order to conspire against other companies; that he employed incompetent engineers, that he had wasted many thousands of dollars, and that he had thrown the Highway Department into a state of chaos.

Mr. Carlisle denied it all, and asserted that the accusations were inspired by manufacturers who had failed to foist on his department "just as good" asphalt for that required by the specifications.

The name of John A. Hennessy, formerly a special investigator in the Highway Department, appeared unexpectedly in the charges. He was accused of sending a telegram to highway contractors last July 5, notifying them that they must use Barber asphalt. This telegram was alleged to have followed a meeting in Cooperstown between Gov. Sulzer, Mr. Carlisle, George McGuire, an agent for the Barber company, and others. The message is said to have borne the name of Roy K. Fuller, but is alleged to have been sent by Mr. Hennessy. Mr. Fuller is secretary to the Highway Department, and he has denied ever having sent the message.

McGuire Conferences.

It was further alleged that two days after Mr. Hennessy was appointed, on June 16, 1913, he was called into conference with James K. McGuire of the Barber company, Mr. Carlisle, and others, and informed that only Barber asphalt would meet State highway specifications.

The charges assert that both Mr. Hennessy and Mr. Sulzer received money from the McGuires, "some of which, if not the entire amount thereof, was furnished by the Barber Asphalt Paving Company."

Members of Mr. Carlisle's board of advisory engineers, Harold Parker, George C. Diehl, and William De H. Washington, also were accused of participating in asphalt conferences with the McGuires and Carlisle. In this connection it was further charged that Mr. Washington had received his appointment at the hands of Gov. Sulzer on the recommendation of McGuire, and that Diehl and Parker were recommended by two contractors interested in State highway work. Mr. Parker was alleged to have been a stockholder in the Hassam Compressed Concrete Paving Company, to which the State had paid royalties for the use of a paving process.

These engineers received $50 a day and expenses for their services from last May until recently. Messrs. Parker and Diehl resigned last week.

Additional articles against Carlisle in the sixth general divisions of the charges allege:

When he barred the Warner-Quinlan product he knew it and passed the tests of his department with a higher percentage than any other asphalt.

Inquiries he made when he assumed office proved the asphalt was good, and for a time he permitted the use of it.

Favors a Rival.

Carlisle interpreted the specifications of his department so as to compel contractors to use the Barber product.

When protest was made against his action he admitted the specifications were unfair, said he was powerless to change them, but promised to make an effort to remedy conditions. Soon afterward, on Aug. 4, 18, and 19, he attempted to let repair work under the old specifications, and when a temporary injunction was granted prohibiting the letting of these contracts, he fought it in the Supreme Court.

In order to circumvent the injunction Carlisle entered into supplemental agreements with contractors, and on the authority of the Advisory Board, Fuller notified contractors that a higher price would be paid them for their work if they used Barber asphalt.

That after promising public hearings to determine asphalt specifications, Carlisle waited four months and then called a hearing on six days' notice. This hearing was unfair and finally resulted in the drawing of specifications which, if adopted, would perpetuate the monopoly of the Barber Company.

The selection of the consulting engineers is regarded as a farce and a disgrace by those familiar with the subject. These engineers have spent much money uselessly, a single instance of which was the going of Washington to Europe to a good roads congress at an expense of $3,000.

The accusation filled a book of fifteen printed pages. C. M. Warner and P. Quinlan, President and Vice President, respectively, of the Warner-Quinlan Asphalt Company, signed them.

Mr. Carlisle's Answer.

Mr. Carlisle's answer was a letter of about four thousand words. In part, it is as follows:

"The Warner-Quinlan Asphalt Com-

7 HURT IN AUTO COLLISION.

Col. C. L. F. Robinson and Members of His Family Injured at Hartford.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 27.—Just as a big limousine bearing Col. Charles L. F. Robinson, President of the Colt Firearms Company; his wife, two children, and his sister-in-law, breasted a slight incline at the intersection of Asylum Avenue and Woodland Street to-day, a runabout, owned and driven by Martin Van Buren Stevens, running south in Woodland Street, collided with the rear wheels of the limousine, which was upset and fell on one side, the roof and the sides, with their heavy plate glass panes, crashing down upon the five occupants.

At St. Francis Hospital, to which the injured were taken, Col. Robinson was reported as comfortable. Five stitches were taken in his scalp, which was cut by glass, and the muscles of his neck are strained. Mrs. Robinson is seriously hurt, with possible internal injuries, a fractured rib, and scalp wounds, and suffers extreme pain. Elizabeth, the 13-year-old daughter, suffers from a strained back and painful glass cuts about the head. The 10-year-old boy, Francis, sustained a deep laceration near the right ear and one of his facial arteries in the left cheek was severed.

Mrs. Robinson's sister, Mrs. R. J. Umbstaetter, of Boston, who came here yesterday on a visit, had a long scalp wound and other painful cuts about the head and body, and the ligaments of her arms were strained.

Mr. Stevens was only slightly injured and the Robinson chauffeur, Arthur T. Chapin, escaped with a wrenched back.

At the hospital it was said to-night that all the injured would probably recover, though Mrs. Robinson was suffering such severe pain that the physicians would make another thorough examination to-morrow.

SMOKER FALLS TO DEATH.

Long Tumbles from Window Trying to Recover Cigarette.

Richard Long, 41 years old, opened the window of his flat on the second floor of 422 West Twenty-sixth Street about 7:30 o'clock last evening to smoke a cigarette, while his wife, Mary, and the four children, the eldest 6 years old, were clearing the table and straightening up the kitchen.

A few minutes later juvenile Thanksgiving merrymakers, singing and begging pennies from passersby in the street below, scattered in fright, when with a loud scream Long tumbled out the window and fell in a heap on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Long heard her husband's cry and ran screaming to the open window. Her children also began to scream, and Patrolman King of the West Seventeenth Street Station, came to the house on the run. He found Long lapsing into unconsciousness. The injured man said that he had laid his cigarette on the window sill, and that when a puff of wind flung it below he had grabbed at it, lost his balance, and fallen.

An ambulance was summoned from the New York Hospital, and Dr. Shrock found Long in a critical condition. He was rushed to the institution, but died almost immediately after arriving there. He had suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Long had been employed for nineteen years by Runkel Brothers, chocolate manufacturers, West Thirtieth Street, near Tenth Avenue, and was foreman of one of their departments.

NATHAN STRAUS AIDS HERO.

Sends a $100 Check to Lineman Who Saved a Comrade's Life.

Special to The New York Times.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 27.—Harry Phipps, lineman, employed by the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Company, received to-day a check for $100 from Nathan Straus in recognition of his act in risking his life to save a fellow workman.

The rescue was effected Oct. 23, when Charles Mathney was rendered unconscious and hung helpless on a high pole. Phipps, although knocked from the pole when he came in contact with Mathney's body, returned and released him from the wires. Then he brought him back to life by means of artificial respiration. After seeing his companion started to a hospital, Phipps slipped away in the crowd.

When the check was delivered to him Phipps wrote the following:

Mr. Straus: The editor of The Star has given me the check for $100 that you sent him for me and also the letter. I surely do thank you for the same, being the only support of my family. I surely do thank you from the bottom of my heart. I had forgotten the incident until the editor told me. I intend to have the letter framed and keep it as long as I live.

Phipps supports his invalid father and his sister. He said he would use the money to make a payment on a home he is buying.

15 RACES IN HER FAMILY.

Chicago Woman to Adopt Babies Representing Fifteen Peoples.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Mrs. L. Brackett Bishop, wife of a wealthy business man, announced to-day her intention to adopt fifteen children, each to represent one of the fifteen most characteristic racial types. Her representatives are visiting local orphan asylums in search of the nucleus of her future family. Mrs. Bishop also has friends touring Europe to find babies representing such races as are not represented in Chicago.

The family will include a negro baby, an Indian, an Arab, a Japanese, a Malay, a German, an Irish, a Chinese, a Scandinavian, an American, and babes representing several of the South American countries.

The plan, Mrs. Bishop said, had been under consideration since the death of her two daughters, twenty-five years ago.

"We will move from the hotel where we are now living to a comfortable house in the outskirts of the city as soon as the family is started," said Mrs. Bishop, "and we intend to bring the children up as nearly as possible as the American family of moderate means."

ZELAYA'S ARREST BRINGS A PROTEST

Counsel Says Politics Inspired His Conviction of Murders He Did Not Know About.

RELY ON EZETA DECISION

President Cleveland Refused to Return Political Refugees to Salvador Who Were Charged with Murder.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—A protest against the arrest of José Santos Zelaya, ex-President of Nicaragua, who is wanted by those in charge of the Government of that country now for sentence after his conviction of murder, was filed at the State Department to-day. The protest was prepared by Corry Montague Stadden, a lawyer of this city, who was counselor of the Nicaraguan Legation in Washington from 1901 to 1910, while Zelaya was President.

Mr. Stadden protested against the arrest of Zelaya on cabled information. He asserted, also, that the alleged offense and the demand for his client's extradition were based on political motives, and he pointed out that the Fourth Article of the Nicaraguan Extradition Treaty with the United States provided specifically that its provisions "shall not be applicable to persons guilty of any political crime or offense or of one connected with such a crime or offense."

Mr. Stadden held two conferences with Joseph W. Folk, the new solicitor for the State Department. Zelaya's return to Nicaragua is sought on the ground that he is responsible personally for the deaths of Domingo Toribio and Sixto Pineda at Masaya, in Nicaragua, on April 21, 1001, through abuse of authority.

Gen. Chamorro, the Nicaraguan Minister, told the State Department that the Nicaraguan Legislature some time ago referred these cases against Zelaya to the Supreme Court of Nicaragua for trial and that the court indicted the defendant and convicted him. Under the Nicaraguan code a man may be tried and convicted in his absence. At the Nicaraguan Legation it was said to-night that the papers upon which the extradition of Zelaya was sought were on the way to Washington from Managua and would not arrive for two weeks.

The arrest of Zelaya brings to light a clause in the extradition treaty between the United States and Nicaragua, ratified in 1905, under which it is agreed that a fugitive may be "provisionally" arrested and held for sixty days in either country on cabled information that a warrant has been issued for the fugitive for a crime that is extraditable. Mexico is the only other country with which we have such an arrangement. In the Mexican treaty the period for which a criminal may be held is fixed at forty days instead of sixty.

The usual procedure is for the Consul or Minister representing the country desiring the extradition of a fugitive criminal to appear before a court or a Commissioner and ask for a warrant for the arrest and detention of the accused person. When application is thus made the evidence against the accused must be presented.

At the Nicaraguan Legation the assertion that the arrest of Zelaya was due to politics was denied, and it was pointed out that the treaty under which it was possible to arrest Zelaya on a cabled request was negotiated while Zelaya was President of Nicaragua in 1905. Luis F. Corea, one of Zelaya's counsel in New York, then Nicaraguan Minister in Washington, negotiated the treaty.

Mr. Stadden, in his conferences to-day with Solicitor Folk, said that, while the warrant on which Zelaya was arrested charged that Toribio and Pineda were killed the same day at the same place, the facts would show that the murders occurred at different times and places. Mr. Stadden said that Zelaya had no knowledge of either death. He said that Sixto Pineda was shot by the then Lieutenant Governor of the province of which Masaya is the capital for an attempt on the life of the Provincial Governor, and that Domingo Toribio was shot by the Nicaraguan police at Managua while committing a robbery. Mr. Stadden said that the circumstances of both deaths were matters of public record in Nicaragua, and that it would be shown that Gen. Zelaya had no share in them.

A case similar to that of Zelaya, upon which Zelaya and his counsel will rely as a precedent against his extradition, was that of Gen. Antonio Ezeta of Salvador, whose extradition was sought in the Administration of President Cleveland in 1894. Ezeta was Vice President of the Government which was overthrown by Gen. Rafaela Gutierres in 1894. Some of its military and civil officers, including Gen. Ezeta, who were pursued by insurgents, sought refuge on the United States gunboat Bennington, then at La Libertad. There were seventeen refugees in the party, and they were taken to San Francisco.

Their extradition was demanded on charges of murder, robbery, and arson. President Cleveland directed that such of the refugees as had not quit the Bennington should be arrested upon their arrival at San Francisco. This was done, and Judge Morrow of the Federal court at San Francisco ruled that the charges of robbery and murder were found to relate to offenses of a political character, which were excluded under the terms of the treaty. He discharged all of the accused except one, Juan Clenfuegos, who was held for an attempt to murder. But President Cleveland directed his release, holding that an attempt to murder was not one of the crimes charged against him, and upon which his surrender had been demanded.

ZELAYA SENT TO THE TOMBS.

His Counsel Expected to Apply for a Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Gen. José Santos Zelaya, the deposed President of Nicaragua, who was arrested on Wednesday night in the home of his friend, Washington S. Valentine, at 645 West End Avenue, where he was asleep in bed, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields in the Federal Building yesterday charged with "murder and other crimes." Bail was refused, and he was locked up in

BOMB WRECKS SHOP, ALARM ON HEIGHTS

Shoemaker and Wife Hurled from Bed by Its Force—Inspector Faurot Hurt.

Washington Heights had its first bomb explosion last night attributed to Black Handers. The explosion, which occurred at 11:50 o'clock, awoke the neighborhood of Amsterdam Avenue and 148th Street. The residents poured out into the streets to seek an explanation.

The noise of the explosion came from the little shoe store and repair establishment of Joseph Forno, an Italian of good standing. Forno's store is on the ground floor of 1,783 Amsterdam Avenue, a hundred feet or so from 148th Street. There is a little areaway leading to his doorstep and there was a big plate-glass window in his store—a convenient setting for a bomb explosion.

Policeman Henry McGrath was on fixed post at 148th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, almost directly in front of Forno's store, when the explosion occurred. Its force threw him from his feet. All through the neighborhood he heard glass breaking upon the pavement. A squad of policemen from the police station at Amsterdam Avenue and 152d Street came on a run.

Among those who came to the scene was Police Inspector Joseph A. Faurot. Inspector Faurot lives at 521 West 140th Street. He did not have to be told that the Black Handers were at work. He assumed charge of the police and detectives who gathered around the wrecked shop of Forno.

Faurot took a few men into the rear of the store and there they found Forno and his wife, Angelina. They had been hurled from their beds by the explosion. Faurot learned from them of their prosperity, how they had started a little shoe shop fifteen years ago, how their business had grown, and how many of their Italian friends had expressed envy over their bank account.

"But we never got any letters," Forno insisted, and when pressed further along this line he shrugged his shoulders.

Inspector Faurot questioned Patrolman McGrath, and when he learned that the patrolman had seen no one in the neighborhood either before or after the explosion, he went on a tour of inspection in the cellar and rear court.

While going down the cellar steps he slipped and went sprawling the rest of the way. He fell into a mass of broken glass, and his left arm was so badly cut that a physician in the crowd had to take him to his office and sew up the wounds.

Capt. Day of the West 152d Street station then took command of the situation. Capt. Day and his men made an inspection of other houses in the neighborhood, and found that a hundred panes of glass had been shattered. In Joseph Heinrich's saloon at 1,789 Amsterdam Avenue the bartender told Capt. Day that seven men who had been lined up before the bar dropped to the floor when the bomb was exploded. Heinrich's big plate glass window was shattered. It was long after midnight before quiet was restored.

BOMB ROUTS 20 FAMILIES.

Attempt Made to Blow Up a New Rochelle Tenement.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 27.—The police of this city are making an investigation of an attempt made early this morning to blow up the Italian tenement house, 329 Lockwood Avenue, occupied by about twenty Italian families. The police say they have a clue which they think will result in an arrest.

Policeman John Sullivan was patroling his beat early this morning when he heard an explosion, and he hurried to the house. He found the families in a panic rushing from the building, all of them clad in their night clothes. He found the front of the lower part of the house badly damaged.

The authorities believe that dynamite was used. None of the Italians would admit to the police that he had received any Black Hand letters.

GEN. SCOTT IN LONE PARLEY

Goes Unescorted for Pow-Wow with Navajo Indian Chiefs.

FARMINGTON, N. M., Nov. 27.—An Indian runner arrived to-day with news of the movement of the Twelfth Cavalry, acting as escort for Gen. Hugh L. Scott, ordered to the Navajo Reservation to subdue an incipient uprising.

Gen. Scott to-day, accompanied only by an Indian interpreter, left Noel Trading Post, at the foot of Beautiful Mountain, the Indian stronghold, for a pow-wow with the Navajo chiefs. Gen. Scott left his cavalry and escort fifteen miles away, proceeding on horseback to the top of the mountain. The outcome of his conference will decide whether the Indians will surrender without a fight. Gen. Scott is not expected to rejoin the troops before to-morrow.

The overland trip of the troops from Gallup to Shiprock, 100 miles, was a tedious one, requiring six days. Heavy rains had made the roads almost impassable for the wagon train. The troops are now encamped at a strategic point within five hours' march of Beautiful Mountain. They have a mountain battery and three rapid-fire guns.

Should Chief Be Sho She, with whom Gen. Scott conferred to-day, spurn overtures of peace, then the troops will move against the Indians immediately. Many Indians are reported to have joined the band of recalcitrants on Beautiful Mountain.

TO ASK FOR VOTE ON CATHEDRAL DESIGNS

St. John the Divine Trustees to Seek Public's Verdict on New and Old Plans.

Differences of opinion have arisen among the trustees of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine over the new design for the Cathedral exterior. Some of the trustees favor going back to the old design, and so it has been decided to call in the judgment of the public. Duplicate designs are to be placed on exhibition in the new Synod Hall on the Cathedral grounds, and at the Architectural League building, Fifty-seventh Street, near Broadway.

It was said yesterday that about $250,000 had been obtained toward the $1,000,000 needed to complete the Cathedral nave, but that until the matter of the exterior design of the whole structure was decided work could not well proceed.

As soon as the critics have looked at the two designs, or, at least, as soon as they have examined the new Cram ones, they are invited to send their views to Bishop Greer, or to any of the trustees of the Cathedral. Among their number are the Rev. Drs. Grosvenor, Stires, Slattery and Robbins, and August Belmont, Henry Lewis Morris, George Mccullough Miller and Elbridge T. Gerry.

The original plan was the work of Heins & La Farge, and was selected after a sharp competition with four other designs. A feature of it was a great central tower, ending in a spire. At the western end were two towers. Other parts of the exterior were plain, and as many held, the whole was simple, dignified, impressive.

In 1911 C. Grant La Farge, the surviving architect of the firm, was supplanted by Ralph A. Cram of the firm of Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson. Mr. Cram was asked to make a new exterior, and to make such alterations as he thought wise in interior plans. So far as known the interior changes bring no differences of opinion in the trustees' ranks. The new Cram exterior presents two companion spires in place of the one central tower. There are other spires and towers to the number of seven, while the entire exterior is a mass of finials and miniature towers. Hardly a square foot of exterior space but is covered with some ornament.

Bishop Greer is a strong advocate of the new design, and said yesterday:

"It is inspirational, as the old was not."

Among those who prefer the old plan is the Rev. Dr. Henry Lubeck, and he said:

"The great tower of the old design was impressive. It is lost in the many spires and towers of the new."

A curious dilemma has arisen concerning the new $350,000 Synod Hall. It is to be made the centre of Episcopal affairs in this city and the house in Lafayette Street is to be given over to other church causes. But the dilemma relates to the ownership. It was given by the late Messrs. Morgan and Cutting for the use of the Episcopal General Conventions. The question comes up whether the Convention owns it. Is the deed to be in its name? Or does the Diocese of New York own it? Or, finally, do the Trustees of the Cathedral own it? There is no room to pay for its light and heat, and yet it is in constant use. Hardly a day since the Convention adjourned a month ago but meetings have been held there. The question of title arose at the last Cathedral Trustees' meeting, and it left it open for somebody else to determine.

LOST WEDDING GOWN FOUND

Negro Picked Up Miss Stattleman's Suit Case Containing It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Louis Jackson, a negro ragpicker, appeared in the Police Court to-day in connection with an investigation into the disappearance and ultimate recovery of a suitcase containing the gown which Miss Henrietta L. Stattleman of Wilmington, Del., intended to wear at the White House wedding on Tuesday. Jackson said he had picked up the suitcase in the street near the Union Station on Tuesday morning, and, after leaving it in a barroom for a while, had taken it to his home with the intention of holding it until it was advertised for.

After Jackson's explanation a charge of larceny against him was dismissed. The police notified Miss Stattleman that they had her suitcase and gown.

Miss Stattleman, who is a friend of Mrs. Jessie Wilson Sayre, arrived in Washington from Wilmington several hours before the wedding and took a taxicab for the White House. When she got there the suitcase was missing.

Whose gown Miss Stattleman wore at the wedding has not been made known.

BIRD LAW TO BE TESTED.

Carmody Tells Hornaday It Is Sure to Reach the Courts.

ALBANY, Nov. 27.—That the question of the constitutionality of the Federal migratory bird law is certain to be raised in the courts is pointed out in a letter sent by Attorney General Carmody to William T. Hornaday, Director of the New York Zoological Park. The letter is a reply to one written by Mr. Hornaday in which he inclosed abstracts of a communication received from Ernest Knaebel, a Deputy United States Attorney General, who said that Mr. Carmody's opinion could not prevent the enforcement of the law. In reply Mr. Carmody indicates how the constitutionality of the law probably will be raised, and adds:

"The question is bound to come up whenever an attempt is made to enforce the law, and then the question as to the validity of the statute will have to be determined by the courts."

HALDANE INDORSES MONROE DOCTRINE

Lord Chancellor Declares That We Are Not Guided by Selfishness in Enforcing It.

IS BRITAIN'S POLICY, TOO

World Looks to Us to Carry On Our Traditions Without Adding to Our Possessions.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—In a remarkable speech at the Thanksgiving Day banquet of the American Society in London to-night, Viscount Haldane, the Lord Chancellor, proposed the toast of the President of the United States.

The Lord Chancellor spoke of the high ideals of Mr. Wilson and the expression that he is giving to those ideals in his policies, and he went on to announce what may be regarded as the British Government's cordial attitude toward the Monroe Doctrine in its latest developments. Lord Haldane said:

"Before Mr. Woodrow Wilson became President he was a thinker and a moralist, and in studying his career what seems to one who looks at things detachedly is that he has not ceased to be a thinker and a moralist because he has become the holder of a great office and is a great statesman. These things do not always go together, but a distinctive characteristic of the remarkable man who holds the office at the present time as President of the United States is that he presents the spectacle of something out of the way—a combination of gifts and possessions which is not usual.

"It seems to me that Mr. Wilson typifies the inspirations and ideals which he has expressed to the world. It is not merely his firm declaration that the policy of the United States is not a policy of conquest or annexation. That we respect profoundly, because we know its deep meaning ourselves. A country like the United States, with its enormous possessions, its tremendous wealth and power, has burden enough to carry without adding to its responsibilities, and that is our own case also.

"Nor is it merely that when the United States intervenes it is not for personal advantage. It is, I think, about ninety years since President Monroe sent his famous message to Congress, containing what is known as the Monroe Doctrine. The Monroe Doctrine remains to be completed, and it seems to me—looking on as though to divine the true inwardness of what was in the mind of the President of the United States in the declarations which he has recently made—that, just as his Government in the days of Monroe assumed a great responsibility for the protection of the nations south of the United States on the great American continent, so to-day the United States feel that the responsibility must be extended to securing good government and fair treatment for all those who live and trade in those countries.

"My interpretation is that the United States is ready to accept reponsibility, not merely for insuring good government and good treatment in the interest of her own subjects, but in the interests of the world at large, so that all who live and trade on the great American continent may feel that she has set before her a high ideal, to secure for them equally with her own subjects that justice and righteousness of which President Wilson has spoken.

"I am not sure that anybody ought to speculate from the outside on the interpretation of this policy, but I have been deeply impressed with what has passed recently, and I think myself at liberty to speak to you of the interpretation which I put upon it; for, if it be true, then indeed a high spirit and aim has been brought into the policy of the United States Government in its dealings with adjacent countries.

"It is because the present President seems to me to have taken this step—a step which one cannot but admire, whatever its consequence may be—that I give the toast, 'A health, not merely to Mr. Woodrow Wilson, the President of the United States, but to Mr. Woodrow Wilson the man.'"

350 Americans Present.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—At the Thanksgiving dinner of the American Society here to-night three hundred and fifty American men and women, with a large number of British guests, were present, and they cheered Lord Haldane's words again and again.

Robert N. Fairbanks, President of the society, proposed "The King."

Sir John A. Simon, the Attorney General, proposed the health of the American Ambassador, Walter H. Page, declaring him to be a worthy successor of his distinguished predecessors. He said:

"America and England have given their best and their worst to each other. America has sent us ragtime; we have sent you militant suffragettes."

Mr. Page referred to the cordial reception which he had met with in England, and which, he said, he knew to be a tribute to his country.

Speaking of the difficulties of his office, he said that when the Ambassador referred to the debt which America owed to England, American citizens of Irish, German, Polish and Lithuanian blood gathered to adopt resolutions de-

SAVED FROM MEXICAN JAIL.

Woodyard, American, Who Aided Maderos, Refugee on the Michigan.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 27.—Fearing arrest by the Mexican authorities on the charge of having assisted in the recent escape to the United States battleship Rhode Island of Evaristo and Daniel Madero, J. F. Woodyard, Jr., a prominent member of the American colony at Vera Cruz, and formerly of Monterey, is under the protection of the American flag aboard the battleship Michigan. Capt. Edward E. Capehart, commanding the Michigan, is the senior officer of the squadron now here.

Woodyard was informed yesterday that a warrant had been issued for his arrest and committal to the fortress of San Juan d Ulua. He went immediately to the American Consulate, where he was informed by the Consul, W. W. Canada, that he was unable to give him asylum. Woodyard then boarded the battleship. His presence there was a profound secret until to-day, when a proposal was made to put him aboard the steamer Esperanza for Havana. To this the agents of the line objected when they learned the circumstances of the case, saying that they were not willing to face the peril of complications with the Mexican authorities.

The Mexican officials learned to-day that Woodyard was aboard the Michigan, but made no demand for his surrender.

It is understood that the officials gave Woodyard an intimation that he would have a prompt trial, but he chose to remain on the Michigan in preference to a possible long preliminary confinement in the fortress.

Woodyard is a warm friend of the Madero family, but it is not known that he is affiliated with them politically. He is a graduate of West Point and an engineer by profession.

RODIN FORGOT HIS WORK.

Said It Was a Forgery, and a Paris Dealer Is Suing Him for Damages.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Auguste Rodin is faced with a curious action for damages.

Recently he heard that a bronze statue entitled "The Earth," described as being by him, was being offered for sale in some art rooms here. As he was unable to remember such a work, he informed the police and a warrant was issued for the seizure of the supposed forgery.

The art dealer made inquiries of the man from whom he bought the statue, and it was traced back from one purchaser after another to Prof. Hellbuth of Hamburg, who stated that he bought the statue from M. Rodin himself in 1899, and that Rodin wrote on it with his own hand, "First model."

Reminded of this, M. Rodin withdrew the charge of forgery and confessed his mistake.

The dealer now alleges that his credit has suffered and he is about to sue M. Rodin for heavy damages.

TRIPLE LOOP BY BEACHEY.

Daring Aviator Performs Feat Easily at San Diego.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 27.—Lincoln Beachey executed a triple loop with his biplane here to-day. The feat was performed easily and at no time was he in danger of losing control of his machine.

Strapped to the seat of his biplane, Beachey circled upward to an altitude of nearly 3,000 feet. Then the frail craft darted downward several hundred feet, described a vertical circle and rose again. Another drop to within a few hundred feet of the earth and the aviator turned a second somersault; righting his biplane, he soared a thousand feet, made a third loop and came swooping down to earth.

RESCUE-CREW DIE IN GALE.

Three Men of Steamship President Lost Trying to Save Passenger.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—Fourth Officer Shane, Quartermaster Oswald and Seaman H. Hansen of the steamship President, from Seattle for San Francisco, were drowned fifty miles off Coos Bay last night when they attempted to rescue an unidentified steerage passenger, who had been swept overboard by a heavy sea.

According to the account transmitted by wireless, when the cry of "man overboard" was raised Shane, Oswald and Hansen volunteered to go to the rescue, although the President was battling with a seventy-mile gale, and the seas were breaking over her bow.

The crew having succeeded in lowering a boat, the three men started away. Their frail craft was carried astern like a flash, and the next moment a great wave curled over it and swamped it.

After futile efforts to recover the bodies the President continued her voyage.

GRENFELL WORKER BACK.

Miss Coates Tells of Record Trip She Made in Labrador.

Miss Laura Coates, who is 28 years old and the only white woman who has visited Grand Falls, Labrador arrived yesterday from St. John's, Newfoundland, on the Red Cross steamship Stephano after spending two years in Labrador working with Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell. She said that most of her time had been spent at the headquarters of the mission at Hamilton Inlet, from which she made expeditions to the nearby villages over the snow.

Accompanied by an Indian half-breed guide and armed with a rifle Miss Coates started to travel 325 miles by canoe and on foot up the Grand River to the Falls. They had a canoe each, she said, at starting, but one was smashed on the journey. The Grand Falls are 375 feet high and there are three falls in succession. On the bank Miss Coates found bottles containing the names of persons who had visited the spot and the date. Miss Coates wrote her name and date on a card and left it in a bottle and then started back for Hamilton Inlet.

Advices Received Tell of Rebel Progress Throughout the Northern States.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—It is now known that Ciudad Victoria, the capital of Tamaulipas, despite the assertions of the Government that the place was safe, has been evacuated by the Federals, who have fallen back to Tula, southeast of Victoria.

The rebels occupied the town and looted it, finally razing the buildings in face of a probable attack by the Federal columns under Gen. Rubio Navarrete, which had been mustering to the north for several days.

Gen. Rabago, Governor of Tamaulipas, in his retreat with his garrison, left the rebels at liberty to advance toward Tampico, which is believed to be their next objective.

It is reported here that the rebels carried away trainloads of loot and many women.

Late reports from Victoria state that the Spanish Consul there and several Spaniards and other foreigners were massacred by the rebels before the evacuation of the town.

This report was brought here by Spaniards to-day, but it is not confirmed officially or from any diplomatic source.

Government officials will say nothing regarding the situation at Victoria, although it is understood that they are fully informed of the facts.

Thanksgiving Day was celebrated here by the Americans. Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy entertained the American colony at a reception this afternoon. This function did much to allay the alarm which had been caused by recent rumors of possible intervention. Hundreds of Americans and many foreign diplomats called at the Embassy.

Government Troops for Tuxpam.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 27.—Gen. Joaquin Maass has about a thousand men here to-night. Early to-morrow morning he will place them on transports destined for Tuxpam. The Government has decided to prosecute an energetic campaign against the rebels in the oil districts.

John Lind has notified Consul Canada that he will return to Vera Cruz on the first warship coming this way, and will arrive before Sunday.

The action of a surgeon of the Michigan in risking his life in an effort to save a Mexican fisherman from drowning near the pier has caused much favorable comment here.

Capital Admits Rebel Progress.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—Such reports of developments through the country as are available indicate rebel progress at almost all points, although the tone of the reports emanating from the War Department is optimistic.

More than fifty rebels were killed yesterday in the course of three sharp engagements between a force of 400 revolutionists and a body of Federal troops commanded by Col. Celso Aguilar in the State of Tlaxcala, according to advices received at the War Office.

A column of Federal troops commanded by Gen. Rubio Navarrete was ambushed yesterday by a strong body of rebels near La Cruz while moving from Monterey toward Ciudad Victoria. The Federals were caught in a ravine by the rebels, who poured in a heavy rifle fire from the hillsides. The Federals brought their machine guns into action and in this way saved themselves from annihilation.

The rebels were eventually driven off, leaving some seventy dead on the field. The Federal Commander admits that twenty of his men were killed.

Another rebel force yesterday sacked the town of San Dionisio in the State of Puebla. They did not even spare the church, which they looted, after killing the sacristan. Such a thing is unusual, churches and priests generally being respected by the raiders.

A military train with 150 soldiers aboard was dynamited to-day at El Salado, sixty miles south of Saltillo. The casualties are not known. The rebels in that region appear to be continuing their concentration.

An executive session of the Chamber of Deputies was held to-day, and the proposition to reduce the salaries of its members was discussed, but no action was taken.

VILLA TO ATTACK CHIHUAHUA.

Plans to Leave Juarez with 7,000 Troops To-day or Saturday.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 27.—Rebel scouts reported to Gen. Frisco Villa at Juarez to-night that during the day they had sighted the Federal outposts at Villa Ahumada, eighty-three miles south of Juarez. The presence of the Federal forces at Villa Ahumada has caused no little concern in Juarez, as the rebel officers do not know definitely whether they are the troops which retreated from Tierra Blanca after their defeat on Tuesday, or reinforcements from Chihuahua again moving north to engage Villa.

"I will leave to attack Chihuahua just as soon as I can get my trains loaded with provisions and my troops, which will probably be to-morrow night or Saturday morning," said Gen. Villa at Juarez.

To-morrow morning Gen. Villa will hold a review and parade of his troops in celebration of the victory over the Federals at Tierra Blanca. After the parade the troops will make immediate preparations for leaving for the south.

Thousands of dollars' worth of provisions were transferred from El Paso to Juarez to-day to be loaded on Villa's train.

Villa expects to have at least 12,000 men when he attacks Chihuahua. He said to-night he had sent word for Gen. Tomas Urbina to bring 3,000 men north from the Torreon district, and that Gen. Manuel Chao was in the vicinity of Chihuahua with 2,000 rebel troops. Villa will take 7,000 soldiers from Juarez, leaving a garrison of about 100 men to protect the city.

Spanish residents of Juarez have appealed to the American Consul, Thomas B. Edwards, to take charge of their possessions in the city, as Gen. Villa has threatened to confiscate their stores and other property. Consul Edwards accepted the custody of the properties. There are about 100 Spaniards in Juarez. They have aroused Villa's displeasure by refusing to accept rebel flat money and closing their stores.

Rebel forces under Gen. Antonio Villareal to-day routed Gen. Luis Navarette's Federal column at La Cruz, State of Tamaulipas, according to an official dispatch received at Gen. Villa's Juarez headquarters from José Vasconcelas, a rebel agent. The message said:

"Gen. Antonio Villareal defeated and routed Rubio Navarette's force at La Cruz, near Linares. Navarette abandoned his trains. Gens. Candido Aguilar and Abel Salazar, with 9,000 Constitutionalists, have demanded the surrender of Tampico. Navarette was going to the relief of Tampico."

VICTORY SPURS THE REBELS.

Carranza Changes Plan of Campaign —Will Move on Chihuahua.

HERMOSILLO, Mexico, Nov. 27.—Francisco Villa's victory over the Huerta troops south of Juarez is likely to alter the entire plan for the general movement of insurgent troops to the south.

Gen. Carranza, head of the Constitutionalists, announced to-day that he would probably move into Chihuahua State from Sonora, abandonment of his formerly announced plan of proceeding directly south along the west coast into Sinaloa and Tepic.

If the Constitutionalist commander goes into Chihuahua, the general movement of insurgent forces will be made south of Juarez and along the central line of the National Railways, the most direct route into the centre of the Republic.

On account of the unsettled conditions between Agua Prieta, opposite Douglas, Ariz., and Juarez, opposite El Paso, Texas, the General Staff will probably be accompanied by a small escort.

There is no railroad in Mexico between those two points, and if the new plan for a southern invasion goes into effect all available troops from Sonora and Sinaloa, the two west coast States, will move south by rail to the point where they cross the mountain passes for about 100 miles to Guadalajara, Jalisco, joining the Chihuahua troops at some interior point. This was the route originally selected by Gen. Carranza for his first ward advance.

Details of the fighting near Juarez received here to-day through border representatives indicated the complete rout of the Federal troops under Salazar, Orozco, and Mercado. Word from Chihuahua City, upon which it was reported that other insurgent forces were marching, was awaited with impatience. It was asserted at Carranza's headquarters that Villa's victory was the most crushing since the beginning of the Madero outbreak in 1910.

REBEL ADVANCE EXPECTED.

Washington Hears Carranza Is Preparing for Strong Movement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Advices to the State Department and to the Constitutionalist representatives here to-night indicated that the plan of the Mexican rebels' campaign originally heralded as Carranza's will now be changed. The first objective in the original plan was Mazatlan, and the idea was to move down the west coast to the City of Mexico. It is now planned to advance along what seems to be the line of least resistance from Chihuahua to Jiminez, Torreon, Monterey, and Saltillo.

The overwhelming victory of the Constitutionalists at Juarez has given them such strength in the Northern States that they can use the Mexican Central Railway to move a large force southward with facility and some speed. It is asserted that although the railroad has been the object of attack by both sides, gradually all tracks have been destroyed at times it can be quickly put in order and that the railroad enables it to move more men and supplies in Northern Mexico are in symbolic with the Carranza party as it is in control of the railroad from Juarez to the City of Mexico. The distance from Chihuahua to the City of Mexico is about 1,200 miles, and the problem of keeping supplies and ammunition coming to the front is the one which will confront the Federals when they reach the heart of the Republic and confront the advancing rebels.

At the Constitutionalist headquarters here it was said that at this time the chief difficulty in the way of success apparent in the operations of Villa with the Federals in the field.

Villa's Report of Juarez Battle.

A dispatch received to-day at Constitutionalist headquarters from Gen. Villa said:

headquarters from Gen.

I have the honor to communicate to you that I have completely defeated the enemy forces in Juarez, which were under the command of Gen. Salazar, Orozco, and Mercado. The first two fled in disorder, and the latter, with a few men, took refuge in the custom house, where he surrendered at discretion. We have taken many prisoners, including Gen. Salazar, Orozco, and Mercado, and all the officers of their staffs. We have also taken all the arms and munitions of war which they had in their possession. The number of prisoners is not yet known, but it is very large. We have also taken a large number of horses and mules. The enemy's losses in killed and wounded are very heavy. Our own losses are very slight. I am sending you a detailed report of the battle.

Villa's report is considered here as evidence of another victory of the Constitutionalists.

MARINES OFF FOR THE SOUTH.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—With 800 marines and 1,100 tons on board, the er in the region between Monterey and Tampico, has been whipped at La Cruz, by Gen. Pablo Gonzales, with the loss of his entire train of supplies and ammunition.

La Cruz is sixty miles north of Victoria, and it is said that Gonzales is now in control of the whole region northward from Victoria. It is now the plan for Gen. Aguilar and Gen. Gonzales to join forces and try to take Tampico, which the Constitutionalists expect to do within a week.

It was said at Constitutionalist headquarters that Gen. Villa had telegraphed to President Wilson a denial of reports that he was acting independently of the orders of Gen. Carranza.

Another visit paid to-day to President Wilson by Sir William Tyrrell, private secretary to Sir Edward Grey, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs, has revived reports of a British-American understanding with reference to the Mexican situation. No information as to the reason for Sir William's call at the White House was furnished, other than a brief statement by him in response to an inquiry that he was about to sail for England on Saturday and had called on the President merely to say good-bye.

This is the third conversation that Sir William Tyrrell has had with President Wilson within a week. It has been admitted that he discussed Mexican affairs with the President and Secretary Bryan on previous visits.

Immediately after Sir William's call at the White House last Sunday night orders were sent by the Secretary of the Navy to Rear Admiral Fletcher at Vera Cruz to proceed at once to Tuxpam and Tampico, where British and American capitalists have heavy investments in the oil fields.

Gen. Aguilar has repeated his assurances not to permit any act that will injure the oil wells or oil tanks in the Tampico and Tuxpam districts. But he insists that the Pearson Company and the Standard Oil Company must at once pay to the Constitutionalist government the due and proper taxes, which they have hitherto paid to the Federal Government.

He threatens that if this is refused the properties will be seized and the owners will not be permitted to operate the wells or have charge of or ship oil from the tanks so far as he has power, however, Gen. Aguilar says he will not allow any one to set fire to the oil tanks or uncap any of the wells.

To-day the Navy Department received a dispatch from Admiral Fletcher, reporting his arrival at Tampico in his flagship, the battleship Rhode Island. He said that everything there was quiet.

The most interesting information in Admiral Fletcher's report was that the British armored cruiser Suffolk, flagship of Rear Admiral Cradock, had arrived at Tampico. He reported also that the British armored cruiser Berwick, of Rear Admiral Cradock's squadron, had arrived at Puerto Mexico, formerly Coatzacoalcos, the Atlantic outlet of the Tehuantepec Railroad. The arrival of these British war vessels in Mexican waters had been expected. While this Government is willing to assure Great Britain and other foreign Governments that the interests of their subjects and citizens will be looked after by the United States, the Wilson Administration has no reasonable ground on which to object to the action of the British Admiralty in sending the Suffolk and the Berwick to Tampico and Puerto Mexico.

It has been customary, however, since the Mexican situation became acute, for all foreign nations that have sent warships to the waters of Mexico, or have contemplated sending them, to let this Government know in advance that there was nothing political in the missions of those vessels, and that they had been sent to Mexico merely to give adequate protection to the nationals of their Governments.

Whether Great Britain has furnished any such politic assurances has not been announced, but it is taken for granted that her attitude has been similar to that of other foreign nations. The belief here is that Sir William Tyrrell's several visits to the President have been made under direct instructions from his chief, Sir Edward Grey, and that they have been for the purpose of making known to the President that Great Britain would undertake no action that would in any way be embarrassing to the policy which this Government is endeavoring to carry out.

TAMPICO REFUGEES LOSE ALL.

84 Americans Arrive at Galveston —Their Crops Commandeered.

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 27.—Refugees from around Tampico, who arrived here to-day on the steamer Atlantis, told stories of conditions steadily growing worse, which forced them to flee to the United States.

When they left Tampico six days ago Constitutionalists were reported ready to attack the port and had already occupied the surrounding country, with disastrous results to the property of many of the inhabitants. J. Laffer, a rancher, said that it had become impossible to make even a living.

Crops, if grown, cannot be marketed," he said. "They fall into the hands of Constitutionalists or Federals, or, if they escape these, the bandits get them."

Few of the refugees required financial assistance, though they said they expected to lose most of their holdings in Mexico. There were eighty-four Americans in the number.

AN OIL WAR, SAYS BRYANT.

Concessions, Not Principles, at Stake in the Mexican Conflict.

Special to The New York Times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Nov. 27.—President Albert G. Briant of the American School of World Peace, of Boston, who is attending the Colorado State Teachers' Convention, says vast money interests in Europe and America are trying to force President Wilson into armed intervention in Mexico.

"The Madero revolution was financed from abroad," he says, "and Huerta is making bids for European assistance by holding out concessions to the great interests. Lord Cowdrey of England, and Pearson Interests from Honduras, has favored, are hoping that Huerta's Congress may be held legal, so that it may approve vast concessions in Mexico oil fields made them by Huerta. American interests are hoping that Huerta may be ousted and that these concessions may become worthless. The Mexican oil fields are the richest in the world. For these rather than for any political principles, the war is now being fought.

"It is not for the United States to pull these political chestnuts out of the fire for either faction, and an good citizens should support President Wilson's policy to avoid intervention. Americans have further interests in building enterprises which would be much endangered if Mexico were United States territory. These interests are willing to sacrifice the men and capital necessary for the war to succeed."

BLAMES WILSON'S IDEALISM.

Service Journal Says He Should Protect Investors in Mexico.

"We are in a pitiful condition indeed, when we say to our own citizens who are engaged in enterprises abroad that they must take care of themselves and perhaps expect protection from the United States in accordance with the principles of international law," says a reference to the present Mexican situation in the Army and Navy Journal.

"We are insisting that the Europeans shall keep off the Latin American and the South American peoples have been given every opportunity to settle their own affairs. Every European Government has been notified that the Monroe Doctrine will be protected and the European Governments have accepted the situation. Our own citizens have been warned that they must look out for themselves, and that they have no protection from the United States Government in the event of trouble. Yet we

ASKS FOR TWO BATTLESHIPS

Yet Daniels's Naval Estimates Are $56,800,000 Below Last Year's.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Unless the United States Secretary Daniels has sent to the House Appropriations Committee the largest naval appropriation bill ever presented to Congress, with a vote of $200,000,000 for the navy, and with provision for two battleships, the programme will not succeed. After a conference with Secretary Daniels, Chairman Padgett will frame a bill in the House calling for two battleships and a total appropriation of $144,000,000. The Secretary of the Navy, however, has asked for $200,000,000 and two battleships. The Navy Department officers of the Army and Navy Academy Boards of Commissioners, the Secretary of State, War and Navy, Chairmen of Military and Naval Affairs Committees of Congress, the Chairman of the Senate and House Appropriations Committees, the Chairman of the Naval Committees of the Senate and House, and the Chairman of the Naval Committee of the House of Representatives.

BRITISH SOLDIERS TO SET FASHION

Guard Officers in London Must Wear Topper and Frock Coat When in Mufti.

NEW ORDER CAUSES STIR

Tendency Has Been Toward Comfort of the Bowler and the Golf Cap for Street Attire.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—At the moment when Ralph Nevill, son of the late Dorothy Nevill, has published a book lamenting the disappearance of the "patrician" classes and the coming of the middle classes, whose "ineptitude and sloppiness of mind expresses itself even in their clothes," a remarkable edict has gone forth from high quarters. The officers of the Guards regiments are commanded, when not in uniform, to wear black frock coats and silk hats when in the neighborhood of Buckingham Palace.

The British officer, as soon as he goes off duty, dons civilian clothes, and, following the tendency toward bowler hats and even caps, which Mr. Nevill deplores in the West End of London, has used a "topper" as rarely as possible. The orders now issued to the Guards officers emanate from Major Gen. Sir Francis Lloyd, the new general officer commanding the London district. The reference to the neighborhood of Buckingham Palace is thought to indicate that King George himself initiated the order, but it is well known that his Majesty prefers the bowler to the topper except on official occasions.

Whatever its origin, the new order is creating an immense stir in British military circles. The question debated is, should a Guardsman be compelled to be a dandy in his own time? Those in favor of the order say a commission in the Guards carries with it social obligations of an exacting nature; that one of the traditions of the brigade is that its officers should be leaders of fashion in times of peace, and that men who join the brigade, well knowing these traditions, should be prepared to keep them up. It is also advanced that people look to officers of the Guards to keep up their reputation for smartness both on and off parade, and that to see an officer in London dressed like a chauffeur or groom is a violation of the best traditions of the brigade of Guards.

On the other hand, it is advanced that no laws are unchangeable; that the motor car and the growing popularity of golf have changed all the laws of fashion, and that to insist upon a silk hat in modern London is barely less extreme than to demand a revival of knee breeches, satin coats, lace ruffles, and three-cornered hats. It is also argued that a gentleman looks a gentleman in any garb; that your true Guardsman is a Guardsman in shirt sleeves, and that there is quite as much distinction and fashion to be got out of a tweed suit, cap and mackintosh as out of a silk hat and frock coat, which now do little more than mark the shop assistant.

MUSTN'T HONOR ROOSEVELT

Colombian Ministers and Consuls Ordered to Snub the Colonel.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27.—A dispatch from Bogota says:

"The Republic of Colombia has issued orders for all its Consuls, Ministers, or other resident officials in other South American States to take absolutely no part in the reception to Col. Roosevelt. Such was the nature of the orders that in several cities the Colombian representatives are said to have gone out of their way to snub the man who 'took Panama.'

"Colombia is bitterly jealous of the attentions showered upon the former American President, and the Bogota papers daily publish caustic editorials and news articles denouncing him. Several cartoons display the Colonel in the act of annexing all South America to the United States.

"As an indication of the feeling on the part of the populace, an art store which displayed a Roosevelt picture was wrecked by a mob several nights ago. Several gendarmes who tried to restore peace were badly beaten by the crowd, and the picture of Roosevelt, with the head cut off, was nailed up-side down to a post."

FORMOSA MASSACRE PLAN.

Plot to Raise Army of 100,000 and Restore Island to China.

TOKIO, Nov. 28.—Confirmation has been received of the conspiracy in the Island of Formosa to overthrow Japanese rule there.

The plot was widespread, and the instigators planned to organize an army of 100,000, massacre the Japanese, and restore Formosa to China.

ADMITS HOME RULE PARLEY.

Asquith Took It Upon Himself to Invite Interchange of Views.

LEEDS, Nov. 27.—Premier Asquith's speech to-day at the meeting of the National Liberal Federation, which had been eagerly awaited because it would, it was expected, throw light on the question of how far the negotiations for a settlement of Irish Home Rule by agreement had been successful, disappointed those who were sanguine of a peaceful issue.

"I should be deceiving myself," the Premier declared, "if I said that I saw at this moment a prospect of agreement. But I cannot concur with those who say that time has been or is being wasted."

The Prime Minister declared that there was no foundation for the statement that on this or any other matter the Cabinet was divided, which the Conservative press had been proclaiming for the last few days. With regard to a possible settlement by consent, he held that it should be carried on beyond the reach of electoral or Parliamentary vicissitudes; otherwise the Irish question would continue to be a "football of party politics," to the infinite injury of both Ireland and the United Kingdom as a whole.

It was in this spirit, said Mr. Asquith, that he took it upon himself to invite, not a conference of party leaders, but a free and unprejudiced interchange of views and suggestions. He had no reason to despair regarding the acceptance of the invitation by the leaders of the Opposition. The Government was not going to make, either on its own initiative or on the suggestion of others, any surrender of principle, but it had not closed any door on a reasonable way to peace.

There was no ground, whatever, the Premier declared, for the demand made by the Conservatives for a general election. It could not be fought on the single issue of home rule, and could not result in a settlement of the question. So far as he was concerned, he would not advise any such course. The Government was determined to give home rule to Ireland and was not going to be frightened or arrested by menaces of civil war.

The Prime Minister also disappointed those who had been expecting some pronouncement from him indicating a prospect of a decrease in the vast expenditure for armaments, concerning which much dissatisfaction has recently been expressed among the Liberals.

He, and every one of his colleagues, he the Government, he said, lamented as much as any man in the assembly the huge diversion all over the world of national wealth into non-productive channels. A Ministry which, out of wantonness or levity, in a burst of vainglorious rivalry, added as much as a pound to the expenditure for that purpose was committing a national crime. They could not plead guilty to that reproach. They were charged with a solemn trust, and in its performance it was their duty to maintain the vigilant watch on what the rest of the nations were doing and to be constantly ready. He thought the problem could be met by the co-operation of the great powers of the world, brought about by the demands of the people.

A WONDERFUL NEW GUN.

The Invention of Col. Lewis, an American, Is Tested in England.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A new automatic machine gun, the invention of Col. Lewis, United States Army, (retired,) was exhaustively tested to-day at Bisley in the presence of a distinguished gathering of English army officers and foreign military attachés.

The new gun resembles a large rifle in appearance, with an outer jacket covering. The barrel weighs only twenty-seven pounds. The action is totally automatic. The gun is capable of firing 800 rounds a minute.

With a Lewis gun mounted on a Grahame-White aeroplane, Lieut. Stellingwelf of the Belgian army scored eleven hits in fourteen shots from an altitude of 600 feet on a target of white sheets twenty feet square.

Those present were greatly impressed by the demonstration.

RELIGIOUS CONFLICT IN CHINA IS BITTER

League Formed to Combat the Plan to Make Confucianism the State Creed.

YUAN FOR THE OLD BELIEF

Mandate Issued Yesterday Indicates That Pro-Confucian Movement Has President's Approval.

PEKING, Nov. 27.—A league for the purpose of opposing the adoption of a State religion in China was organized here to-day at a meeting at the Young Men's Christian Association. The league is composed of representatives of Mohammedanism, Taoism, Buddhism, Roman Catholicism, and Protestantism, who are determined to combat the adoption of Confucianism as the Chinese State religion.

The Constitution adopted by the Chinese Parliament made no provision for any State religion, but a Presidential mandate promulgated to-day evidently anticipates the selection of Confucianism, of which the adherents have been laboring sedulously for some time to induce the taking of this step by the President.

The Confucian revival movement has been led by Dr. Chen Huan-Chang, a Doctor of Philosophy of the University of Columbia, and a member of the Han-Lin Academy of China. He expresses the conviction that if China is to be saved from political ruin and moral anarchy reverence for the country's sages must be restored.

President Yuan Shih-kai, whose mandates are now regarded as approximate to the Imperial edicts of the former days, describes the sayings of Confucius as "a doctrine of unequaled wisdom, which is recognized as such by many foreigners as well as by Chinese," "deep as the ocean," "sufficient although the ages change," "permanent as the sun and the moon that cross the heavens and as the rivers that flow on the earth."

The Presidential mandate is regarded with great disappointment by the Christian missionaries in China.

The American Chargé d'Affaires in Peking reported to the State Department in October that a movement to restore Confucianism was on foot. He told of the formation of a great Confucian Society led by Dr. Chen Huan-Chang, one of China's most learned young men, who had gathered around him many distinguished scholars, and said that these had held a national convention at the birthplace of Confucius. From other sources in China came news of the Confucian upheaval fostered by Dr. Chen Huan-Chang and his associates. At the same time it was reported that great efforts were being made to influence the members of the Chinese Parliament to insert Confucianism in the constitution as the State religion.

DEBATING $260,000,000 LOAN

French Government, It Is Thought, Has Safe Majority in Chamber.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day began the debate on the new loan of $260,000,0000 to cover the budget deficit. It is expected that a vote will be reached by to-morrow night or Saturday.

The debate was somewhat delayed by M. Jaurès, the Socialist leader, who moved that no loan should be considered until the Government had satisfied the Chamber that it would adopt an active pacific programme. He urged that the Government take the initiative in proposing universal arbitration by the Powers of the world in all international controversies.

The Premier, M. Barthou, replied that such a step was foredoomed to failure, because the Triple Alliance during the Balkan crisis had refused to consider arbitration when France proposed that the Balkan question be submitted to The Hague. It was impossible, he said, for France to begin again.

The motion was rejected by a vote of 439 to 148, and the Chamber then passed to the discussion of the loan.

It is generally considered that the Government will have a safe majority when the question comes to a vote, and, if the measure is actively pushed in the Senate, it is hoped that the loan will be issued before the end of December.

TO ADMIT "CLERGYWOMEN."

Synod of Canton of Neuchatel Decides in Favor of Innovation.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

GENEVA, Nov. 27.—The Synod of the Canton of Neuchatel has decided by 74 votes to 22 to admit women to the Faculty of Theology.

This means that women who have obtained the necessary degrees at a university will be admitted as "clergywomen" by the Church.

There is already one popular "clergywoman" in Switzerland.

GLUCK MS. SOLD FOR $1,100.

Wolsey and Louis XIV. Autographs Also Included in Sotheby Sale.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A trifle more than $5,000 was realized to-day at the opening of the sale of a collection of autograph letters and manuscripts at the rooms of Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge. The collection comprised letters and manuscripts of famous musicians, including Beethoven, Gluck, Mozart, and Schubert; a collection of autograph letters, manuscripts, drawings, and engravings, relating to Robert Burns; a series of twenty-three letters of Pope and rare letters and autographs of Calvin, Cardinal Wolsey, Sir Walter Raleigh, and others.

The highest figure at the opening day's sale was brought by a large folio of Gluck, addressed by the composer in Vienna in 1769. A collector paid $1,100 for this, after much spirited bidding.

A fine letter to the Town Council of Grimma, written by Philip Melancthon, the friend of Luther, in 1545, brought $105, and a letter written by Elizabeth Goethe, mother of the German poet, was sold for $130.

A philosophical manuscript in Latin written by Charles-Marie Bonaparte, father of Napoleon I., and dated May 8, 1764, sold for $65, while a letter written by the Empress Josephine brought $45. Some verses written by Elizabeth, sister of Louis XVI., when she was about 10 years old, were sold for $60.

A disappointing price was realized for a letter written by Louis XIV. to King Charles II. of England in 1678. It was thought that this letter would bring a large sum, but it was knocked down for $100.

A letter written by Catherine de Medici to the Duc de Montpensier, referring to a violent quarrel between the Duc de Nevers and the Duc de Montpensier and written in 1581, brought $125.

A letter of Schiller brought $185.

An interesting letter written by Thackeray to W. Elwin in 1855, in which the novelist referred to his visit to America and in which he introduced James Hannay, father of Canon Hannay, the playwright who is now in New York, brought $60. Another letter by Thackeray to the same person brought $80.

A letter by Mrs. Gaskell on the subject of Charlotte Brontë's engagement to Mr. Nicholls was sold for $60.

The only signed manuscript by Bach which has been offered for sale in many years brought $125, and a signed letter by Beethoven went at the same time for $225.

A letter by Chopin to his publishers, written in 1841 relative to the composition "Tarantelle," in which he gave several passages of music to illustrate his points, sold for $100.

An original manuscript by Mozart consisting of twenty-seven bars, composed about 1772 and containing his autograph, brought $125, and a letter signed by Schubert in 1816 sold for $250.

A letter signed by Richard Wagner in 1878, referring to his "Rheingold" and "Die Walküre," brought $77, making a total for the day of $5,470.

There was also offered for sale today a collection of Japanese color prints, chiefly by the most famous masters of Japan. The prints were from the collection of an American artist now living in London. In this sale a print by Harunobu, showing a geisha going to an engagement at night, brought $400.

A signed print by Buncho, of a young girl standing by a stream, painted late in the eighteenth century, sold for $205.

A print of two women by the Chidori Tama River, by Shunman, and another of a young girl and a woman, by the same painter, brought respectively $305 and $155. These two belong to a set of six Tama Rivers, in which the figures are all in graduations of gray, the only other touches of color being in the landscapes.

A "Night Festival on the Sumida River," by Utamaro, containing the figures of many women, brought $610, the highest price paid at this sale, and made the total for this collection for the day $6,080.

At Christie's sale of modern paintings, also held to-day, $18,355 was realized for six pictures.

All the sales will be continued to-morrow.

ITALY GETS PROMISE OF MANY REFORMS

King Victor Opens Parliament —Socialist Leaders Take the Oath in His Presence.

FULLER RIGHTS FOR WOMEN

Sweeping Changes in the Educational System—"A New Epoch of Italian Life!" Declares the King.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, Nov. 27.—King Victor Emmanuel's speech at the opening of the new Parliament to-day created general satisfaction owing to its marked democratic tone.

A large part of the royal address was devoted to the Libyan conquest and the obligations arising therefrom both on account of Italy's more weighty influence in international affairs and the need of greater efficiency in every branch of national activity.

His Majesty linked an appeal to Italian patriotism to a reaffirmation of the Government's policy of placing the burden of fresh taxation on the shoulders of the wealthier classes.

A remarkable announcement in the speech concerned projected reforms in elementary, secondary, and university education as well as in technical and industrial instruction, so as to level up the moral, intellectual, and practical standards of the entire nation.

The civil and commercial codes are to be so revised as to give to Italian women the full legal rights they clamor for in the changed conditions of contemporary society.

Amid thunderous cheers from every part of the Senate and House Italy's democratic monarch declared: "This day what we here inaugurate is not merely a new Parliament, but a new epoch of Italian life!"

ROME, Nov. 27.—Brilliant ceremonial attended the opening of Parliament by King Victor Emmanuel to-day. The King, accompanied by Queen Helena and the royal princes, drove from the Quirinal through streets lined by immense crowds to the Senate.

Signor Biasolati-Bergamaschi, leader of the Reform Socialists; Prof. Ferri, Independent Socialist, and Signor Dell 'Acqua, Republican, took the oath in the presence of the King, a proceeding unprecedented in the Italian Parliament, where Socialists and Republicans hitherto had always stayed away from the opening.

The King in his speech from the throne announced that many reforms were to be introduced, and alluded to the intention of the Government to "give Italian women their rightful place."

Concerning the Church, his Majesty said that the most ample religious liberty would be given, but that the Church would be prevented from interfering in State affairs, as the Government regarded itself as the only representative of Italian subjects, and could not admit any limitation of its sovereignty.

ROME, Nov. 27.—Thomas Nelson Page, the United States Ambassador, observed Thanksgiving Day by giving a dinner to the members of the Embassy staff.

At the American College a dinner was given to the students. Among the guests were Mgr. Donato Sbarretto, Secretary of the Congregation of Religious Affairs; the Right Rev. Dennis J. Dougherty, Bishop of Jaro, Philippines; the Rev. Thomas C. O'Reilly, Chancellor of the Diocese of Cleveland, and the Rev. J. T. O'Connell of the Diocese of Toledo.

SHOT BY BROTHER HUNTING

Atlanta Boy Accidentally Killed—Another Shoots Himself.

ATLANTA, Nov. 27.—Two boys were killed and a third seriously wounded here to-day through careless use of firearms.

Charles Bridewell, 11 years old, was accidentally shot and killed by his fifteen-year-old brother, Braisel Bridewell, while the boys were hunting. John Garst, 14, shot himself through the stomach with a rifle while hunting and died shortly afterward. Charles Howell, 13, was accidentally shot in the hip by his brother. It is believed he will recover.

POLICE KILL FIVE HINDUS.

Another Affray with Strikers in Natal—Several Volleys Fired.

DURBAN, Nov. 27.—Five East Indians were killed to-day in another affray between the strikers and the police. It occurred on the Blackburn sugar estate in the Mount Edgecombe district, about fourteen miles to the north of Durban. The most important sugar crushing mill in Natal is located there, and nearby is a large American mission station.

The police were obliged to fire several volleys before they succeeded in quelling the rioters.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The advices received to-day from Durban are symptomatic of the grave results likely to follow the embitterment produced in the minds of the South African Ministers by the speech of Lord Hardinge, Viceroy of India, at Madras yesterday. In this speech he sympathized with passive resistance by the Natal Indians to "invidious and unjust laws," and demanded an impartial inquiry into these laws.

The Viceroy's speech is variously explained here as an unfortunate indiscretion and as the result of grave feeling in India, calling for such outspoken sympathy. There is little doubt, however, in the minds of those who have studied the situation that it will encourage the Indians in Africa to violent resistance.

MARQUIS'S SISTER WEDS.

Married Privately in a London Church to Harry Paravicini.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Another "secret" wedding was sprung on London society to-day when Lady Eva Cholmondeley, sister of the Marquis of Cholmondeley, was married to Harry Paravicini at Christ Church in the presence of five persons, including the bride's brother.

Members of the Cholmondeley family have shown no partiality to wedding ceremonies on a grand scale. Lord Rocksavage, a nephew of to-day's bride, married Miss Sassoon at the registry office. Lord George Cholmondeley's wedding with Mrs. Sterling the American actress, also was unostentatious.

Report About Prince Denied.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A suggestion that the Prince of Wales should attend the official opening of the Panama Canal is under consideration by King George, according to The Liverpool Courier, but the Hon. William George Cadogan, aid de camp to the Prince, replying from Oxford to a telegraphic inquiry, says: "As far as I know there is no truth in the statement."

RAGAMUFFIN PRANKS GET BOY VICTIMS

Children's War Dance Stops When Young Sonwell Is Burned in a Bonfire.

FIREMAN'S AID TOO LATE

Companions in Terror Flee When Another Child Catches Fire—Auto Runs Down Masquerader.

The still lively tradition of the city that on Thanksgiving Day the children shall run on the streets as setters sometimes break with it yesterday. The hundreds of serious injuries, by the Health Department records, received by them, have caused no interference with their constantly accelerated Thanksgiving hostilities.

Up to a late hour last night the number of accidents reported yesterday afternoon, the beginning of the holiday, was not complete, but it was known that the total would be considerably in excess of the number reported on Thanksgiving Day last year.

Among the accidents reported yesterday was the burning to death of Sonwell Is, 5 years old, of 1 Bonfire Place, Rockaway Beach, who was playing with a group of children around a bonfire. His clothing caught fire, and he ran screaming into the street. Before the flames could be extinguished he was so badly burned that he died in the Rockaway Beach Hospital.

Another child, Catches Fire, 4 years old, of 1 Bonfire Place, Rockaway Beach, was also burned around the bonfire, but not seriously.

Two boys were run down by automobiles, one of which was driven by a masquerader. Both boys escaped with minor injuries.

Among the accidents reported to the Health Department were the following:

Ruth Davis of 18 Wygand Place, Rockaway Beach, burned by bonfire.

Joseph Cohen of 1 Bonfire Place, Rockaway Beach, burned by bonfire.

Frank Cohen of 1 Bonfire Place, Rockaway Beach, burned by bonfire.

WOMEN BEAT MEN RAISING $4,000,000

In Harlem Their Committee Obtained Five Times as Much for Y. M.-Y. W. C. A. Fund.

THE TEAMS' COLLECTIONS

George W. Perkins Says Eight or Nine Handsome Buildings Will Be Erected.

That women are better money raisers than men is suggested by the campaign for the $4,000,000 building fund of the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations, which ended so successfully on Wednesday night with an oversubscription, according to the revised figures, of $52,501.

The final official figures for the campaign were issued yesterday by the Auditing Department. They show that with the exception of the Executive Committee, composed of ten men and eight women, through which most of the unusually large contributions were made, the Women's Committee led all the others with collections totalling $698,497. The Executive Committee, headed by George W. Perkins as Chairman, Miss Grace H. Dodge Vice Chairman, and Henry P. Davison Treasurer, took first place with $271,081.

The total collections of the men and women of the Harlem committee offer a better basis for comparison. The women of that committee collected $47,699, or more than five times as much as the men, whose total was only $8,512.

Of the men's committees, the Kingsley aggregation holds the record with $230,280, while the Clark committee is a close second with $211,522. The surprise of the total collections is furnished by the Colored Committee, which got $41,444, thereby gaining sixth place and beating out both the Bronx and the Kings committees, whose collections were $29,136 and $28,644 respectively.

The keen competition between Mr. and Mrs. Francis Louis Slade, Captains of Teams 1 and 22 respectively, also ended with the woman in the lead. Mrs. Slade's team collected $140,782, to her husband's $104,744. Mr. Slade, however, set a high water mark for the Kingsley Committee teams, while Mrs. Slade was beaten by Team 21, captained by Mrs. E. H. L. Gould with $182,869.

Third place on the teams of the Women's Committee went to Miss Dorothy Perkins, Captain of Team 25, with $123,253. Team 19 of the Clark Committee, whose Captain was Cleveland A. Dunn, led the other teams of the same committee with $72,898, while of the two teams on the Kings Committee, Team 31, captained by Mrs. E. H. L. Gould with $152,869.

Team A, captained by F. C. Pinkham, collected $20,438, to $3,203 obtained by Team A, captained by T. H. King.

The total official collections of the three leading committees by teams are as follows:

The Kingsley Committee.

Team 1—Francis Louis Slade, Capt.	$104,744
Team 2—James S. Cushman, Capt.	25,941

George W. Perkins made these comments yesterday on the campaign:

"I don't think the people of New York realize that the buildings to be erected from part of this fund will not be places where girls can hang around and loaf. They are to help girls who want to help themselves. It is a mistake to think that the buildings will be charitable or philanthropic institutions when they are to be made as nearly self-supporting as possible. This money will be expended on eight or nine handsome buildings, and will form a number of centres in different parts of the city that are convenient and easily accessible.

"There will be one building for the colored women's branch, which will afford up-to-date advantages for physical, social, educational, and religious work. There will be another building on the east side above Twenty-third Street where young women who are strangers in the city can live and study their various professions; and still another in Harlem for a similar purpose. Then there will be several boarding houses for girls who are studying stenography and the practical sides of business life. Then there will be one building for trained nurses in some convenient centre where they can secure rooms and board at reasonable rates while they are practicing their profession.

"Some of the money will be used to meet the expenses of these various undertakings as they become more and more self-supporting, while other portions of the money will be used to equip the buildings of the associations and adjust increases over estimates in other items of the budget.

"There have been comments that the campaign for this fund will hinder other campaigns for similar purposes. I think this is a mistake, too. I believe that the more people give the more they will want to give. In this direction our campaign has been an educational one in that it has shown that people can give, and also has shown them how to give, and I believe that when once aroused they will give even more than they would have given otherwise in other and similar campaigns."

"Many attacks have been made on New York," Mr. Perkins continued. "We have been told again and again that we were a community of dollar chasers; that wealth was our only goal, and that we had become callous to all the finer things of life. The criticism was launched on us that we lacked spirituality; that we lived in 'lobster palaces,' looked on Wall Street as our happy hunting ground and regarded our churches chiefly as centres of fashion.

"Any one who had served as I did, as Executive Committee Chairman of the Y. W. C. A.-Y. M. C. A. whirlwind campaign, must have come to the conclusion that those who criticised New York in the former ways were wrong. In the two weeks during which we raised the $4,000,000 plus which has been obtained for the two Christian Associations I saw thousands of instances of deep feeling and wide liberality on the part of New Yorkers. Case after case came to my attention in which dwellers in this city in all walks of life proved their ability to give unselfish devotion to a great purpose. I had occasion to note the broad generosity of women like Miss Grace H. Dodge, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Mrs. Finley J. Shepard and others whose gifts to the fund ran into six figures.

"I also learned of many self-supporting women and small-salaried men who doubtless deprived themselves of comforts to aid the cause. There were wives of wealthy men who drew big checks payable to the Joint Campaign Committee. There were women in moderate circumstances who gave their time as well as their money to active work in obtaining subscriptions. There were shop girls and factory workers who subscribed for dollars, dimes and even nickels.

"The fact is that the big Christian Association campaign resulted in the awakening of the city to what it owed to its young womanhood and young manhood. It was a practical, profitable, human revival—a glowing contrast to the old-fashioned revivals which consisted largely of ardor and bore little fruit of achievement. The gigantic uplift movement for the young women and young men of the city leads to the conviction that when broad-gauge, two-fisted, substantial philanthropy is needed the place to seek it is our own good old generous New York."

DANIELS APPLAUDS CAMPAIGN.

Secretary Says $4,000,000 Fund Makes Thanksgiving Notable.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Secretary Daniels of the Navy Department made this Thanksgiving statement to-day:

"The specific achievement which has made this Thanksgiving notable is the success of the movement in New York to raise $4,000,000 for the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association. This is not significant so much because of the large amount of money raised as because it emphasized the fact that these associations are appraised at their true value. It is a matter for sincere thanksgiving that the leaders in the churches recognize the need of reaching young people and of employing this new and modern agency."

HUNT RABBITS WITH BELLS.

Farmer Shows New York Sportsmen How to Drive Them from Cover

Special to The New York Times.

MONTVILLE, N. J., Nov. 27.—Edward Van Riper, a farmer living a few miles west of here, has originated a scheme for hunting rabbits that is winning approval and dollars for him from some wealthy New Yorkers who hunt in this neighborhood. A number of fine hunting lodges are maintained in that section, but while game has been reported plentiful in all other rural sections of New Jersey, these men have had little or no luck, particularly with rabbits.

This morning three Nimrods, togged out in the best hunting suits that money could buy, and with three fine beagle hounds at their heels, walked across the Van Riper meadow toward the corn crib in which the farmer was doing some work. The meadow is part of hundreds of acres leased for shooting by a New York club.

"Any luck this morning, boys?" inquired the farmer.

"No," replied one of the party. "We've hunted since daylight, and haven't seen a rabbit."

"That's funny," said Van Riper. "There's a bunch of rabbits in that meadow, but they're a layin' close. You jest wait a minute and I'll stir some up for you, and I won't need a dog, either."

Calling a farmhand, Van Riper got a long rope and strung cowbells and sleigh bells along its length.

"Now you fellers follow me, and we'll git ye some rabbits," remarked Van Riper, and led the way into the meadow. Van Riper took one end of the rope and the farmhand the other, and they shook it as they went along, making the bells jangle loudly. Here and there cottontails jumped up from the tall beds of matted grass, and the guns of the N'mrods were busy. Inside of fifteen minutes sixteen rabbits were bagged. The hunters gave $2 each to Van Riper and his helper and went away happy.

GUNNERY CONTEST IS CLOSE

Wyoming Leads So Far in Struggle for Navy Championship.

The superdreadnought Wyoming, flagship of Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, is leading in the struggle for the target championship of the navy, according to figures filed with the Navy Department. Owing to the conditions in Mexico some of the ships have been kept in Mexican waters, and this has delayed their work on the ranges. The figures compiled so far show that the Wyoming is in the lead with the superdreadnought Arkansas, flagship of the First Division of the fleet, and the battleship Rhode Island, flagship of the Fourth Division, close behind her. Here are the official figures:

1—Wyoming	41.109	11—Minnesota	23.460
2—Arkansas	40.017	12—Kansas	21.841
3—Rhode Island	40.870	13—Maryland	20.941
4—No. Dakota	39.818	14—New Jersey	18.109
5—Delaware	36.626	15—Vermont	17.734
6—Idaho	31.707	16—Georgia	17.500
7—Utah	30.770	17—So. Carolina	15.645
8—Florida	29.924	18—Connecticut	14.767
9—Pittsburgh	25.079	19—Nebraska	11.919
10—Ohio	23.830	20—Virginia	10.780

These figures show that the ships that have completed target practice are very close together, and so the results of the Spring practice will be of greater interest, as by them will be determined the possession of the gunnery trophy for the year. That trophy is now held by the battleship Idaho. The ships that have not had their Fall practice are the battleships Louisiana, New Hampshire, and Michigan, and the armored cruisers California and Saratoga.

PROBATION FOR ANNOYERS.

Capt. Price's Son and Walsh Were Kept in Jail a Week.

After spending six days in jail awaiting the decision of Magistrate Appleton, James K. Price, son of the late Police Capt. James K. Price, and Charles Walsh, his chum, were placed on probation for one year in the Morrisania Court yesterday. They were arrested on a charge of annoying the two young daughters of Lieut. Ernest L. Von Diezelski of the East Twenty-second Street station in a Third Avenue elevated railroad train.

Magistrate Appleton imposed as the terms of the probation that each must abstain from the use of liquor for one year and keep away from saloons, and in the case of Price that if he ever went out nights on pleasure bent he must be accompanied by his wife.

Lieut. Von Diezelski and his wife, with their two daughters, were returning from a reception about 3 o'clock on Thursday morning of last week. In a Third Avenue elevated train the two girls had to take seats apart from their parents, and the complained that Walsh and Price had made offensive remarks to them. On the Tremont station Von Diezelski arrested the two men pointed out by his daughters.

AIR CURE FOR BURNS.

Skin Grafting Impossible, Patient Is Saved by an Experiment.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—With 200 square inches of flesh burned from his body and his life despaired of, Harry F. Stabler, 23 years old, after undergoing a new treatment at a hospital here, is now able to walk about the hospital courtyard.

Stabler was taken to the hospital on Oct. 4, unconscious from the burns caused by boiling tar.

Skin-grafting was deemed impracticable, and physicians at the hospital decided to try the effect of chemically-treated air on the burns. As a result seventy-five square inches of surface have healed.

A special framework of pliable wood was designed to fit securely about the body of the patient from the mouth to the waist. The burned surface from the chin down was exposed to the air that filtered through chemically-treated gauze stretched on the frame.

KNOW YANKEE GIRLS BY EXPRESSIVE EYES

Foreigners, Says Ruckstuhl, Rarely Make Mistakes in Picking Out Americans.

TO SEE GIRL OF TO-DAY

Artists Show Keen Interest in The Times Christmas Number with Special Rotogravure Section.

The distinguished artists who acted as judges in the selection of the typical American girls and "The Girl of To-day" from the hundreds of photographs sent in response to the invitation of THE NEW YORK TIMES, are looking forward to the appearance of the Christmas number, containing the special rotogravure section with the keenest interest, judging from the comments heard during a succession of visits to their studios. The Christmas number, which besides the rotogravure section devoted to "The Girl of To-day" and types of American girls, and the regular pictorial supplement which follows closely the news of the day, will contain a colored section in which the famous frieze of John S. Sargent, "The Prophets," in the Boston Public Library, will be produced in the three colors of the original. It will be published on Dec. 7.

One of the artists, in discussing "The Girl of To-day," remarked yesterday that in his opinion no foreign artists could portray correctly a typical American girl. "I believe a painter is bound to put something of his own nationality into the picture of any woman he paints, and a Frenchman invariably will put something Parisian into the face of an American woman he paints, and a German will be bound to give her countenance a Teutonic tinge. As for an Englishman, he simply cannot paint an American girl.

"On the other hand, I think the average American painter could not portray faithfully an English girl. Granted, I am bound to make her look like an American. When I was studying in Paris, I often tried to paint French girls, yet there was always something I could not get into the picture that a Frenchman would have done, some touch I failed to give that would make the portrait look really French.

F. W. Ruckstuhl, a well-known artist, was relating the other day some experiences which, in his opinion, demonstrated conclusively that the American type was recognizable by any European, even though the subject under discussion had been born in another country.

"I hold that anybody who has lived long enough in this country to have become a part of the life here acquires something that is not to be found elsewhere," he said. "Everybody can tell an American girl abroad, and anybody over there can tell an American man, even if the latter was born a citizen or a subject of some other country.

"I myself was born in Alsace of French stock, coming to this country when I was a baby. I was back in my home ten years ago, while in Paris, I walked up to a kiosk to buy a paper. It happened to be a French paper that I wanted. Now I did not have a stitch of clothes on that I had not bought at the Bon Marche; my beard was trimmed in the French fashion. I did not open my mouth. But as I got to the stand the old woman in charge pulled down an American paper and handed it to me, with a 'Voila, Monsieur.' (There it is, Sir.)

"'How do you know I am an American?' I demanded.

"'Ah, you have the American eye, all right,' she replied.

"A shrewd Arab, on my trip up the Nile, in 1909, also spotted me as an American. I tried to pass myself off as an Englishman, but it would not work. Then I protested that I was born in France.

"'No matter, master,' he replied, 'you have de eyes what is American.'

"The chief distinguishing element in the girl of To-day in America is her eyes, and the expression of Americanism that radiates from them. Europeans who are jealous of her call it Americanitis."

In the special rotogravure section of the Christmas number there will be presented twenty-nine of the pictures of typical American girls selected by the jury of artists—that of the Girl of To-day covering the entire front page of the section. The remaining sixty-nine of the pictures of typical American girls selected will be published on the Sunday following the date of the publication of the Christmas number.

FINE AUTOGRAPH QUILT.

Signatures of 840 Noted Persons—To be Sold at Church Fair.

A remarkable autograph quilt is to be on exhibition and afterward sold at the Fair in the Manhattan Congregational Church, Broadway and Seventy-sixth Street, on Wednesday and Thursday, next week. It is composed of forty-two pieces, each containing twenty autographs, which have been overrun in fast-colored thread to render them indelible.

The autographs are from well-known persons in all parts of the world. The Washington block, for example, contains the signatures of President and Mrs. Wilson, Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, and all the members of the Cabinet with their wives. In the South African block are the signatures of Sir Francis Oates, Chairman of the De Beers diamond mines in Kimberley, and Sir George Allen, Sir Lionel Phillips, and others in the management of the British gold mines. The Egyptian square contains the names of Mahmoud Bouhlie of the Imperial Ottoman Bank, and his brother, a professor in the Cairo College, and Andrew and Margaret Watson, for fifty years American missionaries in Cairo. The United States Army square has Gen. Wood, Gen. Porter, Gen. Thomas and many other officers. The Navy is represented by Admirals, Rear Admirals, Commodores and lesser officers. New York State has Col. Roosevelt, the late Mayor Gaynor, Ambassador Gerard, Francis Burton Harrison, Governor of the Philippines, and John Hays Hammond; also railroad presidents and many officers of the better known women's clubs.

Connecticut has ex-President Taft, Gov. Baldwin, Judge Edwin S. Thomas, and from many other States are the signatures of scores of the more prominent public men.

The quilt will be of especial interest to autograph collectors, and to all who read character in handwriting, as the signatures are guaranteed genuine. It will be sold without reserve for the highest offer made for it.

Anti-Snuff Law Held Valid.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 27.—The North Dakota law prohibiting the sale of snuff passed at the last session of the Legislature is Constitutional, according to a decision of the State Supreme Court. The plea that it is unjust singles out a certain alleged vice without abolishing others, the court says, is unsound, as "no criminal should be allowed to escape punishment because some one else is more or a criminal or more dangerous to society than he."

SHIPWRECKED MEN LOSE THEIR TURKEY

Sailors from the Brookline Not Allowed to Land from Ship That Brought Them Home.

CITIZEN PAPERS LOST

Now They Must Wait Until Agents of Their Line in Boston Certify That They Are Americans.

When the steamship Christopher of the Booth Line arrived yesterday at the foot of Fulton Street, in Brooklyn, six seamen from the three-masted schooner Brookline, which was wrecked off St. Phillips, Barbods, on Nov. 11, offered up prayers of thanksgiving at being safe in port once more. Their happiness was dimmed somewhat by the fact that five of the six men were not permitted to land because they had no citizenship papers. They will be held on the Christopher until the agents of the wrecked vessel vouch for them.

The Brookline is a vessel of 485 tons, and is owned by Herbert W. Spiaine of Boston. Her crew consisted of Capt. John Kerrigan, who stayed in Barbodos to direct the work of salvage, and the six men who arrived yesterday. They are Patrick Welsh, mate; Harry Barber, steward; Ludwig Johnson, John Harley, Alfred Carlson and William Lillgeborg, deck hands. The crew all shipped from New York. The Brookline sailed from this port on June 24, loaded with hard coal. She stopped at Halifax and continued to Limerick, Ireland, from where she sailed in ballast for Barbodos.

The trip was uneventful until the Barbados was sighted. When off St. Phillips the vessel ran into a heavy current of a peculiar kind, owing to the lack of wind, she drifted slowly toward shore and struck a submerged rock, which tore a hole in her bottom. Water flowed into the hold and all hands manned the pumps. For thirty-six hours the struggle was kept up, but the water gained so fast that Capt. Kerrigan decided to beach his boat. This was done in shallow water at a considerable distance from shore. It was decided that it would be easier to don life preservers and swim ashore than to launch the lifeboats in the surf, which would have been a heavy current, and when they got in the water found that they were in danger of drowning. According to Mate Welsh several hours elapsed before all succeeded in landing.

The men lost all their belongings, they were compelled to ask the Consul at Barbados for a passage back to New York. The Consul obtained quarters for them in a place known as the Sailors' Retreat. The recollection of this place, the sailors said, made them shudder. Capt. Davis of the Christopher gave the shipwrecked men clothes and quarters on his boat, and they prepared to go to the homes of seven in this city and dine on turkey and plum pudding. The hardest shock of the whole trip was encountered when the men tried to quit the vessel. Harley was the only man in the crew who had clung to his citizenship papers. He was permitted to go, but the vigilant Government agents ordered the rest to stay on the Christopher until they could prove that they were entitled to land. Their Thanksgiving dinner was confined to the fare provided for the ship's crew

CLARK ART CASE REVIVED.

Pictures Intended for ex-Senator Figure in Another Suit.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 27.—A suit was filed in the United States District Court to-day to require Ell P. Clark of this city to show cause why he should not deliver twelve paintings, said to be the work of William Hogarth, to Frank McKay, trustee for the bankrupt art concern of Tomlinson-Humes, Inc., of Chicago. While Clark is acknowledged as the owner, McKay, as petitioner, asks that they be ordered back to Chicago in fulfillment of a contract with Tomlinson-Humes to sell them.

The pictures were involved in litigation last Summer when it was alleged that the paintings, owning to the lack of bidding at a sheriff's sale in Buffalo for $80,000, were transferred to E. P. Clark with the understanding that Tomlinson-Humes would undertake to sell them to William A. Clark, former United States Senator, for $480,000.

WILEY FOR HEALTH HEAD?

City Hall Hears Mitchel Wants ex-Chemistry Chief.

When Mayor-elect John Purroy Mitchel returns from his vacation he will offer the place of Health Commissioner to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley of Washington, ex-Chief of the United States Bureau of Chemistry, according to a report heard at the City Hall yesterday. Mr. Mitchel, it was said, had taken up the matter with Dr. Wiley, and expected to receive a definite answer from him by Jan. 1.

Ernst J. Lederle, who is now Health Commissioner, was appointed by Mayor Gaynor in 1910. Early in his administration the Commissioner was criticised, but the Mayor stood behind him firmly. The Commissioner could not be found yesterday, but his friends said that they did not believe Mr. Mitchel would remove him. Mr. Mitchel and the Commissioner, they said, had long been friends.

NAVY FOOTBALL TEAM HERE FOR BATTLE

Big Squad, with Coaches and Officers and Goat, Ready for To-morrow's Game.

MIDDIES GO TO BED EARLY

They Will Limber Up on Hotel Roof This Morning and Drill at Polo Grounds in Afternoon.

The Navy football squad, accompanied by the coaches and several academy officers, arrived last night and are at the Hotel Vanderbilt. With the party came the Navy goat, the midshipmen's mascot, which will amble up and down the sides of the gridiron to-morrow and try to get across to butt the Army mule. The football squad is in charge of Lieutenant Commander Roger Williams, while the head coach, Lieut. D. L. Howard, has charge of the 'Varsity players. Other coaches with the team are J. J. Reilly, field coach, Jack Cates and Herman Olcutt, former Yale players; Prof. Paul Dashiel, Ensigns Loftin, Hall and Shaw, the team's physician, Dr. R. W. McDowell, and Scotty McMasters, the trainer.

As the Navy team trooped into the hotel they looked like an army of giants. Eight of the Midshipmen are over 6 feet tall. Howe and Brown, the two massive guards, towered above the other players. Howe weighs 205 pounds and Brown 204 pounds, and both are 6 feet 2 inches in height.

The coaches announced that unless some unforeseen change was made the line-up in to-morrow's game would be: Ingram, left end; Ralston, left tackle; Howe, left guard; Perry, center; Brown, right guard; Loughry, right tackle; Capt. Gilchrist, right end; Nichols, quarter back; McReavey, left half back; Failing, right half back; Harrison, full back.

The players are all in good physical condition, and none of them shows any signs of the season's campaign aside from a few scratched faces. Trainer McMasters sent the players to their rooms as soon as they arrived, and they were all tucked away for the night at 10:30 o'clock with orders that they should not be disturbed until 7:30 A. M. This morning the players will take a little exercise on the roof garden of the hotel, and early in the afternoon will go to the Polo Grounds, where there will be an hour's secret practice. The Navy will finish practicing at 2:45 o'clock, when the Army will begin practice for an hour.

There was a big gathering of local Navy men at the hotel to greet the visitors, and long after the players retired the officers and coaches chatted about the chances of the team against the Army. Although the Navy is rather confident of victory they are not holding the Army cheap. The fact that the Army season has had a few disappointments has driven the soldiers to greater efforts, and if the Navy men are willing to give odds on to-morrow's game, the money will not go begging.

The battalion of midshipmen will leave Annapolis on Saturday morning. The cadet corps from West Point will also arrive a short time before the game. A large number of visitors for the game are expected at the hotels to-night. Army and Navy decorations are already seen in the hotels and shop windows, and the city is ready to act as host for the Government's two service schools in their first football game played in this city.

Other arrivals with the Navy party last night were Lieut. Commander H. Osterhaus, Lieut. and Mrs. T. C. Kinkaid, and Lieut. Commander A. P. Fairchild, Secretary of the Navy Athletic Association, and Mrs. Fairchild.

Although the real inrush of Army and Navy men and their wives and daughters is expected not to assume large proportions until this morning, a good-sized number have arrived for to-morrow's game.

Rear Admiral William H. Emory has arrived at the Waldorf, where Mrs. Emory is expected to-day. At the Waldorf are also Rear Admiral G. Brecklinger, Commander and Mrs. C. B. Price, and Pay Director and Mrs. J. A. Mudd. The Army is represented at the same hotel by Col. M. Gray Zalinski and Lieut. and Mrs. Franklin Babcock.

SEND-OFF FOR THE NAVY.

Middies Assemble and Cheer Team as It Leaves for New York.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNOPOLIS, Md., Nov. 27.—The Navy football team left for New York this afternoon, accompanied by a final expression of confidence from the brigade of midshipmen. Not one of the midshipmen doubts that the Navy will win on the Polo Grounds on Saturday, making the fourth consecutive victory for that branch of the service.

One body of midshipmen escorted the players from Bancroft Hall to the electric cars at Rampen gate this afternoon, where the main crowd had assembled. Individual yells were given for the players from Capt. Gilchrist down and the cars started amid a final outburst of enthusiasm. At Odenton, sixteen miles above Annapolis, a train of the Pennsylvania Line was taken for New York. The party consisted of thirty-three players, Manager Hayler, Assistant Manager Thomas, and about twenty officers, coaches, and attendants. Lieut. Commander Williams has general charge of the party and Lieut. D. L. Howard, head coach, direct charge of the players.

ARMY TEAM AT ITS BEST.

Coach Daly's Squad Will Come to New York This Morning.

WEST POINT, Nov. 27.—West Point football enthusiasts got their last look at the Army team in its final workout on the "plains" this morning in preparation for the Navy game in New York on Saturday. Head Coach Daly had things all to himself this morning and put on the finishing touches to the cadets in a twenty-five minute drill.

The head coach gave out his lineup at the conclusion of to-day's practice as it will face the middies Saturday. It is as follows:

Markoe, left end; Wynne, left tackle; Huston, left guard; McEwan, centre; Jones, right guard; Weyand, right tackle; Merrillat, right end; Prichard, quarter back; Hoge (Captain), left half back; Hodgson, right half back; Benedict, full back.

The squad of forty men, Coaches Daly, Boyers, Graves, Hammond, Stillwell, Sultan, Pullen, Hayes and Stearns, Trainer Harry Tuthill and his attendants, and one medical officer, will leave to-morrow morning over the New York Central for New York. They will depart at 8:30, returning to the post on Sunday at noon.

WOMAN HUREL FROM AUTO.

Instantly Killed by Fall and Child in Her Arms Is Injured.

WRENTHAM, Mass., Nov. 27.—With her four-year-old child in her arms, Mrs. Joseph Smith of West Somerville, Mass., was thrown from her husband's automobile when the machine skidded to-day and was killed instantly. The child escaped with a broken arm.

Mrs. Smith rose to her feet as the machine skidded and was hurled to the ground when the car stopped with a jerk.

Girl Killed by Work Car.

Special to The New York Times.

SCARSDALE, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Phoebe Williams, a domestic of Bronxville, was instantly killed here this afternoon when she stepped in the path of a work car of the Westchester Street Railway Company. The girl had visited with her sister Lucy, who is employed in the home of Charles K. Carpenter of Park Road, Scarsdale, and was returning to Bronxville when she was killed. She stood by the trolley tracks awaiting a car. The work car and two autos came along at the same time. Bewildered by the car and the machines, the girl in avoiding the autos stepped in front of the trolley and was instantly killed.

HEARST ASSAILS WILSON.

Says President Was Nominated by Railroads—Fling at McReynolds.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 27.—In a letter to The Boston Post that recently published an interview with Charles S. Mellen, in which the latter dwelt on the control exercised by Wall Street over the New Haven and other railroads, William Randolph Hearst pronounces Mr. Mellen's statements "an authoritative exposition of the evils and abuse of railroad monopoly."

"It locates the blame for the deaths of many unfortunate passengers and damage to business interests of New England upon the actually responsible individuals—the great speculative bankers of Wall Street," Mr. Hearst asserts. Referring to Attorney General McReynolds, he continues:

"It remains to be seen whether the special railroad representative of a railroad Administration will proceed against the individuals clearly shown to be responsible in the Mellen interview."

Mr. Hearst attacks the Wilson Administration on its railroad attitude, saying that "the Wilson Presidential boom was conceived in the veto of the Railroad Safety Crossing bill by Mr. Wilson when he was Governor of New Jersey; that the Wilson boom was definitely delivered at the Baltimore Convention under the leadership of Mitchell Palmer, attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad, and that since the election of Mr. Wilson the Administration has done its best to show its appreciation of the railroad support which elected it."

Mr. Hearst instances in support of his contention the final reorganization plan of the Union and Southern Pacific Railroads, and the Attorney General's "specious Federalistic plea" made before the United States Supreme Court, in "an attempt to deny to the Railroad Commissions of Minnesota and Wisconsin the right to compel the railroads to do their duty to the citizens of those States," and the Administration's support of the plan to compel the coastwise shipping of the United States to pay tolls through the Panama Canal. He adds: "Undoubtedly, if the railroads can secure a canal toll on the intercoast shipping, they can impose the same additional charge on the intercoast railway transportation and recoup themselves for expenses involved in electing the present Democratic Administration."

SEES A WILSON SLUMP.

Penrose Also Scouts Talk of Roosevelt as Republican Moses.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27. — The principal cause for thanksgiving that this country has, from a political point of view, according to Senator Penrose, is that it will have an opportunity before long to vote the Democratic National Administration a lamentable failure.

"The Wilson Administration," the Senator said to-day, "is unpopular. All you have to do is to walk down Chestnut Street and enter a bank or drop on merchants to learn that. Every election held recently has shown that the voters are displeased with the trend of affairs at Washington."

The declaration of a writer in a current number of a widely read publication that President Wilson's popularity from the Atlantic to the Pacific was immense, and that Old Guard Republicans would be obliged to shelve their dislike for Col. Roosevelt and back him for the Republican nomination for President as the only man behind whom the anti-Democratic opposition could rally with any prospect of success, was characterised by Mr. Penrose as "academic dope."

"Candidates for Governor, Supreme Court Justice, and even lesser nominees in these days of primaries are the result of prolonged consideration and evolution." This being Senator Penrose's opinion of State political conditions, he scoffed at the "presumption of political writers who are boosting Col. Roosevelt as the Republican Moses of three years hence."

TURKEY UPON THE WATERS.

Harrington Doesn't Know Who Cast It There, but He Got It.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—John J. Harrington, who said he came by freight train from Syracuse, was trying to be thankful, though hungry, on Commercial Wharf to-day, when he saw a market basket floating by. More because he had nothing else to do than because he expected to make a haul, Harrington got the basket, and nearly fainted when he pulled in a family-size Thanksgiving dinner.

Apparently some one had dropped a Salvation Army basket off Charlestown Bridge, for the handle was broken. It was a good dinner, but it was not cooked. Harrington had a bright idea. Entering a shabby looking tenement he found a poor Italian family about to dine on macaroni and cheese. By graphic sign language he struck a happy bargain and some time later was presiding over an enthusiastic turkey dinner party.

NO THANKSGIVING PAROLE.

Pittsburgh Prisoners Don't Get Released in Time.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 27.—Eighty prisoners in the Western Penitentiary here, who have been waiting since Monday for the cheering news from the executive officers in Harrisburg that they were to be released on parole in time to spend Thanksgiving outside the prison, were disappointed this morning when the postman failed to leave the coveted papers.

The applications were passed upon by the State Board of Pardons, but it was understood at the penitentiary that the clerical work required, before they could be submitted to Gov. Turner for his approval was so great that it could not be completed yesterday.

LUNN CALLS CONFERENCE.

Schenectady Mayor Seeks to End General Electric Strike Trouble.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 27.—The sole development of importance in connection with the walkout of 15,000 employes of the General Electric Company to-day was the calling by Mayor George R. Lunn of a coonference of men and company officials for to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

It is expected that the proposition of putting all the employes on part time will be formally considered.

Thirty special patrolmen were sworn in by the city to-day to be ready to act in case of trouble to-morrow morning when the gates at the plant will be thrown open again.

NEWS ITEM CAUSED TROUBLE

Philadelphia Paper Told of His Taking a Young Woman to a Hospital in That City.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 27.—Sheriff Robert N. Heath is awaiting the return of Freeholder Wendell J. Andreas of Teaneck so that he can serve on him papers in an action for divorce. Andreas has been absent from his home since last Friday. Harry A. Bhuart, clerk of the Board of Freeholders, said to-day that Andreas told him he was going to visit his coal mines in West Virginia, but would be back for the regular monthly meeting of the board on the first Monday in December.

The complaint in action is very brief. It avers that Andreas was guilty of improper relations with a young woman unknown to Mrs. Andreas at the Chateau des Tourelles at Long Beach, L. I., on Aug. 22 and 23.

Mrs. Hattie Andreas, the plaintiff in the action, is a daughter of the late Supreme Court Justice Charles H. Van Brunt of New York. She is living temporarily with her mother and sister at 210 West Eighty-first Street, Manhattan. The couple were married by the Rev. David H. Greer at 108 East Forty-sixth Street on April 8, 1901. They have one child, a girl, 12 years old.

The couple separated about six weeks ago, when Mrs. Andreas is said to have taken a young woman to a hospital in Philadelphia. A Philadelphia newspaper at that time contained an item to the effect that a Bergen County Freeholder had placed his wife in the hospital there for medical attendance. A member of the Andreas family saw the item, was identified with it, and then the matter became a subject for general gossip.

Andreas's mother is a wealthy widow. She is at present at the Hotel Hargrave, in Manhattan, and knows nothing of trouble between her son and his wife, other than that they have separated. She has extensive coal mining interests in West Virginia, and travels a great deal. She lives with a younger son, Frederick, who is in the coal business at Broadway, Manhattan.

At Andreas's extensive estate at Teaneck, valued at about $50,000, and known as West Englewood, the foreman in charge said he had no idea where Andreas had gone.

"He promised to phone me of his whereabouts, but as yet I have not heard from him," he said, and added: "I really expected him home for Thanksgiving."

Andreas, when first chosen Freeholder to represent Teaneck Township, started in to reform the Republican Party, and the Teaneck Republican leaders later decided to run George A. Sipp as their candidate to succeed him. Andreas accepted an independent nomination and then engaged Capt. Hugh Coleman and his daughter, Miss Mary Coleman, both lawyers of New York, to visit Teaneck and tell the men and women there what they knew of Sipp's reputation in New York. Sipp was then running the Baltic Hotel in Harlem. Later he became a Curran witness. The Colemans caused many a blush in their Teaneck audiences, and a more sensational campaign was never waged there. Andreas was re-elected as a result of their disclosures, and then Sipp sued the Colemans for criminal libel, but the suit was never pressed to trial.

On Nov 4 last Andreas was defeated for election, and it is believed that his own family trouble contributed largely to this end.

HELD FOR SHOOTING OFFICER

Holyoke Police Arrest Alfred Garlpay After a Struggle.

HOLYOKE, Mass., Nov. 27.—Alfred Garipay, accused of shooting Michael J. Driscoll, a police officer of this city, early this morning, was arrested by the Holyoke and Chicopee police to-day.

The accused man and his brother, Joseph Garipay, who, the police allege, was with him when the shooting took place, were located near Willimansett, a suburb of Holyoke. After a struggle, in which revolver shots were exchanged, the two men surrendered. The police say both have bad records.

Driscoll is in a hospital in this city, and is regarded as in a critical condition. He was wounded in the right lung while trying to place Alfred Garipay under arrest.

WHOLE RAILROAD TO STOP.

Southern Railway to Cease Activities 5 Minutes in Finley's Memory.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Every activity over the 7,000 miles of the Southern Railway system will be suspended for five minutes at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning while the body of the late President, W. W. Finley, is being carried into St. John's Church here for funeral services.

Not a wheel will turn, not a telegraph instrument will click, not an employe from the Vice Presidents down to the humblest laborers will do any work in those minutes. Orders for such a last mark of respect to the dead President went out to-day from headquarters.

HUSBAND SEEKS MALE FLIRT

Young Matron's Annoyer Sent Her a Note, Signed "C. S. Fisher."

Several detectives and, incidentally, an athletic husband are on a keen lookout for a male flirt, who is described as being tall, of dark hair, a small mustache, high-cheeked bones, and a pale complexion. He is wanted for following a young married woman about, accosting her, and sending a note to her at the Hotel Imperial. The husband is particularly anxious to meet the man, and he promises in that event to leave nothing for the detectives to do.

The young woman was first annoyed by the man several days ago. She went to call upon a friend living on the upper west side, and as she alighted from a taxicab the man got out of another near by. Immediately she came to the conclusion that he had followed her, and in her confusion she went up the wrong flight of steps, the man immediately behind her. Discovering her mistake, she descended, and found the correct number, the man following her up the second flight of steps. As she rang the doorbell, he touched her on the arm.

She was wearing some valuable jewelry, among other things a pair of earrings, which had been an heirloom, and her thought was that the man was a thief. At his touch she screamed, and just then a servant opened the door, and the woman rushed into the hall.

At this the man said, "There is no reason to disturb yourselves, ladies," and walked quickly down the steps.

On Thursday afternoon the man turned up at the Imperial, and as the young wife passed through the Red Room he pointed her out to a maid stationed there and asked that a note he held in his hand be delivered immediately to her. The maid suggested that he take the note to the desk and send it in the regular way, but he said he was in a hurry to get it delivered, and the maid did as she was told.

The note was written on Waldorf-Astoria paper and in an unmistakably foreign hand. It inclosed a stamped envelope addressed to "Clinton S. Fisher, General Delivery Post Office, New York." The note was full of misspellings and read:

My honorable young lady:

All my efforts have to my regret proven unavelling, to succeed in having the extreme pleasure of being introduced to you. You will forgive unqueuel priviledge in transmitting my pressage to you in such manner, which, If my note reached you, is the result of hard and untiring work, to merely have you know, that someone is very anxious to be favored with an interview.

I respectfully solicit your consent, to give me the opportunity to say, just a few words to you, if you are in position to grant me my plei. A short reply in the enclosed envelope will reach me and owing to the uncertainty of the delivery of this note to you, I take liberty in proposing a luncheon at the "Hotel Astor" at 1 o'clock on Monday next. If my interview is granted, I look to you to suggest any other arrangement you may prefer. If you are prevented from granting me my request, so respectfully propose, I will be thankful to have you reply to my note.

I beg you to take this event in the brightest view of life and humbly beg your pardon for my extreme liberty. Respectfully yours, CLINTON S. FISHER.

The luncheon appointed for yesterday did not come off. The lady turned the note over to her husband, and it was sent to the District Attorney's office, whence it was returned yesterday with the recommendation that it be turned over to the police.

LOOPHOLE FOR SALOON MEN

Fight Iowa Ruling on a Girl's Notarial Commission.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 27.—Saloon keepers whose places were closed by the decision of the Supreme Court Saturday, have applied for a rehearing and permission to reopen their places until the case is finally settled.

Attorneys for the saloon men gave nineteen reasons for a rehearing. Issue was taken with the court on the contention that Bessie Cohan, a stenographer, who failed to ascertain whether her notarial commission had been renewed, was disqualified in receiving the affidavits of those who signed the petition on which the saloons had been operating for two years.

Counsel for the saloon men contended that Miss Cohen's act had been legalized by special act of the Legislature.

SHOT FOR REFUSING $2 TOLL TO GUNMAN

Henry Street Knew Doxalovitch Had Just Sold His Coffee House for $75.

ATTACK SEEN BY PATRONS

Victim Tried to Buy Off Young Invader with $1 — Gunman Made His Escape.

The little Polish coffee house far down on the east side at 90 Henry Street was sold yesterday by Paul Doxalovitch to Samuel Chervia of 65 Canal Street, and while the deal was closed in the morning it was arranged that the restaurant should not change hands until to-day. So Doxalovitch, as he poured out the coffee for the fifteen men who sat at his bare tables early last evening, had $75 deep in one of his pockets, and was accordingly merry—and cautious. For Henry Street knew he had had the windfall, and he himself knew he would probably be visited by some of the younger gunmen of the neighborhood who would expect to exact tribute.

The small shopkeepers and restaurant men of that part of town have to carry the burden of the loosely organized gangs who sell peace for a consideration and who are particularly hard on the coffee-house keepers who are known to sell a little liquor now and then without having paid the State for the privilege. The toll is usually not more than a dollar, but there are not many dollars in in Henry Street.

So Doxalovitch kept an uneasy eye on the door as he dispensed coffee to his patrons, and he scowled when finally a youth sauntered in and peremptorily bade him hand over $2 out of his roll. He balked at first, and finally, as his customers were straining their ears to catch the details of the talk between the two men, he announced flatly that he would not give more than $1.

The single bill was produced grudgingly and handed over to the visitor who stowed it away in his pocket and then said:

"Is that all I get?"

Doxalovitch said that was all and turned as if to go on pouring coffee. At that the young man pulled a revolver out of his pocket, leveled it at the other man's head and fired. Doxalovitch went down between the rows of tables with a bullet wound in his right temple and the young man with the gun jumped out into Henry Street and fled. As he still had his gun with him, nobody followed.

The commotion among the patrons brought Patrolman Schnitzler from his post at the corner, and a little later the wounded man, unconscious, was on his way to Gouverneur Hospital, where the doctors said he would die before many hours. Meanwhile Lieut. Farley and Detective Morris of the Madison Street Station were getting what they could out of the customers who had been held in the coffee house as witnesses. From them came the account of the dialogue before the shooting, and from this source, also, the detectives obtained the description of the young man with the gun. Then they went out to look for him. He was not more than 20 years old and wore a peaked cap.

Doxalovitch is unmarried and his home is at 100 Forsyth Street. He is 27 years old.

New Jersey Farmer Digs Up Iron Box Containing Coins and a Ring.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. J., Nov. 27.—While digging post holes on the border of his farm here to-day Edward Hildebrandt uncovered a small iron box about eight inches by ten inches in size. He pried it open and found inside a chamois bag, still in a good state of preservation, in which were an old-fashioned gold rope ring set with amethysts and some English coins of the date of 1714.

It is believed that some eccentric settler in these parts buried the money for safe keeping two centuries ago and died without revealing its hiding place.

FIGHTING AGAINST CONTAGION IN CITY

Dr. Lederle Reviews the Work Done to Prevent the Spread of Disease.

WE ARE ABREAST OF SCIENCE

Modern Methods, Improved Hospital Personnel, and Application of Science Are Keeping Down Death Rate.

In announcing a few days ago that hereafter "loose" milk of the grade sold in restaurants, soda-water fountains, lunch rooms, and hotels must be either pasteurized or certified, Health Commissioner Dr. Ernst J. Lederle pointed out as one reason for increased vigilance in watching the milk supply that during a recent typhoid fever epidemic on the east side the source of contagion for a whole district was found to be the milk sold "loose" in a certain store.

It is not generally known that the first actual provision for the hospital care and segregation of contagious disease in New York City was as late as 1853 when a hospital was built on Blackwell's Island. Since that time the work has grown, keeping pace with modern methods and increased learning. In the beginning of its hospital service the department found typhus to be the disease second in importance, so far as numbers were concerned, and first in importance in regard to death rate, with which it had to deal. The treatment in this disease was then, as now, purely symptomatic in character.

The one thing that the hospitals regarded as absolutely essential in preventing its spread was isolation and positive quarantine. The authorities worked upon a knowledge that the same measures that seemed to prevent the spread of smallpox seemed also to prevent the spread of typhus. The cause of the disease was unknown. It was not until the discovery was made of the way by which the disease could be transmitted that the sanitarian obtained knowledge which is effective in its control.

In 1885 the death rate from diphtheria was appalling and the treatment unsatisfactory. This year marked the beginning of the department work for the special care of diphtheria, scarlet fever, and measles cases. The Willard Parker Hospital was erected for the special care of diphtheria cases. In the latter disease various local applications in the form of antiseptics and the inhalation of the vaporized salt of mercury were employed, for the most part ineffectually.

Early in 1894 the reports of Von Behring, Roux, and Yersin suggested that a specific treatment for diphtheria would soon be available. Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, then director of the bacteriological laboratories of the Department of Health, visited the Institute for Infectious Diseases in Berlin, where Von Behring's experiments were being carried on, in the Summer of 1894. Dr. Biggs became convinced of the value of the new method in the treatment of diphtheria, and on his return presented a report to the board with a strong recommendation that an immediate appropriation be requested for the purpose of producing and using the new remedy.

The formal reports of the results of the treatment by Von Behring were not presented until October, 1894, but the department was then already engaged in the inoculation of horses for the production of the serum, and on Jan. 1, 1895, the first active antitoxin produced in this country was available for use both in the hospitals of the Department of Health and in the tenement houses. The authorities say that the results obtained by the use of this remedy were wonderful. They are now a matter of general knowledge. The death rate in uncomplicated diphtheria which had formerly been very high is now practically negligible, when antitoxin is administered early in the disease.

It was in the hospital laboratory, now the Research Laboratory, on the grounds of the Willard Parker Hospital that the first high grade antitoxin was produced, and it was in this same laboratory that the perfection of antitoxin by concentration and purification was first obtained. The Willard Parker Hospital for contagious diseases was therefore closely associated with these great advances in medical science.

In 1897, according to the Department Bulletin, Dr. O'Dwyer first published his article describing the operation of intubation, and it was in the hospitals of the Department of Health that it was most thoroughly demonstrated that this procedure was the means of saving many lives that otherwise would have been forfeited to laryngeal diphtheria.

The prevalence of broncho-pneumonia was so great in the Willard Parker Hospital in 1896 that the physicians in charge were forced to the belief that it was directly communicated from patient to patient. In an attempt to adopt measures of isolation a ward containing glass stalls was provided so that each patient, while in the same ward with others, was still separated from his neighbor. The results were so satisfactory that in a large percentage of the wards provided for contagious diseases this form of construction has been used.

Much experimental work of a research character has been carried on in the hospital laboratory in regard to the cause of measles. The actual cause of this disease, the authorities say, has never yet been ascertained, but in 1910 from blood obtained from a case Drs. Anderson and Goldberger of the Hygienic Laboratory at Washington were able to produce the disease in monkeys. The occurrence in the City of Washington of an epidemic of measles since this experiment gave opportunity to verify their findings, and another step toward the discovery of the cause of the disease was taken.

In the wards of the contagious disease hospitals every method of attacking scarlet fever that offered promise of discovery has been employed. In 1904 Dr. Mallory, following in the footsteps of Guarnieri's pathological researches involving the cornea of experimental animals, found in the skins of scarlet fever patient's bodies of a protozoan type, which he considered the cause of the disease. His work was repeated and a careful study made of patients in the scarlet fever hospital at the foot of East Sixteenth Street, but beyond the fact that the bodies were present in the skin, nothing further was proved.

When, in 1875, the Riverside Hospital was transferred from the Department of Charities and Correction to the Department of Health, the cases treated there were solely smallpox. At that time, the Bulletin points out, the treatment of this disease was primarily preventive, that is, it consisted in vaccination. The treatment of a developed case was purely symptomatic without any idea of curing the disease.

The Health Department Bulletin says: "After Pfeiffer's experiment which demonstrated the germicidal effect of a specific serum, it was thought that possibly there might be in the blood of animals recovering from vaccinia a specific serum which would produce the desired effect. In 1898 Dr. Erasmus Wilson, pathologist of the Kingston Avenue Hospital, then under the Department of Health of the City of Brooklyn, experimented with this method at the hospital and reported to the Board of Health of that city that he believed he had succeeded in modifying the course of a confluent case. Previous to the use of the serum, the prognosis had seemed absolutely hopeless, and, subsequent to its employment, the patient had made a rapid and complete recovery with considerably less than the usual amount of pitting.

"At about this time this method of treatment was also in use in France, but the enormous amount of serum necessary (500 to 1,000 c. c.) precluded its general adoption. When Finsen reported the wonderful effects produced in lessening the pitting by the exclusion of the violet light rays, his method was adopted in the smallpox service of the contagious disease hospitals. Red panes of glass and red shades were provided in the smallpox wards. The results, however, were of a negative character.

"During epidemics, considerable difficulty was formerly experienced in differentiating cases of variola (smallpox) from cases of varicella (chickenpox). In 1903, by inoculation with material furnished from the smallpox wards of Riverside Hospital, Dr. Park, the Director of the Research Laboratory then called the Hospital Laboratory, succeeded in producing the typical lesions of smallpox in monkeys. As these animals are known not to be susceptible to infection with the virus of chickenpox, there was thus supplied an easy and ready method of confirming the diagnosis."

The department boasts that while better buildings and more improved methods of treatment were progressively employed in the hospital service, the personal service to the patients has also improved. In the beginning helpers of a low grade and "trusties" were in charge of the unfortunate victims of contagious diseases. A little later Sisters of Charity helped to raise the hospitals from this condition, and as soon as the services of specially trained nurses could be obtained they were employed. Now the term "pest house" is almost forgotten, and parents seek to have their children admitted to contagious disease hospitals that they may receive the benefit of the treatment, of long experience and leave their homes free from the dangers of infection.

GATHERS IN 800 ALCOHOLICS

Salvation Army Gets Forty Pledges at Drunkards' Service.

Forty wagon loads of east side saloon frequenters, described by those who knew as "intoxicated, more intoxicated, and drunk," were gathered up by the Salvation Army yesterday afternoon and taken to the headquarters, 120 West Fourteenth Street, to listen to speeches on temperance. It was the first "drunkards' service" the Army had had in years, and some 800 attended. Adjt. George Cook presided, and was aided by "Father" Duffie, a convert of thirty-two years' standing. The meeting was a great success and there was no disorder.

At the close about forty of the down-and-outs pledged themselves never to touch another drop. These men were immediately sent to various institutions maintained by the Army. They will have a chance to earn money and to rehabilitate themselves.

The Rescue Society, which maintains a mission and settlement in the old Chinese Theatre at 5-7 Doyer Street in Chinatown, spread wooden plates heaped with turkey for 1,400 last night. There were many women present, but not a single Chinaman partook of the American feast. All the streets of Chinatown were lined with applicants, and it was nearly midnight before the last of the hungry was fed. T. J. Noonan, Superintendent of the mission, was in charge of the dinner.

PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO OUR SURGEONS

Australian Physician Says Their Work Is of the Highest Excellence.

IS MAKING A WORLD TOUR

Saw Some "Bungling" in Paris—Marvels at Research Studies of the Rockefeller Institute.

Dr. R. S. Bowker, an eminent Australian surgeon who left New York yesterday for Philadelphia after ten days in this city, is making what he calls a "surgical tour" of the world. Dr. Bowker is not performing any operations, but he is engaged in seeing what the foremost surgeons of the world are doing, and in ten days in New York he has spent most of his time watching the work of some of the most skilful surgeons here. He is enthusiastic over the methods of American surgeons.

Dr. Bowker is senior surgeon and Director of the Sydney Hospital. He spent considerable time in Paris and in London and other English cities, but he said he practically had no time to do any sightseeing. Dr. Bowker says the word "graft" in Australia has an entirely different significance from its application here, and several times during his stay in New York he had to check himself, for fear of giving offence by calling a man a "grafter," or mentioning that he was "grafting."

"I should say that a 'grafter' in the Australian sense is about the same as a 'hustler' here," said Dr. Bowker at the Bresiin yesterday. "When we speak of a man 'grafting his way,' we mean he is doing the finest sort of work, and intimate that he is bound to arrive. So you can imagine that having learned the American use of the word, and being in the habit of using it a great deal in the Australian sense, I have been on the point many times of giving unintentional offense in an attempt to express my admiration of some one of your distinguished surgeons.

"I have visited the Rockefeller Institute and seen something of the really wonderful work that is being done there. Certainly the research work that is being done there is of the greatest service to the world. Most of my time I have been watching operators in the various hospitals. As we would say in Australia, the surgeons here and in England are 'on the ball,' that is a football term. In the matter of hospitals Paris is behind.

"One thing that impresses the seeker for information is the great amount of money that is behind the hospitals here. It struck me that the Mount Sinai, the Presbyterian and others I have seen, are very heavily endowed. As for the Rockefeller Institute, certainly Mr. Rockefeller could not have done a better deed for humanity than to endow that institution in the way he has.

"Radium is being used a great deal in London. We have quite a big supply of radium, comparatively speaking, in our hospitals in Sydney, and when I get back I propose to go in for using it extensively. Some of the London surgeons, I found, are getting good results with it. Sir Alfred Pearse Gould's work, some of which I saw, is very wonderful, as is that of Dr. Glendening of London. I am taking back some of the serum discovered by Prof. Werner of Heidelberg for cancer.

"There is a good deal of cancer in Australia in proportion to the population. You see, we have only about 5,000,000 inhabitants, but almost a fourth of these are settled in the two cities of Melbourne and Sydney, and most of our people crowd into towns.

"At the Radium Institute in London I found them doing fine work with superficial cancer, but the general surgeons are accomplishing wonderful results with the more dangerous forms of the disease. The Radium Institute now owns $400,000 worth of radium, in our hospitals in Sydney we have about $20,000 worth. Pitchblende exists in Western Australia at a little place called Pilbarra, but only a very small quantity of radium is produced.

"It would be difficult for me to single out the work of any of your surgeons as exception," said Dr. Bowker, in answer to a question. "I have found so many here who are doing remarkable work. One thing about English surgeons is that they are not fond of learning what surgeons of other countries are doing. They think they are doing the best work, and they try to argue you into feeling so. Here they keep an eye on what is going on in surgery everywhere, and keep an open mind; so if somebody elsewhere finds out something that is really worth while, they are keenly interested in it and are willing to admit its good points.

"The point of view of some English surgeons is very much like that of the average English bootmaker, whose father and grandfather never were accustomed to make half and quarter sizes, and who thinks too much of the traditions of his trade to stoop to such a thing. He will make your shoes just so, and if they don't fit, that's your concern, not his.

"I find a great many points in common between America and Australia. I must say, that as far as I have seen them, I look upon your surgeons here as great men, and that is why surgeons from all over the world make pilgrimages to see their work, as the Mohammedan from the remotest corner of the world goes to Mecca—if he can get there. Such operations as I have seen here could not be performed better, and that I think is the highest tribute I can pay. In Paris, while there are one or two excellent men, there are not so many as here or in London. In the former city I saw several operations where there was bungling."

WATCHUNG HOUNDS RUN.

Several Riders Come Croppers in Twenty-Mile Ride.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 27.—A large number of riders turned out this morning at the Baltusrol Golf Club for the annual Thanksgiving Day run with the Watchung Hounds. The chase, which covered a distance of more than twenty miles, was full of thrills and excitement not alone for those in the field but for the many farmers and their families over whose farms the line was laid, and who viewed the run from their housetops, as well as for many auto parties that followed along the near-by highways, from where much of the fencing could be seen.

At one time or another during the run Beverly Brown, C. E. S. Bellows, H. L. Finch, and Miss Marjorie Dana and Jacques Cartier of New York came to grief, but fortunately, with the exception of Mr. Brown, all escaped with nothing more than a shaking up, and were able to continue.

The hounds were cast in on the Golf Club grounds, and made a straight line for Mountainside on the Springfield road, where they were checked for the first time. They were taken up again and cast in near by on the Miller estate, going in the direction of Garwood, and checking on the old Fair Acres racetrack. The hounds were taken up again and cast in for the final line near Westfield, crossing numerous farms, and finishing at the Plainfield Country Club.

Those in at the finish were R. C. Finch, M. F. H.; L. B. Smith, R. H. Towner, H. A. Bourne, H. L. Finch, Miss Gertrude Noe, S. D. French, E. R. Finch, H. S. Hollis, Miss Marjorie Dana, Gordon Douglass, Jacques Cartier of New York, and Huntsman Harrison.

Collier Hounds Out for Run.

RED BANK, N. J., Nov. 27.—For eight miles over hills and dales in Middletown and Holmdel Townships the pack of hounds from Robert J. Collier's kennels at Wickatunk gave the Monmouth County Hunters a lively chase after the elusive fox that withdrew from cover to-day in the woods of Mrs. Charles H. Bennett's farm near the Middletown Railroad station.

Many high fences and broad ditches were encountered by the huntsmen, and during the drive W. L. Herbert, Master of the Hounds, and Miss Margaret Tompkins were unseated, but neither was injured and remounted, finishing with the others. After circling about on the Bennett farm the fox finally eluded the hounds by ducking into a thick piece of woods near the Village of Holmdel, where it went to cover. On the return trip two more foxes were drawn out of cover, but the huntsmen did not give chase. During the greater part of the chase Miss Mary Jones, mounted on the high-bred jumper Coronation, was in the lead.

Others in the hunt were William Stonebridge, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, on Silber Buck; Miss Rachel Field, the Misses Mary and Grace Conver, Miss Helen Hughes, Mrs. L. L. White, M. Jones, Walter McClure, on Clermont; W. L. Herbert, on Handy Boy; Thomas S. Field, and three whips. About fifteen automobile parties followed along the highways.

The next hunt will be held Saturday, the start being made from Lincroft. The December schedule of the Monmouth County Hounds follows: Wednesday, the 3d, starting from kennels, Wickatunk; Saturday, 6th, Red Bank; Wednesday, 10th, Marlboro; Saturday, 13th, Fox Hunt, Middletown; Wednesday, 17th, Holmdel School; Saturday, 20th, Wickatunk; Wednesday, 24th, Shrewsbury; Saturday, 27th, Red Bank.

HESTER STREET'S BAD NAME

Jewish Immigration Bulletin Protests Against Calumination.

Under the caption "The Metamorphosis of a Street" The Jewish Immigration Bulletin for the current month contains a vigorous defense of Hester Street and a protest against keeping that east side thoroughfare in the category of streets mediaeval and un-Occidental, in which it has been pigeonholed by untold numbers of writers and speakers ever since it began to lay its narrow child-strewn way through the narrow, child abounding East Side.

"It is true that the physical appearance of Hester Street leaves much to be desired," the writer, concedes, "but that is hardly the fault of the residents of that street. Writers have delighted in pointing to it with the finger of scorn, and taken all in all Hester Street has had to live down a reputation none too good. Hester Street never did anything bad, and the people there are decent, law-abiding citizens, but it pleased sociologists, reformers, investigators, and all sorts and conditions of men to decry it. Hester Street dwellers cared very little about what was being said concerning them. They went their way, and behold, their street has undergone a metamorphosis, showing that the men and women and the young men and the young women and the boys and girls have a soul.

"Primarily Hester Street is a business thoroughfare. It is a mart, not merely a pushcart market, but a street of stores with electric signs and beautiful goods displayed in the show windows. Hester Street has the most beautiful public school building in the city, denoting that the street is not so mean as some would have us believe."

The writer then describes one of the new tenements erected on Hester Street, with electric lighting, steam heat, pleasant interior and exterior workmanship, and all that in another neighborhood would make it an apartment house.

"The changes that have taken place in Hester Street," says the article, "could only have been possible through the will and the determination of those who dwell therein. If the opinion of an outside world would have been considered and since 'give a dog a bad name and you might as well hang him' is still a proverb holding good even in these days of altruism, Hester Street would never have undergone and never would undergo any transformation.

"Hester Street has been evolved from within, and what will the picturesque and the bizarre writers do now? Like 'Hamlet' without Hamlet the ghost finds his occupation gone."

Boxes for Game Unsold.

The New York Baseball Club sent out a notice last night that many of the $50 and $100 boxes for the Army and Navy game to-morrow at the Polo Grounds were still unsold. There are four seats in each box. This makes the box seats now on public sale cheaper than tickets agencies are asking for seats in the stands and bleachers. The New York Club posted this notice at the Hotel Imperial last night, where reserved $3 seats are offered at as high as $40 a pair. At some of the other hotels tickets are being offered at these high prices. Several of the ticket agencies are offering high prices for tickets for the game.

WOMEN SLEUTHS CATCH A FUGITIVE

Trail Man Sought for Fourteen Months to a Flat Where He Lies Ill.

HE GOES TO A HOSPITAL

Wolf Charged with Stealing $10,000, the Savings of Years, from a Woman in a Stock Deal.

Accused by a woman of having stolen more than $10,000 from her in the course of a stock transaction and trailed by the police ever since he departed from this city fourteen months ago, Frank Wolf was arrested last evening, on the day of his return to New York. He was arrested by the assistance of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Wilhelmina Scharer of Holland. Mrs. Wolf and a maid, when detectives, two women and a man from the personal staff of Police Commissioner Waldo, closed in upon the apartment home at 1,370 Franklin Avenue, the Bronx.

The woman who accuses Wolf is Mrs. Francesca Groelment of 880 Hopkins Avenue, Astoria, and the money she says she lost in the stock deal with Wolf is said to be the savings of many years. Her story was told to Chief Inspector McCloskey and he passed it on to Commissioner Waldo, who heard it. Mrs. Groelment, it is said, met Wolf early in 1912 at the office of a stock broker in Nassau Street. Wolf, it is said, told her that he was a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange and that he was in a position to make her money in the stock market. Mrs. Groelment, it is said, gave Wolf $10,000 to invest for her. Wolf, it is said, told her that he had made the investment, but that he had lost the money. Mrs. Groelment, it is said, then began to press Wolf for the return of her money. Wolf, it is said, then disappeared.

Mrs. Groelment, it is said, then began a search for Wolf. She found that he had left his wife and child and had gone to live with a woman in a flat in the Bronx. Mrs. Groelment, it is said, then went to the flat and found Wolf there. He was ill, it is said, and Mrs. Groelment, it is said, then had him removed to a hospital. Wolf, it is said, then left the hospital and went to live with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Scharer, in Holland. Mrs. Groelment, it is said, then went to Holland

ANOTHER NO-SCORE TIE.

Fordham Ends Poor Season in Fruitless Game with Mt. St. Mary's.

In a nip-and-tuck battle at Fordham Field yesterday Fordham and Mount Saint Mary's fought to a no tie. Both elevens were evenly matched as regards ability and gameness, although the Mountaineers had the advantage in weight and brawn. Stiff defensive work on both sides prevented any chance of a score.

The Maryland collegians came up to Fordham with a formidable list of victories to their credit, and ruled favorites over the shattered team of the local college. After the first few minutes of play, however, all the fear of Fordham vanished, and it was the Maroon team that was the aggressor during the greater part of the game.

Mount Saint Mary's won the toss, and L. McMann, kicked off. McDonough caught the ball at the 10-yard line and dodged for thirty yards before he was downed. On the first play Fordham penetrated the Blue defense and carried the ball forty yards. A series of line plunges put Fordham first down on the 5-yard line. After three attempts to smash the line had failed Quarterback Ward punted, Sulloway to Reed. Wignard took to kick for a field from placement. Keenan blocked the attempt and returned the ball to the 25-yard mark.

Fordham rushed the ball again till downs came to hand. Wignard fell on a fumble, but Mount Saint Mary's held on a fourth down, and Saint Mary's had the ball for the rest of the quarter and advanced to midfield by the aggressive charging of Mahoney. Carroll forced the visitors' best ground gainer to the second period, making two 5-yard runs. After the first few minutes of the half set-in-wet ball began to greatly hamper the players. In the last minute of play Fordham's possession Wynard made his second attempt from placement on the 40-yard mark, but the ball fell only a margin of less than a foot.

Mount Saint Mary's kicked off again at the beginning of the second half, and Sutton recovered the ball on the 20-yard mark, when Fordham forfeited on the second down. Conklin intercepted Fitzgerald's attempt at a forward pass. Fitzgerald's successive penalties for holding cost the Marylanders 45 yards, and Shortly after the opening of the last period the visitors made one attempt from placement, but the ball dropped back low, however, and Roblin brought the ball back to midfield. The line-up and summary:

Cornell Wild Over Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Cornell students went wild this afternoon when the returns indicated that their team was driving Pennsylvania to the woods. Immediately the "Big Red Team," which had been discarded as an all-night song after the Pittsburgh game last October, was brought out again. To the reflection of the returns as they came in from Philadelphia Ithaca rooters began to congregate on the campus and downtown, when they made things merry. To-night special police and firemen are routing out their arms as it seems to present damage to the returning celebrants. During the disturbance in front of the Dryden Lake residence of President Schurman, who was Acting President while President Schurman was in Greece, was forced upon a platform, and the leader, upon which inspired the students to more noise. Connecticut Battleship Tars Win from Kansas at Genoa.

GENOA, Nov. 27.—A football match at the Stadium to-day between teams from the United States battleships Connecticut and Kansas attracted a great crowd, including many Italian military officers. The Connecticut men won the game by a score of 17 to 6. Martin, one of the Connecticut team, suffered a fracture of the right arm, and was sent aboard the ship.

Rear Admiral Frank H. Beatty, Commander of the Fourth Division of the Atlantic Fleet, was presented with a gold medal as a memento of the occasion, and twenty-two gold medals were presented to the players.

W. and J. Defeats Bucknell.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 27.—Before a crowd of 5,000 spectators in a field of mire, the powerful Washington and Jefferson team defeated the Bucknell aggregation of gridiron warriors by the score of 52 to 0. The game was closely played, only one penalty for holding being inflicted, and none for rough work. When the game began a drizzling rain was falling on Forbes Field and Captain Collyer, of Washington and Jefferson, won the toss and elected to defend the south goal. Bucknell kicked off to Collyer, who was downed in his tracks. Then Washington and Jefferson began a series of line plunges that netted consistent gains. Bucknell's defense was impregnable, however, and the ball was soon in the visitors' possession. Bucknell's punting was poor, and Washington and Jefferson soon had the ball on Bucknell's 30-yard line. Here Bucknell braced and held when third down was in order. The game was played in a fog and on a field that was a quagmire of mud. The lineup:

Washington and Jefferson.	Position.	Bucknell.

Glanicopolis Leads Good Field in Fifteen-Mile Race of Mercury A. C.

With an international aspect given to it through the competition of Peter Wyer, a speedster from Toronto, the annual long distance footrace held by the Mercury A. C. of Yonkers developed into a hard fought contest despite the fact that counter attractions of a similar nature cut a big swath in the matter of lessening the list of nominations.

It remained for one of the home talent, a Greek named Nick Glanicopolis, formerly affiliated with the Mercurys, to account for the winning honors over the route traveled, fifteen miles, in 1 hour 33 minutes 12 seconds, with the youthful Canadian second 18 seconds further back. TRAVIS WINS GOLF MEDAL AT LAKEWOOD

New Yorker's 78 Score Two Strokes Lower Than Marston's Card.

Thanksgiving Day was observed in golf circles yesterday principally by means of the qualifying round in the annual Fall tournament of the Country Club of Lakewood. There were more than eighty starters in this fixture, which is the last of the golf season in the North. Walter J. Travis, the Garden City veteran, won the medal with a score of 78, two strokes lower than the effort of Maxwell H. Marston, the Eastern interscholastic title holder.

The day was raw and cold and gave every promise of repeating the snowy visitation that took place last year, when the golfers had to use red balls for their rounds and even then lost many spheres. It turned out to be rain, however, and as a result scores were generally high. Both Travis and Marston went along well enough except on the greens. Travis kept clear of bunkers and other difficulties, but on no less than four occasions he needed three putts. His best try for the cup was a seven footer on the ninth hole. Misses on the eighth and eighteenth holes practically put Marston out of the running and it was the putting that gave him three 5's in 15 for the local club was tied on the last nine.

Provision had been made for four divisions of sixteen each, and there were just enough to fill nicely, which means that all but a scanty half dozen will finish with the first and second rounds of match play to-day. Heaters of different sizes were provided. A special menu had been arranged by the club for the holiday with the result that many of the players and parties of friends there for Thirty-seven in Squad That Practices at St. Nicholas Rink.

Princeton's hockey squad, consisting of thirty-seven ambitious young puck chasers, turned out for the first practice of the season yesterday at St. Nicholas Rink, under the direction of Wendell Kuhn, who succeeded "Hobey" Baker as Captain. The undefeatable Baker was in the rink and proved valuable assistance to the young players who are trying to make the team and go to Yale with it on Dec. 6.

Kuhn has his work cut out to do with the material at hand, for only two members of last year's team are left, Baker and Forrest Lee, the latter having been shifted from the defence to the forward line. Lee, who was a star at point last year, is showing up well at his new position, and Coach Kuhn is pleased with the work of Hall, who played point on the scrub team. Hall is a sophomore and has had considerable experience in hockey. Captain Baker was in the rink for a few minutes and gave the players a few pointers. He will be on hand to-day and to-morrow, but will not be able to be present after that, as he will leave for Princeton on Monday.

Coach Kuhn sent the first team over centre, Lee and Baker playing left and right wing respectively. Hall played point, with Hamilton at goal. The second team was composed of Cleaves, Hall, Hamilton, Hall, Hall, Hall and Hall. Hall and Hall were substituted for Hall and Hall in the second period. Hall, Hall, Hall, Hall, Hall and Hall played for the scrub team.

By WILLIAM WINTER

Two volumes, boxed. Price, $10.00 net. Postage, 50 cents extra.

A Special Edition only, limited to 1,250 copies, Printed on pure rag paper, made for this edition. Beautifully illustrated.

To read this work is to read the personal as well as the professional history of many of the greatest players who have appeared on the American stage. Personal recollections and theatrical history, managers and management, plays and dramatists are discussed and depicted, as well as actors and acting.

A truly sumptuous work in two large volumes, containing upward of 1,000 pages, handsomely illustrated, representing the best in American literature. There is no lover of the theatre in this country—whether he be college professor, dramatic critic, actor or elergyman—even woman—who can afford to be unfamiliar with the contents of this monumental work.

Louis XI and Charles the Bold

By Lieut.-Col. ANDREW C. P. HAGGARD, D.S.O.

Large 8vo, gilt top. Illustrated. Price, $1.00 net. Postage, 12 cents.

Colonel Haggard's story of the cruel and treacherous son of Charles VII. of France, told in his inimitable style, makes fascinating reading.

Social Sanity

By SCOTT NEARING

12mo. Cloth, $1.25 net. Postage, 12 cents.

A timely and able book by a writer well known for his writing on Sociological and Economic Questions. In his book Professor Nearing treats of certain influences and problems of the greatest importance to our present-day civilization.

The Panama Canal

By EARLE HARRISON

Size 7½x11½. $1.00 net. Postage, 8 cents.

Illustrated in full color by color photography from the original autochrome photographs by Mr. Harrison. These sixteen pictures of the Panama Canal, taken direct by the author for Scribner's Magazine, and printed under his supervision, are the most beautiful ever issued on this subject.

The Spider's Web

By REGINALD WRIGHT KAUFFMAN

Author of "The House of Bondage," etc. Illustrated by Jean Paleologue. 12mo. $1.35 net. Postage, 12 cents.

A story in every way equal to "The House of Bondage," which was a masterpiece of narrative. This new story is written in the best manner of the author, and while the story is the important thing, the incidental causes that go to support the tale throughout are matters of great moment to all Americans.

The New Dawn

By AGNES C. LAUT

Illustrated by Jean Paleologue. 12mo. $1.35 net. Postage 12 cents.

We are always sure of a good story from Miss Laut, and the present story is about the biggest thing she has ever done. There is a vastness in conception and a concentration in strength in the narrative that is remarkable.

The Memoirs of Mimosa

Edited by ANNE ELLIOT

12mo. Illustrated Jacket, $1.25 net. Postage 10 cents.

The intimate confession of a brilliant yet undisciplined woman, who resolves "to live every moment of her life," and succeeds in doing so. One of the most delightful books of the year.

The Cur and the Coyote

By EDWARD PEPLE

Author of "A Night Out," "The Prince Chap." Illustrated by E. L. Goldberg. 50 cents net. Postage 5 cents.

The thousands of readers who have so often laughed over "A Night Out" will gladly welcome this new story by the same author.

When Mother Lets Us Act

By STELLA G. S. PERRY

8vo. Illustrated. Cloth, 75 cents net. Postage, 8 cents.

This is the ninth in number of the very well known WHEN MOTHER LETS US series. Mrs. Perry has written what will undoubtedly be one of the most popular of the series.

NEW BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS

THE MONROE DOCTRINE, AN OBSOLETE SHIBBOLETH.

By HIRAM BINGHAM, Ph. D., F. R. G. S.

Twice brought before the Congress of the United States, quoted on three continents, and reprinted within three weeks of publication, is, in brief, the brilliant career of this book. It is not only "good reading," but epoch-making.

12mo. Cloth binding. Gilt top. 154 pages. Price $1.15 net. Postage 10 cents extra.

POPULAR GOVERNMENT, ITS ESSENCE, ITS PERMANENCE AND ITS PERILS.

By WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT, LL. D., D. C. L.

Woman's Suffrage, Socialism, Initiative, Referendum, and Recall, the Supreme Court, and Congress are some of the phases of popular Government which Prof. Taft considers. Some he favors, and to several he is opposed. His two notable addresses before the American Bar Association meeting at Montreal in September are included in the volume.

12mo. Cloth binding. Gilt top, 283 pages. Price $1.15 net. Postage 10 cents extra.

EARTH HUNGER AND OTHER ESSAYS.

By the late WILLIAM GRAHAM SUMNER, LL. D. Edited with an Introduction by Albert Galloway Keller, Ph. D.

Professor Sumner made generations of men think. These essays, many of them his famous classroom lectures, are going to make men—and women—keep on thinking; and, of even more importance, teach them to think clearly as they ponder the social issues of the times.

8vo. Cloth binding. Gilt top, 374 pages. Price $2.25 net. Postage 20 cents extra.

CHAUCER.

Edited, with Notes, Glossary, etc., by HENRY NOBLE MacCRACKEN, Ph. D.

Published in October, this work has already been adopted for use in English courses by such leading institutions as Yale, Columbia, Brown, Smith and Wellesley. Its value, however, is far beyond that of the ordinary text-book and is therefore not accurately measured even by these endorsements. The volume will be welcomed not only by the teacher and student, but by the general reader.

12mo. Cloth binding. 713 pages. Price, Regular Edition, $2.50 net; postage 16 cents extra. College Edition, $1.50 net; postage 16 cents extra.

POLITICIAN, PARTY AND PEOPLE.

By HENRY CROSBY EMERY, Ph. D., LL. D.

The Chairman of the United States Tariff Commission knows politics in practice, the Professor of Political Economy at Yale knows them in theory. Professor Emery, with experience in each of these chairs, writes of politics, then, as few men could. His book is destined to make elections less corrupt.

Western Letters and Journals

Edited, with an Introduction and Notes,

By JOHN H. WILLIAMS

Author of "The Mountain That Was 'God,'" "The Guardians of the Columbia," etc.

Royal 8vo, 500 pages, with 16 plates in color, 64 halftones, and 60 other illustrations, showing the great scenery of the Northwest, reproductions of celebrated historical pictures, Indians and Indian Life, portraits, etc., etc.

Bound in ½ vellum (leather), with silk cloth sides, gilt tops and boxed.

Price $5.00 net; express 30 cents extra

Winthrop's fascinating romance of travel remains our most vital picture of conditions in Washington and Oregon during the territorial period, sixty years ago. The value of his book, for all who are interested in Western history and adventure, has been doubled by the addition of his letters and diaries, which cover his entire stay on the Pacific Coast, beginning at San Francisco early in 1853, and closing with his overland trip East via Salt Lake City in October.

Put This Fiction on Your Gift Lists

T. TEMBAROM
By FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT

The latest and greatest success by the Princess of Story-tellers. Everybody loves T. Tembarom. And the Boston Transcript calls it: "An old-fashioned tale that is sometimes romantic, sometimes realistic, sometimes plausible, but always enjoyable. . . . Mrs. Burnett's skill is the skill of the born teller of tales." Charles S. Chapman has illustrated the book delightfully and in an entirely new manner. Price $1.40 net, postage 12 cents.

WESTWAYS
By Dr. S. WEIR MITCHELL

Whose "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker" ranks as the great novel of the American Revolution and one of the most brilliant and powerful novels of our times. Many readers consider "Westways" Dr. Mitchell's greatest work. Price 1.40 net, postage 12 cents.

JOHN BARLEYCORN
By the author of "The Call of the Wild"

First and foremost a powerful, gripping story—JACK LONDON'S own story of what life has brought him, and of his experiences with alcohol. The eight full-page illustrations by Dunn have caught the spirit of the book finely. Price $1.30 net, postage 12 cents.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CAMILLA
By GERTRUDE HALL

Not since Miss Sedgwick's "Tante" have the publishers issued a more distinguished piece of literature than this story of a fascinating Italian adventuress, whose days are crowded with color and adventure. Frontispiece by W. P. King. Price $1.30 net, postage 13 cents.

THE TINDER BOX
By MARIA THOMPSON DAVIESS, author of that saucy and joyous success, "The Melting of Molly."

A whimsical comedy, written with deliciously flavored sentences around the old mate-motif, from such a modern feminist viewpoint that every reader feels both charmed and challenged to the point of a personal response. Delicious illustrations by John Edwin Jackson. Price $1.00 net, postage 7 cents.

THE WHITE LINEN NURSE

The irresistible new book by the author of "Molly Make-Believe." In which Eleanor Hallowell Abbott has achieved an idyllic love story out of the strangest human elements that were ever compounded in fiction. The Century Co.'s attractive new Holiday Catalogue contains, among many other helpful suggestions for holiday planning, a "Classified List of Books for Young Folks," which gives wide choice of some of the very best books for children ever published. Sent on post-card request.

THE CENTURY CO., Union Square, New York

This announcement is more than an advertisement. It is the first news of some books of a distinctive kind which are just ready at every book store.

A BEAUTIFUL LEATHER BOOK WITH A HEART INSIDE IT

Twelve of them, in fact, so that every individual taste may be supplied. Before now you have found the Rubaiyat, Browning and the Christmas Carol in leather bindings. But here are Henry van Dyke, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Albert Bigelow Paine, Owen Wister and others—the refreshingly new and modern writers—in a distinctly bookish and tasteful leather binding. These twelve books are the few, selected from the many, written at different times—not for any series—now offered to you because they are specially suitable for Christmas giving and all-the-year-'round reading.

Overworked adjectives can hardly describe the good taste, the special quality, of these books. So here are the bare facts of their making:

Size, extra tall 16mo.; bound in full sheep; flexible; colors French blue, cochineal red, apple green, bottle green; antique tinted end-papers; rough edges; gilt tops; wide margins; full gilt stamping on covers; glacine wrappers; enclosed in colored cardboard slip case with paper label. Many of the books have frontispieces in colors.

Each Book Was Written for One Reason—Because the Spirit of Sympathy Was Aroused—It Had to be Written

You can compliment the taste of each friend, for these books are varied. The Christmas spirit shines brilliantly in their pages, whether the particular story is about Christmas or not. Many of us are a bit tired of the so-called Christmas story, and several of these books are for just such tastes.

A little glimpse of each book is given below as a guide to help you in placing your friends among them. The descriptions of the stories are, of course, too brief to do more than indicate what they are. Here, as in the beautiful appearance of the books, you must see for yourself. Go to the nearest bookstore—and at the first opportunity you have, for it may solve a large part of your Christmas problem.

THE STORY OF THE OTHER WISE MAN By Henry van Dyke

The beautiful fancy of a fourth Magi who sought "Him who is born in Bethlehem." The story has been translated into many foreign languages, including Turkish and Bengali.

"PEANUT" By Albert Bigelow Paine

He is a very poor little boy and his home is far away among the hills; but he is loyal in his friendship even to the memory of the desperado who was good to him, and about whom he will believe no ill.

THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER By Clarence B. Kelland

A part of the price of the great Betrayal slips from the palm of Judas down through the ages. The story is dramatic as a play, with the spiritual appeal of a poetic allegory. A rare Christmas book.

FINDING HIS SOUL By Norman Duncan

A big-hearted, merry man, a hustler, is one of the best traveling salesmen in his line. His little boy dies, and the cruel blow unhinges his reason. The firm sends him abroad. On Christmas Eve, among the hills of Bethlehem, he has a wonderful experience.

THE MANSION By Henry van Dyke

In this new story spiritual truth burns radiantly in the lamp of fiction—so beautiful, so deeply spiritual, that it satisfies the reader while it stirs his conscience.

THE ROAD TO JOY By Louise Collier Willcox

This is a book that will guide the reader along the path of contentment. It is a guide-book of the road to joy, pointing out the heights from which the goal may best be viewed, the spots where the traveler should linger, the paths he should avoid.

LINCOLN AND THE SLEEPING SENTINEL By L. E. Chittenden

A young soldier—a boy he was, half dead with fatigue—relieving a sick comrade on watch, and then falling asleep at his post—the soldier's shame, his dishonor, and his saving by Lincoln.

JONATHAN AND DAVID By Elizabeth Stuart Phelps

This is a simple village story, with an old man's gentle character and affection for his dog as the governing motive. It belongs to that class of stories that take hold by reason of their sincerity and unaffected pathos.

THE APPLE TREE COTTAGE By Elinor Macartney Lane

A little pastel sketch in apple-green—a story light and delicate and fresh as the Summer sea itself, and a flower-bordered cottage by its side, where "he and she" are all that count in the gold-and-blue Summer setting. Illustrations in color by Frank Craig.

THE TOY SHOP. A Story of Lincoln By Margarita Spalding Gerry

The kind of story that brings a lump to the throat. Here is Lincoln visiting a toy-shop on a Winter evening to buy tin soldiers for his little son, and talking with the old toy-maker, veteran of Napoleon's wars.

PADRE IGNACIO By Owen Wister

On the Californian coast, at the parish of Santa Ysabel del Mar, Padre Ignacio, once a member of the gay world, has found "contentment in renunciation." But temptation comes upon him.

COMRADES By Elizabeth Stuart Phelps

A Civil War veteran, who has outlived all his companions, goes forth alone on Memorial Day to decorate their graves. His wife's devotion makes him realize that the title of comrade belongs to her even more than to the men who fell by his side.

Why Give a Christmas Card When You Can Give a Real and a Beautiful Book?

The price of these books has been fixed at the lowest possible figure which would give you these new, fresh books in a leather binding of genuine worth. They sell for $1 each—at the bookstore nearest you.

HARPER & BROTHERS

In order that the public may not be disappointed, the publishers have made special arrangements to place quantities of these books at all stores, so that early selections may be made. If, however, you are not able to get those you wish, send immediately to the publishers and get the books by mail.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, NOV. 28, 1913.

LORD COWDRAY'S OIL FIELDS.

The ending of Lord COWDRAY'S negotiations for oil field concessions in Colombia was not due to the opposition of our Government, or to any influence we have exerted at Bogota. Lord COWDRAY'S firm, PEARSON & Son, announce that Lord MURRAY of Elibank has withdrawn the contract "owing to the political "feeling that was engendered by the "negotiations." The report of an interview with Lord COWDRAY sent by the London correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning indicates that the political feeling referred to is that of the Colombian Government and people. Nevertheless, the British Company's renunciation of its design to secure important oil field concessions in Colombia, concessions which appeared to open the way for monopoly control, though this was denied, will be received with satisfaction in this country, and notably at Washington. The construction of railways and pipe lines for bringing the product to the coast and of docks and harbor facilities were a part of the plans of PEARSON & Son. It could not escape attention that the seaport where the oil from the interior was to be delivered would be rather near the Panama Canal. It is only natural that our Government and our people should have taken note of that fact. An oil port will in the immediate future be the equivalent of a coaling station.

By a purely accidental coincidence the announcement of Lord COWDRAY'S withdrawal from his oil undertakings in Colombia was made on the same day with the publication of the news of the launching of the Warspite, the second of Great Britain's oil-burning battleships. Her tanks will contain 4,000 tons of oil, enough, it is said, for a voyage around the world. She is to carry eight 15-inch guns and guns capable of being used against airships. A few months ago Mr. WINSTON CHURCHILL, the First Lord of the Admiralty, said it was the policy of the British Government to establish British control over oil supplies sufficient to remove all anxiety about navy fuel in time of war. Plans for the establishment by any European Power of a coaling station near the Caribbean terminus of the canal would, of course, be a matter of very serious concern to us. An oil fuel station is the same thing, or soon will be. Still, the present anxiety about Tuxpan would indicate that every oil station of the future should have fortifications and a garrison.

The public has no information that we have taken any particular official notice of the proposed Colombian oil concessions to Lord COWDRAY'S company, but Lord COWDRAY insists that "misrepresentations of the concession in the American press" influenced Lord MURRAY'S withdrawal. It is more probable that the objections of Colombia herself to making contracts which would grant the right to develop oil fields anywhere within her territory have been the controlling influence in the matter. There is an apparent confirmation of this view in the statement of PEARSON & Son that "it is impossible to carry on the "oil industry in undeveloped countries without the encouragement "and support of the Government." The reference must be to the Colombian Government.

We could not, save for the most serious reasons, stand in the way of the development of the resources of Colombia or any other South American country in a manner that would result in economic gain to the country in question. But it would be far preferable from our point of view, from any point of view, that the resources of our sister republics should be developed by their own people. This is the plain meaning of that passage of President WILSON'S address at Mobile in which he spoke of the employment of foreign capital in the Latin-American republics:

> There is one peculiarity about the history of the Latin-American States which I am sure they are keenly aware of. You hear of concessions to foreign capitalists in Latin-America. You do not hear of concessions to foreign capitalists in the United States. They are not granted concessions. They are invited to make investments. The work is ours, though they are welcome to invest in it. We do not ask them to supply the capital and do the work. It is an invitation, not a privilege, and States that are obliged, because their territory does not lie within the main field of modern enterprise and action, to grant concessions, are in this condition, that foreign interests are apt to dominate their domestic affairs, a condition of affairs always dangerous and apt to become intolerable.

What these States are going to seek, therefore, is an emancipation from the subordination which has been inevitable to foreign enterprise and an assertion of the splendid character which, in spite of these difficulties, they have again and again been able to demonstrate.

If Colombia has been influenced by the President's words to reconsider what seemed to be her intention to make important oil-field concessions to an English company, the congratulations offered to her will be due also to Mr. WILSON. The first fruits of his good counsel are important, and Colombia's example is one that may be generally followed with advantage.

HUERTA'S WANING POWER.

The few public critics of President WILSON'S Mexican policy profess to believe that the situation in our sister republic would have been less perilous if HUERTA'S Government had been recognized by the United States, whereas it should be obvious that recognition of HUERTA would not have saved Mexico from the shame of the murder of Senator DOMINGUEZ or the suppression of a Congress which had dared to criticise the Dictator's actions. HUERTA, recognized as President, might have been temporarily stronger, but even that is doubtful. Certainly, his career in office since last March has justified President WILSON'S distrust of him, while the course of events in Mexico continues to show the wisdom of the policy of our Government.

The boasts of HUERTA'S military strength have been shown to be empty. Against the guerrilla warfare of VILLA in the north he has made no headway whatever. Of the dimensions of the "victory" of VILLA we have no authoritative information. There was fighting, undoubtedly, and men were killed, and the unquestioned result is that, whether the Federal forces were numerous or the reverse, they are much further from Ciudad Juarez than they were a few days ago. Obviously, HUERTA can do nothing to restore order in the north, while in the oil country, around Tuxpam and Tampico, the rebels seem to be in control, and still nearer the capital that most picturesque and murderous of all recent Mexican liberators, EMILIANO ZAPATA, has taken to the warpath again and is threatening destruction for all and sundry.

In the circumstances, who can believe that the boastful Dictator, who asserted a few weeks ago that he had 80,000 armed men in the field, is ever going to re-establish peace in Mexico? Since he has been in office he has made no progress whatever. His administration has been disgraced by assassination and shameful abuse of authority and the end of his rule is clearly in sight. Patient waiting, in this crisis, is clearly a wiser policy than intervention. We still hope that the intelligent Mexican citizens will find a safe way out of their trouble.

PROGRESSIVE TAMMANY.

Albany dispatches report that Mr. ROBERT F. WAGNER, now Lieutenant Governor as well as Tammany's Senate leader, has expressed his organization's assent to the passage of a bill in December providing for a Constitutional Convention. If the people assent by their vote next Spring, delegates will be chosen in the ensuing Fall elections, and the convention for which the Progressives are clamoring will consider in 1915 the questions of the initiative, referendum, and the recall of Judges and other officers.

Mr. MURPHY and his followers can afford to take the risk. The leader of Tammany knows, if anybody knows, that a popular vote does not always express a mature popular opinion. Of the thirty-seven referendums taken in Oregon last year many were afterward found to serve selfish political purposes, many were jumbled in their wording and intent, and the voters could take little time to consider any of them before signifying their "Yes" or "No." The initiative has again and again been used for so-called reactionary purposes. This is natural, since its principle is that initiative shall originate, not in the public at large, but in an individual or a small group of voters, who insist that the public shall vote on questions in which it may not be interested. No one ever observed that Mr. MURPHY lacked initiative. As for the recall, Mayor HOADLEY, the reform head of the Commission Government in Ocean City, N. J., will testify that the hundred signatures required for the petition to recall him last December were gotten by machine politicians. They accused him of extravagance, just as Tammany in the late campaign accused the Fusion Board of Estimate of extravagance. Tammany, with the power of the recall in its hands, might take advantage of public feeling at some moment to replace a member of that board with a candidate more to its liking.

The three precious reforms would serve merely to overburden still more the heavy and complex election machinery by the running of which the politicians profit. It is already too complex for the voters. Most elections go by default. That is why the politicians are satisfied without adding to its complexity. But if the addition is all that is needed to make Tammany look progressive, Tammany is prepared to oblige those who call for it.

There is but one thing the machines need fear in the calling of a Constitutional Convention. If its delegates should be pledged to the principle of simplifying the election machinery, making all the minor elective offices appointive, so that the State and city tickets would be no longer than the national ticket, that would spell death to the machines. Mr. MURPHY would throw up his job, and in the Mayor and Governor the people would have responsible "bosses" of the right sort.

THE TRAFFIC SQUAD.

Is it because the streets of this city are becoming less congested that the squad of police detailed to guard traffic has been reduced within two years from 800 to 500? Chief Magistrate MCADOO, formerly Police Commissioner, remarks that in London every policeman is a traffic guardian. He notes also that in the part of the city below Central Park where the congestion is greatest and where most fatal accidents occur the number of arrests for violation of the automobile law is fewer than in sparsely settled districts.

Anybody who will stop at a crowded crossing and observe how motor cars speed by without stopping or giving eight feet clearance to street cars that have halted will wonder that many more people are not killed. The reckless drivers are quick to note any relaxation of police vigilance. The deaths in the streets of New York are more numerous than in any other of the world's great cities. Does not Commissioner WALDO appreciate this fact?

GOV. GLYNN AND THE MERIT SYSTEM.

It will be well for Gov. GLYNN to keep a sharp eye on the action of the Civil Service Commissioners whom he inherits from the erratic administration of Gov. SULZER. We note that the National Child Labor Committee—a highly respectable and disinterested organization devoted to the wholesome regulation of the labor of children—have brought to the attention of the Governor a ruling of the commission which is distinctly bad for the service. It exempts from competitive examination the chief investigator of the Bureau of Industries and Immigration, and, necessarily, opens the way to the exercise of political or personal favoritism in that important office. The committee ask the Governor to refuse to sign this order. "The Bureau," they say, "has "never been in politics and we can- "not too strongly urge the impor- "tance of the best possible appoint- "ment through competitive examina- "tion." We sincerely trust that the Governor will see his way clear to comply with this request.

It is not generally understood to what extent the Governor is directly responsible for the application of the merit system. The Civil Service Commissioners are selected by him to advise him as to the rules and regulations under the civil service law, but no ruling or order of the commission is valid until approved by the Governor. As he can change the membership of the commission at any moment, subject only to the requirement that the minority party must be represented on it, it will be seen that his control is complete. Moreover, the Governor is charged with the support of the Constitution, and the principle of the merit system is distinctly embodied in the Constitution. That instrument requires that all appointments shall be made for merit and fitness only, to be ascertained by examinations which, when practicable, shall be competitive. Thus, to justify the exemption of any appointment from the fair test of competition, it must be shown, and shown clearly, that the test is impracticable. The burden of proof lies with those who propose the exemption. Other things being equal, it is the plain duty of the Governor to see that the competitive test is applied.

As we have intimated, the Civil Service Commissioners, left over from the administration of Mr. SULZER, are not at all inclined to be faithful in advising the Governor to carry out this principle. On the contrary, from an early period in their none-too-creditable career, we have been compelled to point out many violations of it. The Commissioners have been particularly pliant in matters in which the labor politicians are concerned, and, under Mr. SULZER, they attempted, too often successfully, to lower the bars in the interest of this persistent and ingenious class. Poor Gov. SULZER seemed to know little and care less about his obligations to the merit system, and the whole business fell into a disgraceful muddle, in which the spoilsmen generally carried their schemes.

Certainly Gov. GLYNN is a very different sort of man from the sly, shallow, shifty SULZER. He has brains and experience and a will of his own. He has publicly set for himself high and worthy aims in connection with the efficiency and honesty of the State service. He can in no way more substantially promote those aims than by the strict, intelligent, impartial, and practical enforcement of the constitutional requirements as to merit and fitness in appointments. The first step in this direction is to hold a firm hand over his Commissioners, to make them understand that he will approve no exemptions from the constitutional test unless it is affirmatively shown that the test is clearly impracticable. If he does this, he may get along with the present commission, but we doubt it. Probably it would be better to select a stronger, abler, and more faithful set of men.

HOLIDAY BOOK NUMBER.

Among the noteworthy contributions to the Holiday Number of THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW, to be published Sunday, apart from the four articles by experts, discussing recent literature pertaining to such vital topics as feminism, socialism, eugenics, and man's belief in the persistence of life after death, are some by novelists of distinction on their observations, theories, and personal prejudices, which are of unusual interest. MARY WATTS, THEODORE DREISER, CONINGSBY DAWSON, ANN. WARWICK, and KATE LANGLEY BOSHER are among these contributors. FRANCES MORRIS, Curator of the department of laces at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, reviews ELIZA RICCI'S remarkable book on "Old Italian Laces"; Dr. JOSEPH JACOBS contributes a scholarly article on the "Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha in English," which is no dry discussion of the subject, but one which will interest and inform the ordinary reader; and JULES GUERIN, the famous painter and illustrator, tells of his recent voyage in the Near East with ROBERT HICHENS.

These pages of the most notable special number dealing with literature ever issued by a daily newspaper are scarcely less important than the articles by Miss GLASGOW, Dr. DAVENPORT, ALGERNON LEE, and HENRY M. ALDEN, to which we have already referred, while the list of the best 100 books of 1913, specially selected by Prof. JOHN ERSKINE and his associates of the Department of English, Columbia University, (every book named in which is made the subject of an explanatory article,) constitutes in itself a feature that would give distinction to any publication.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Seemingly Lacks Feasibility.

Some suggestions which, though perhaps of somewhat dubious practicability, are novel and interesting, have been offered for consideration at the Conference on Safety at Sea by Prof. FRED HARSLEY, sometime Fellow of Manchester University, and now Lecturer at the University of Berlin.

While commending the plan, already in partial and occasional execution by this country and others, of stationing Government boats in parts of the open sea to give warning of ice and danger from derelicts, Prof. HARSLEY contends that this should be done systematically and by international co-operation among the nations interested in maritime commerce. He would have these internationalized vessels, however, do much more than merely signal the existence of the common nautical perils. Not only does he propose that scientists on board of them should take continuous observations in the common interests of world meteorology and biology, but he would give them a still higher function—that of acting as guards of the high seas and enforcing the observance there by all nations at all times of the same respect for neutral territory that civilized Governments now show on land.

What he proposes is that the open ocean, though still to be treated as belonging to all as a pathway for war as well as peace, should never be used as the scene of naval combats. Reversing the ancient rule, he insists that all sea fighting, like all land fighting, should be done in the possession of one or the other combatant. This, for sea fighters, would be within the three-mile distance from shore, or some reasonable extension of that familiar limit if its increase should be deemed necessary.

One objection to this scheme is that it would or might very seriously imperil life and property ashore, and another is that no guard boat could possibly enforce any such regulation on hostile ships larger or better armed than itself. It could simply report the violation to an international tribunal likely long to remain imaginary—a dream the beauty of which is a matter of opinion unfortunately not yet unanimous. Until after the millennium arrives, really to keep the peace at sea would seemingly require the building of another navy, owned by everybody and nobody, greater than any now in existence, manned by impossibly disinterested officers and crews, and ready to resort, in case of need, to desperately unpeaceful measures.

Fine as a Source of Revenue.

A committee of the French Senate, after considering for several years that country's declining birth rate with the seriousness it deserves, is reported to have drawn a bill, soon to be presented for legislative action, which will impose a special tax on both bachelors and husbands with no children. Every one of these, if the law passes, will give the State $18 annually, and, though the man with one child is let off for two-thirds of that amount, and the man with two for one-third of it, not less than three will earn full exemption, that number being considered necessary in each family even to keep the population of the country at its present level.

That the Senators are of single purpose in the formulation of this scheme is made a little, or more than a little, doubtful by the satisfaction with which they announce that it will increase the nation's revenues by something like $100,000,000 a year. Of course, if it achieved the avowed object of booming the cradle market in France it would be no such money-maker as that, and, whatever the measure of success attained, by just so much would the tax on celibacy and sterility be decreased.

As a lessened birth rate has everywhere and always accompanied advancing civilization among men, just as it accompanies higher organization among animals, attempts at its prevention or reversal are rather hopeless. Statutory law has the hardest sort of an antagonist in natural law, and has never beaten it yet.

If the French statesmen are really worried about what looks like the slow extinction of their estimable and able race, probably the most and best they can do is by the wisdom of their rule to make France economically prosperous. Good times and high birth rates do tend to coincide, in spite of the fact that the larger families are everywhere among the poorer people and the smaller ones among those better able to provide for them. The problem is an enormously complex one, and only a wild optimist expects to solve it by the simple expedient of putting an $18 tax on the childless.

The dispatches at hand do not state whether or not the plan includes the exemption of fathers whose children are dead. It shouldn't. While the Senators are about it, why don't they put a still heavier tax on fathers who let the children they do have die of preventable diseases, and the largest of all on those whose children are of such evil heredity or environment as to become a burden to the State? There would be a fine consistency about that!

Reflections After a Turkey.

Certain troublesome people have been loudly protesting, this week, that the turkey is not, in right and propriety, the bird with which to grace—or weight—the table on Thanksgiving Day. He should be reserved, they said, for the more gladsome hilarities of Christmas.

This is nonsense, certainly, and, from a New Englander's standpoint, it is heresy—two words which, come to think of it, mean about the same thing.

The only reason given for attacking our settled beliefs as to Thanksgiving fare is the poor one that dead turkeys are apt to "spoil" in the warm spells so common in late November, while the chances of their "keeping" are better a month later. But the turkey will stand high temperatures as well as ducks or geese, or any of the suggested substitutes, and, a conclusive answer in the opinion of some, having eaten turkey at Thanksgiving, the inevitable task is performed and the prospect of getting something else at Christmas—something that will not reappear in one obnoxious form or another for many a dreary meal thereafter—is much improved.

If people only didn't think it a sort of religious duty to buy big turkeys when they buy any, it wouldn't be so bad. Then the dry and fibrous creatures wouldn't lag so long superfluous on the domestic bill of fare, not good enough to eat, but just too good to give the dog.

As a comestible, the turkey ranks considerably above the owl and the crow; all other fowls are his superior, except when he goes to the block very, very young, which he almost never does.

DEFENDS ZELAYA'S ACT.

Execution of Rebel Spies Decreed by Court-Martial.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A recent dispatch in THE TIMES stated, among other things, that "the chief crime charged to Zelaya was the killing of two Americans in Nicaragua four years ago." As one intimately connected with the principals in this affair, permit me to offer a few corrections.

Leroy Cannon and Leonard Groce, the two victims of this Nicaraguan court-martial, were not true American citizens. Both had become legally naturalized as Nicaraguan citizens, both had voted in Nicaraguan elections, both had taken up Nicaraguan property, both had married Nicaraguan wives, and both had taken up arms in a Nicaraguan civil war. When they were caught lurking in the bushes on the river bank immediately after the explosion of a submerged mine under the stern of the regular passenger steamer Diamante, serving for the moment as a troop ship, they were found with paraphernalia of their infernal machine on their persons. The spot in which they were caught was a desolate place, remote from any human habitation. Their own homes were at Bluefields, on the coast, several hundred miles away. Both prisoners confessed before the court-martial that they had been hired to commit this act by Gen. Emiliano Chamorro, then engaged in a military rebellion against Gen. Zelaya, the President of Nicaragua.

A court-martial was duly convened on the spot and went through all the regular forms for the trial of prisoners of war prescribed by the military law of that country. The third prisoner, a Frenchman, was acquitted on the ground that he was merely a servant who did not understand the purport of the crime of his employers. (He pleaded, and Cannon and Groce corroborated him, that his masters pretended to him that they merely intended to dynamite a school of fish in the river.)

The "Americans," who were captured in the disguise of civilians, though it was clearly established and freely confessed by them that they had been duly commissioned officers in the rebel army, were found guilty of the military crime of "espionage and attempted assassination of soldiers and of innocent civilian passengers," so they were sentenced to be executed, according to the law of the land. President Zelaya, as commander in chief of the army, after receiving and reviewing the proceedings of the court-martial, telegraphically approved the sentence. EDWIN EMERSON.

INCOME TAX FAULTS.

Puts Extra Burden on Married Couples Living Together.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would like to say a few words about two clauses in the new income tax law. One relates to the exemption for only two children, utterly ignoring any provision for a larger number in a family. The other is alluded to by a correspondent in your columns signing herself "A Business Woman." She gives an illustration of a married couple, each having an independent income of $3,000 a year, who, if unmarried, would escape being taxed, but when married are obliged to pay $20 a year for the privilege of living together.

Your correspondent remarks that a couple who would be unwilling to pay that sum yearly for this privilege must need very little incentive for divorce. This is undoubtedly true. No doubt a married couple with ordinary affection for each other would be willing to pay an even larger sum rather than be forced to separate. But the question is, Is it well for the Government to be willing to levy a tax, however small, not only on individual thrift, energy, and enterprise, but also upon gentle, natural human affections, such as marriage and parenthood, all of which have hitherto been considered important factors in the development of civilization?

A "Titanic" Epitaph.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent tragedy of the Volturno has reminded me of the splendid passage in Walt Whitman's "Song for All Seas, All Ships." These fine words of the burly old enigma are the true epitaph for the Titanic, the Volturno, and all that have gone down doing their duty. Will not the White Star Line put them up somewhere on their ships in memory of that April night?

Flaunt out, O sea, your separate flags of nations!
Flaunt out visible as ever the various ship-signals!
But do you reserve especially for yourself and for the soul of man one flag above all the rest,
A spiritual woven signal for all nations, emblem of man elate above death,
Token of all brave captains and all intrepid sailors and mates,
And all that went down doing their duty,
Reminiscent of them, twined from all intrepid captains young or old,
A pennant universal, subtly waving all time, o'er all brave sailors,
All seas, all ships.

"The Last Word" on Suffrage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A new magazine, opposing woman suffrage, comes from New Canaan, Conn., and is entitled The Reply. It reads like a very cogent publication, but why call it The Reply? As it is seeking subscribers, why not call it The Last Word? Then all the women, regardless of politics, would have it or explode in the effort. W. J. L.

FARM COLONY PRISONS.

Authorities on Penology Testify to Their Success.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg to indorse Adolph Lewisohn's idea of a farm industrial prison instead of the present Sing Sing. Now is the time to act. I quote from the late Edmond Kelly's "Elimination of the Tramp," (prefaces by R. W. Hebberd, R. F. Cutting, and R. W. de Forest,) Page 85:

> The forced labor colony at Witswyl is practically a penitentiary. It receives all persons convicted of misdemeanors. But by the side of the forced labor colonies there subsist the old penitentiaries, where a severe discipline is maintained. It seems probable that the old penitentiaries are still used only because they are there, and that ultimately all penitentiaries and even State prisons will be slowly converted into farm colonies. * * * A very large number of men can be put to work on a very small space and thus made to recover bodily health, nervous tone, and laborious habits with the least possible expense.

This was written in 1908.

Mr. Lewisohn also advocates developing the honor system as an important feature of the farm industrial colony. Now let us see what Messrs. William R. George and Lyman Beecher Stowe have to say on this aspect of the subject in "Citizens Made and Remade," (1912,) Page 256:

> The Sheriff of a county in Vermont is allowing his prisoners to go out to work by the day on neighboring farms. They pay the county for board and lodging an amount equal to about two-thirds of their wages. They go back and forth to their work without guard or anything to distinguish them from ordinary workers. * * *.
>
> In the States of Colorado, Oregon, and Washington the more trustworthy of the convicts are allowed to live in unguarded camps while working on the roads. Before going into these camps they swear on their honor that they will not attempt to escape. In Colorado, where they have been tested longest, less than 1 per cent. have violated their pledges. * * *
>
> In Ohio and several other States experiments of a somewhat similar nature are being tried. Whether these particular experiments succeed or fail, they nevertheless express an irresistible impulse of the times—an impulse which cannot itself fail because it expresses fundamental truths. * * *

Thinks Eggs Are Harmful.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A physician of fifty years' practice, Dr. Sims, at present living in the Hotel Empire, known the country over as an authority on human physiognomy, his work on that subject being in the New York Public Library, said to me recently: "Don't eat eggs; eggs contain lime; lime is dead matter. Eat food containing live matter."

He says that he gave up eating eggs many years ago, as he found that they were conducive to paralysis, particularly of the arms. My own experience confirms this. Last Spring I habitually ate eggs for noonday luncheon. I found that in the afternoon, when I had worked a couple of hours, my left arm commenced to get numb, and the hand partially paralyzed. Since I have given up eating eggs, however, I have never suffered in the slightest degree from such symptoms. I know of nothing else that could have brought about the change.

Can Wall Street "Bear" It?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I understand that business is at a standstill in Wall Street. This is so sad that I am constrained to inquire why the brokers don't get together and bear the egg market. Somebody outside of the Street has bulled it to the limit and it is a shame for the bears to be hibernating down there and sucking their paws with such an opportunity before them to wake up and do something.

Decreased Egg Consumption.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The consumption of eggs in this country is about eighteen dozen per year per person. But that average was never struck with prices as they now are. The present consumption is about one-twelfth of a dozen per person every other week, and that on a doctor's prescription. W. J.

Fire Sprinklers on Ships.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Had the steamer Volturno been equipped with automatic fire sprinklers a great calamity might have been averted and the ship saved. They are easily installed at a low cost by the steamfitters on board. Steam could also be turned into them at any time, which is also a great fire extinguisher.

Free Organ Recitals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I feel it my duty to call the attention of your music-loving readers to a splendid series of concerts that may be attended absolutely free of cost. I refer to the Sunday afternoon organ recitals now being given under the auspices of the Board of Education at the Ethical Culture Meeting House, Sixty-fourth Street and Central Park West. This course of musical lectures has been but recently instituted, and while it has already proved very popular, is not as widely known as it ought to be.

I cannot urge too strongly upon the music-loving public a pilgrimage to the hall of the Ethical Culture Society next Sunday afternoon at 4. K. W. W.

An Epicurean's Thanksgiving.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How far has the custom spread of eating only a little on Thanksgiving Day? I have several friends whom I have questioned recently on this point, and I have been surprised to find a large proportion of them following the custom which I have adopted in recent years. Their wish is the same as mine, to avoid the headaches, colds, and biliousness that are the aftermaths of stuffing.

THE MILITANT SPEAKS.

A thief has stolen my purse!
I have pleaded in vain
To his heart and his brain!
The rascal, to make matters worse,
Laughs long in my face!
I pleaded a space,
Then went to the law—the just law of our land—
And asked it to give back my own to my hand.
Refused! I was worsted by wrong and by right.
Where lies my redress? It is only in might!

My birthright was stolen from me!
It was torn from my hand
By man—in this land,
This glorious land of the free!
I have pleaded in vain
My right to regain—
Have pleaded with patience, with wisdom and skill;
I have been to the courts; I have struggled until
The pain of resentment makes righteousness bold.
My birthright is mine! More, far more, than my gold,
I prize the possession inborn of my soul!

Where now lies redress? Shall the rascals who stole
Hold, aye, until death,
What is more than my breath?
Ah, sad is the need—
Sad and shameful the sight!
Still, when women are wronged
Why shouldn't they fight?

FOREIGN LECTURESHIPS.

Harvard's Proposal in 1864 Was Suspiciously Rejected.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Frank H. Vizetelly calls the attention of your readers to some features of the career of Henry Yates Thompson. Mr. Thompson is a graduate of Trinity College, Cambridge, Eng., (B. A., 1862.) As a young man he came to the United States in the tumultuous days of the civil war, traveled over various parts of the country, and was deeply impressed by what he saw. Among others who received him hospitably was the Hon. Edward Everett, once Minister to England, and ex-President of Harvard College.

While in the United States young Thompson conceived the project of having a lectureship established in Cambridge, Eng., on the "History, Literature, and Institutions of the United States of America." He was keenly appreciative of the want of information in England as to things American, "especially," as he said, "among the upper classes." Accordingly, when he returned home, he formulated with great care his novel plan. He offered to endow a lectureship, providing for a biennial course of twelve lectures during one term at Cambridge, the lecturer to be appointed by the President and Fellows of Harvard, and—in his own words—the lecturer's "sole qualifications to be American citizenship, and the opinion of his appointers that he is a fit person."

The plan of a foreign lectureship he considered so entirely novel to English authorities that he was unwilling to bring the matter in the first instance before his own university. So he sent the plan to Mr. Everett for the sake of obtaining Everett's aid in offering the scheme to Harvard, whence it could come officially to Cambridge from Harvard. Otherwise it was likely, he thought, to meet with no very serious attention. Everett's death early in 1865 no doubt delayed the plan. But it reached President Hill of Harvard in the Spring of that year, and with the full approval of the Harvard authorities was sent to the Vice Chancellor of Cambridge, Eng., by President Hill. It was already too late in the term for action, so the plan was postponed to Autumn. Rumors of it leaked out, and objections to it began to be heard long before it reached the Cambridge Senate. Meantime Mr. Thompson determined to publish the preliminary correspondence for private circulation, expecting doubtless to arouse the Cambridge Senate to the large importance of his plan. The pamphlet is an extremely rare one, the only copy known to me being at present in the library of Yale University. Stephen's biographer tells the fate of the matter as follows:

> It will probably be thought by modern readers that when Stephen told Lowell that a cry of "Socinianism" was raised this was a joke. It was nothing of the kind, * * * the drum ecclesiastic was resoundingly beaten. "Are members of the Senate aware," wrote one of the drummers, "that Harvard University, as far as it professes any form of religion, is distinctly Socinian, or, if Americans prefer the term, Unitarian"? Another gentleman thought good to say in print that by receiving a lecturer from Harvard we should "pander to that which is perhaps the worst vice inherent in the North American character, namely, SELF-CONCEIT." Such were the amenities of the time, such was the use made of capital letters, and such was the wisdom of the Senate. * * *

It may be added that James Russell Lowell would probably have been sent by Harvard as the first lecturer to Cambridge, Eng., on the new foundation, had the plan succeeded. Though it failed, it is quite too important a story to be allowed to escape the attention of people interested to-day in the larger aspects of the movement toward international comity and understanding.

EARLY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

Consumers' League Appeals to Public on Behalf of Salesgirls.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the time of the year commonly called the season of good-will and good cheer the Consumers' League perennially publishes its message reminding shoppers to complete their Christmas purchases at an early date.

This it does in an endeavor to lessen the strain and exhaustion of the large army of working women who toil in our stores and factories. The Consumers' League believes that these conditions can be avoided at the holiday season by united effort on the part of the great bulk of the buying public to shop early—early in the day and early in the season.

For thirteen years this league has waged this campaign. That public opinion is alive to the unnecessary and inhuman nature of the eleventh-hour rush has been proved by the wide response of editors, cartoonists, advertisers, and the buying public to the appeal for compassion for wearied and exhausted salesgirls, messengers, delivery men, and mail carriers.

Never again ought a civilized community permit a little boy to die of exposure because, after delivering Christmas packages until a late hour at night, he was too tired to reach his home. That tragedy happened but a few years ago in our great metropolis, where people are so busy seeking amusement and pleasure that they will not take time to select gifts for their friends until the day of reckoning is close at hand.

A WAR FOR THE BALLOT.

Suffrage Leaders May Have Trouble in Recruiting an Army.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see by THE TIMES that Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt proposes to declare war unless she soon gets the vote. This is what she says:

> I do not believe in war, but I say to you, fellow-citizens, that if the women are going on making their demand, and election after election the voters are going against them at the polls, I tell you we will not endure it.

Now, this sort of talk furnishes another specimen, among the many, of the folly of giving the franchise to women, especially to women holding Mrs. Catt's sentiments, and who aspire to be rulers. She threatens a sex war, supposedly to be fought by women. Perhaps she believes that when it comes to actual physical fighting, which is the final appeal of law and power, the women would equal the men. Well, even granting this, hadn't Mrs. Catt better wait until she has at least half of the women on her side?

She herself very well knows that all the women who favor suffrage—let alone the small portion of these who would fight for it—are only a fraction of the female population. And it would not much help matters for Mrs. Catt if she could count upon aid from that comparatively small body of the henpecked supporters, or of those vote-adoring males who favor woman suffrage for what they think there is in it for them. It would be, indeed, welcome to the male "anti" side, especially at the beginning of this sex war, before men have become accustomed to treating women antagonists as they would a mob of men, to have the aforesaid males to handle. By all means, dear General Catt, put your male supporters in a van, and let them start the fight. Be assured that if you do, the survivors, if any, will have something more than forcible feeding to complain of. W. C. C.

TRUST QUESTIONS ARE TO BE DEBATED

Civic Federation Will Consider the Need for a National Trade Commission.

A LONG REPORT IS READY

Department on Regulation of Industrial Corporations Has Studied the Subject.

The proposal that a National Interstate Trade Commission, fashioned along the lines of the Interstate Commerce Commission, should be formed to deal with problems arising from large industrial corporations will be one of the important subjects to be dealt with by the National Civic Federation at its meetings to be held on Dec. 11 and 12, at the Hotel Astor, according to a bulletin sent out yesterday.

This proposal has been the subject of study by the Federation's Department on Regulation of Industrial Corporations, and has been made the subject of a long report. The question will be considered as to whether large corporations shall be compelled or permitted to take out a Federal license and be subjected to the supervision of a commission.

No hint is given of the attitude of the department in its report. The department has investigated the suggestion that the size of industrial corporations should be limited, and has tried to get the best opinion as to what this limit should be in the event that limitation is considered desirable.

The department has endeavored to collect data on the point so often alleged that corporations sometimes become so large that they are unwieldy and therefore inefficient. The starting point was the showing of the 1910 census that the output of individual ownership and small corporations has been produced at a less cost than that of their larger competitors, the greater corporations.

The whole of the so-called problem of "regulating competition" has been exhaustively investigated with a view to determine the difference between restraint of competition and restraint of trade, and to learn whether or not competition can be regulated in such a way as to prevent that destructive competition which is assumed to be undesirable and uneconomic from the point of view of the public. The department has considered whether a regulative system can be devised which will be effective not only in protecting the public from the alleged evils which flow from a monopoly or a near monopoly, but also in preserving the alleged benefits of such a monopoly.

The question of the manufacturer's right to fix a retail price, which has been the subject of important litigation recently, has also been considered in its various aspects by the department. Another of the questions considered was whether the price cutting of department stores and other mercantile establishments has been a benefit or an injury to the public. Still another question investigated was whether or not, under the Sherman Anti-Trust act, the fixing of prices or the limitation of output by farmers is permissible.

The department will also present its views on the question as to whether or not agreements between organizations of workingmen and organizations of employers fixing rates of wages, hours of labor, and conditions of work are violations of the Sherman act, and on the related question whether or not, if illegal, such combinations should be legalized.

STEEL EARNINGS GOOD.

Editor of Poor's Manual Cites Common Stock Dividends.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the recent attack upon the Steel Corporation, evidently made for speculative purposes, some facts showing the true position of the company will be timely. I submit below figures showing the surplus available for dividends on Steel common since the organization of the Steel Corporation in April, 1901, in comparison with the earnings available for dividends on Pennsylvania Railroad stock during the same period. I hold no brief for the Steel Corporation, but merely wish to show its record from a new point of view. I have selected the Pennsylvania Railroad for comparison, first, because the Pennsylvania ranks as one of the best of the railroads, and, second, because the amount of Pennsylvania stock outstanding now about equals that of Steel common:

THREE OPERAS SUNG THANKSGIVING DAY

Wagner's "Parsifal" Excellently Given Before Holiday Matinee Throng at Metropolitan.

"MANON LESCAUT" AT NIGHT

Puccini's Opera, with Caruso, Mme. Bori, and Scotti, a Delight—"Haensel and Gretel" at Century.

Amfortas ..... Hermann Weil
Titurel ..... Carl Schlegel
Gurnemanz ..... Herbert Witherspoon
Parsifal ..... Carl Jorn
Klingsor ..... Otto Goritz
Kundry ..... Olive Fremstad
Conductor, Alfred Hertz.

"Parsifal," which was first produced on Christmas Eve, 1903, entered its eleventh season as a permanent part of the Metropolitan Opera's repertory in yesterday afternoon's holiday performance. It is the season when—after Jan. 1—the copyright on Wagner's works will expire in the countries of Europe, and performances of it will be given on every operatic stage that can compass its difficulties properly, and a good many that cannot. But there is nothing heard or the denunciations that were heaped upon New York and Heinrich Conried for profaning the masterpiece sacred to Baireuth alone, and degrading it by putting it upon a "commercial" stage, before an ordinary operatic public. The sincerity of much of this talk was tested by Mr. Conried's offer to the associated operatic managers of Germany to leave "Parsifal" alone in 1903, if they on their part would agree to leave it alone after 1913, when they, too, would come into the legal right to perform it. The result was a hasty refusal then, and universal preparation for it now.

But "Parsifal" has not been profaned by its New York productions, whatever may be the case in the minor Continental opera houses next January. These productions have been prepared with devotion and beautifully presented. They have deeply impressed their audiences, who have come to them and listened in an appropriate spirit, and who have perceived in them something apart from an ordinary operatic performance. This is as it should be. The management of the Metropolitan has shown good judgment in reserving this work for times and occasions when it can be thus given and thus received. Such was the case with yesterday's performance, and with yesterday's audience.

There have been many changes among those concerned with this performance since 1903. Mr. Hertz has never yielded the conductor's baton to another. Of the principal singers only Mr. Goritz remains, though Messrs. Reiss and Bayer still officiate as Esquire and Knight, respectively. Yet the performance to-day is the same in spirit and in effect—except as it is more perfected in detail—as it was ten years ago. It has often enough been pointed out how great are the deserts of Mr. Hertz on account of the conscience and zeal he has put into his conducting of "Parsifal"—to say nothing of his skill and comprehension of it—whereby he has retained the representation at the original high level set for them in the beginning. That was noticeably true yesterday; the performance went with remarkable smoothness and finish, with an admirable co-operation on the part of all concerned. Rarely has the orchestra sounded so beautifully rich and full without excess of sonority. With the exception of Carl Schlegel, who sang what is allotted to Titurel in the Hall of the Grail, and to the First Knight and Squire Parsifal, and sang the music of the Voice, and who both deserved commendation, all the singers had been heard here before in "Parsifal."

Puccini's "Manon Lescaut."

Manon ..... Lucrezia Bori
Lescaut ..... Antonio Scotti
Des Grieux ..... Enrico Caruso
Geronte ..... Andrea de Segurola
Edmundo ..... Angelo Bada
L'Oste ..... Paolo Ananian
Maestro di Ballo ..... Angelo Bada
Un Musico ..... Maria Duchene
Conductor, Giorgio Polacco.

In the evening the first performance this season of Puccini's "Manon Lescaut" was given, and the Italian composer's version of the Abbé Prévost's delectable story thus preceded Massenet's with which it was intended to open the season, but which had to be postponed because of Miss Geraldine Farrar's illness. Puccini's opera, one of his earliest productions, is one of his most spontaneous and charming ones. His gift of melody was abundant when he wrote "Manon Lescaut," and he made large drafts upon it. The action of the opera presupposes previous information of the course of the story on the listener's part, for the four acts are hardly more than four pictures taken from the book, but the music in them is not only melodious and vivacious, but it has also an abundance of characterization, and shows a light and dexterous touch.

Mr. Caruso was the representative of Des Grieux, a part that he sings with some of his most delightful skill. Of course his appearance made the performance notable in the public mind, and accounted for a large part of the great attendance. Mme. Lucrezia Bori had excellent opportunities as Manon, and her singing as well as her impersonation gave pleasure. Lescaut was capitally represented by Mr. Scotti, who appeared in his best voice.

The performance was under the direction of Mr. Polacco, who carried it through with fire and dramatic movement, and sometimes with a little too much tone on the part of the orchestra. It was a carefully prepared performance and was worthy of the Metropolitan's high standard.

"HAENSEL AND GRETEL."

Holiday Matinee of Humperdinck's Fairy Opera at the Century.

Peter ..... Bertram, Peacock
Gertrude ..... Cordelia Latham
Hansel ..... Gladys Chandler
Gretel ..... Mary Carson
The Witch ..... Kathleen Howard
The Sandman ..... Florence Coughlan
The Dew Fairy ..... Grace Alberta
Conductor, Carlo Nicosia.

A pleasing incident of the Thanksgiving holiday was a special afternoon performance at the Century Opera of "Hänsel and Gretel" in English. There were many children present, of a smaller and a larger growth, to whom the performance afforded evident pleasure. The performance had its merits, but it might so easily have had more that there was an almost inevitable feeling of regret in contemplating it. Mr. Nicosia, who conducted it, could scarcely be expected to have the fullest understanding of and sympathy with a work so essentially Teutonic, nor did he show them to the fullest. His tempos were not always appropriate or elastic, and certain portions of the orchestral score, such as the beautiful interlude preceding and including the apparition of the angels, had evidently been neglected in rehearsal and failed of their effect.

The singers who took part were mostly excellent; and most, not all, delivered the music in such a way that the text was easily intelligible. A general fault was over-emphasis in action and a lack of variety and restraint in singing. It would be a good deal to expect of American singers that they should find quite the right note of Teutonic naiveté, childish ingenuousness, and innocent merriment; but they could come a little nearer to the American sort. Miss Gladys Chandler gave Hänsel more pertinance, impatience, and awkwardness than was really necessary. Miss Mary Carson came nearer representing a credible and sympathetic Gretel. Both sing very agreeably. So does Mr. Bertram Peacock as Peter, but with too uniformly full a tone. Miss Cordelia Latham's diction was less good than most of her associates, and Miss Kathleen Howard mastered all the deep, dramatic significance of the witch.

The scenery was not so good as much that has been used in other productions at the Century Opera, the need for improvement being especially felt in the scene in the forest. "Hänsel and Gretel," according to the announcements, is to occupy a week later on in the season at the Century Opera. It is to be hoped that by that time a more finished and carefully studied performance will have been worked out.

"Hänsel and Gretel" was preceded by a performance by the International Ballet, a series of dances by various groups of dancers, arranged by Luigi Albertieri. These were of various national character—Russian, Slavic, Hungarian, Italian, and Spanish. These were conducted by Mr. Josef Pasternack and several of them gave the audience manifest pleasure.

DANCE AT THE WILLARD.

Washington Society at Ball in Aid of Noel House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The first large dance of the Winter took place this evening in the ballroom of the New Willard, where the managers of Noel House gave a ball in aid of this fashionable charity. Mrs. Henry Cleveland Perkins, President of the board, acted as hostess, welcoming all guests at the door of the main ballroom. Walter Tuckermann acted as floor manager.

The patronesses, many of whom brought to the ball parties of young people, included Lady Spring-Rice, wife of the British Ambassador; Mrs. Robert M. Thompson, Mrs. William J. Boardman, Mrs. Henry White, Mrs. Charles Hughes, Mrs. John Bassett Moore, Mrs. Howry, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Charles C. Glover, Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, Mrs. Henry K. Porter, Mrs. Fitzhugh, Mrs. John W. Morehead, Mrs. Seaton Schroeder, Mrs. A. M. Garlisle, Mrs. John Hay, Mrs. S. B. M. Young, Mrs. Leonard Wood, Mrs. Thomas W. Symons, Mrs. Albert Baker, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Wilmer, and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe.

Dr. and Mrs. Guy Fairfax Whiting entertained a large dinner company of young people this evening, later going on to the dance at the New Willard.

Miss Helen Taft, daughter of the former President, arrived in Washington last evening for a short visit to Miss Martha Bowers, daughter of the late Solicitor General of the State Department. Mrs Raymond Rodgers, for whom Miss Taft served as bridesmaid last April, entertained a luncheon company in her honor to-day. This evening Miss Bowers entertained a large dinner company of young people complimentary to Miss Taft. Mr. and Mrs. George Howard will give a dinner party to-morrow evening and Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Glover, Jr., a similar entertainment on Saturday evening in Miss Taft's honor.

GALA DAY AT SLEEPY HOLLOW.

Thanksgiving Throng at Club—Prepare for Winter Sports.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 27.—With golf, dinners, dancing, and music, a delightful Thanksgiving Day programme was furnished at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club, and it was crowded with members and guests, most of whom came out from New York in automobiles. The parties began to arrive early, and fifty went over the golf course this morning. There was nearly a hundred guests at dinner. Informal dancing was enjoyed this afternoon, and to-night there was a musicale.

The club is preparing for Winter sports, and the work of erecting the toboggan slide, which proved popular last Winter, has been begun.

Among those at the club to-day were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fearing, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harper Poor, Miss Poor, Mr. and Mrs. Deddrigo, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Hatch Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Landstreet, Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Townsend, Mrs. Mortimer Flagg, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Tower, Frank Trumbull, Mrs. C. C. Cuyler, Mr. and Mrs. David A. Murray, Mr. Charles P. Chappell, Anthony R. Kruser, Mr. and Mrs. George Arents, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Twombly, and Thomas F. Ryan.

Flushing Society Folk in Comedy.

Flushing society folk appeared in a comedy at the League Building last night for charity. They produced the Irish-English comedy, "All of a Sudden Peggy." The comedy was staged originally at the Duke of York's Theatre, London. The comedy was given to raise funds for a nursery on the East Side, Manhattan. In the cast were: Miss Ruth E. Roberts, Chase Andrews and Leslie Andrews, of Flushing; Mrs. W. H. Phillips, Mrs. Charlotte Phayre and Franklin Phayre, of Leechhurst; Miss Lee Rochester, Miss Mary Louise Rochester, A. Montague Mostyn, J. W. Stanley and William Perris, of Whitestone.

Grace George in a New Comedy.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 27.—Grace George appeared here this afternoon and to-night in her new play, "Miss Jenny O'Jones," presented by William A. Brady at the Court Square Theatre. The piece, a comedy running into three acts by Avery Hopwood, treating with the course of true love when crossed by "soul mates." In the cast were William Morris, Julian L'Estrange, Edgar Norton, Jane Evans, Carolyn Kenyon, Belle Daube, and Warren Munsell.

DAWLISH STARTLED AMERICAN ARTIST

One-Piece Bathing Suit Worn by Women at Devonshire Resort a Revelation.

JOHN CHASE TELLS ABOUT IT

Had to Prove His Identity Here with a French Police Card to Get His Pictures Through.

John Chase, the painter, who arrived on the Rotterdam on Monday for a few months' visit, has abandoned Paris as a place of residence for Marlotte, a little village in the Department of Seine-et-Oise. Mr. Chase says that not so many American artists live in France as formerly, and he attributes its partly to the fact that the higher cost of living has become a great bugaboo there as well as here and partly to the fact that an artist no longer has to be a foreigner to sell his paintings in the United States.

Mr. Chase during the Summer made a voyage of discovery into rural England, and penetrated to a spot hitherto untrammeled by foreign and American ideas. There they had the "mixed bathing" which is so frowned upon at some of the better-known seaside resorts, and the costumes would thrill one upon whom those at Ostend had begun to pall.

"Twenty-five years ago a lot of artists used to live at Marlotte, which is in the Forest of Fontainebleau," said Mr. Chase yesterday at the Wolcott. "There were De Penne, the animal painter, and Delert, and Ditti, who still makes his home there, and a lot of others. Henri Murger, who wrote about 'Bohemia,' used to be a resident of the place. It is a tiny village—not even a commune. That reminds me, by the way, that when I got back here I had to be identified by my French police certificate.

"You see, everybody who lives in France has to register himself with the police and he gets a card identifying him. When I landed from the Rotterdam I had several new paintings in one of my trunks, and the Inspectors didn't like their looks. I hadn't signed them. They wondered if I should not show and bring the unsigned pictures, and finally demanded some proof that I was an American painter. There was nothing I had with me that would indicate this except my French police card, and when I showed this, they allowed me to leave the pier.

"A good many artists now live in Marlotte all the year round, but besides myself, there is only one American there, and he is not an artist. The cousins of Count Robert de Montesquieu are lords of the manor.

"I went to Devonshire to paint during the month of August, but the trouble was that when I found anything worth painting I could not find any place to sleep even in a farmhouse. The whole countryside was jammed with Summer boarders. Finally I had to make my headquarters at a little seaside place called Dawlish, which is the most typical English place I have ever seen. But it had one peculiarity, and that was the bathing costumes that were worn. I would never have suspected that in conventional, staid, primitive England the women would be seen in the conspicuous garb of a bathing costume, and very little of that. It had anything I ever saw at Ostend beaten to a standstill. I felt the whole time like a man who had blundered into a family bathing party.

"I should say that the number of American artists living in France is on the decrease. Men come home more. One doesn't have to be a foreigner now to sell his pictures over here. Then the cost of living has been going up over there at a faster rate than here, until now there is not a great difference in the cost of living there and here."

DANCE BY FIRELIGHT.

Thanksgiving Ball at Grove Park Inn Attended by 400.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 27.—The Thanksgiving dance of Grove Park Inn this evening ushered in the Winter season in Asheville. It was held in the great rock-walled assembly room and attended by 400 society people. At each end of the room wood fires blazed in big fireplaces, and several numbers were danced by the firelight alone. The dance has long been anticipated, and most of the ball costumes were designed for it, and many of them were silver gray in effect, metaling the coloring of the walls and furnishings.

The dance was preceded by dinners in the dining room. Among those entertaining at dinner were Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Seeley, Gen. and Mrs. Theodore F. Davidson, Mrs. Conally Sloxe, Miss Maud Waddell, Mrs. Charles Malcolm Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Wells, Mrs. N. M. Watson, and Mr. Roy Watson of Princeton University; Mayor Blankenburg of Philadelphia, Mrs. W. A. Barber and William A. Barber, Jr., of New York City, and Mrs. Charlton Millard, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hamilton, Judge J. G. Adams, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred S. Barnard entertained with dinner at their home this evening for Mr. and Mrs. Vance Brown. Dr. and Mrs. Charles Jordan, and Miss Morrison.

Mrs. Warren B. Dennis will give a dinner on Dec. 2 and take her guests to the Junior Cotillion.

SAYRES AT WHITE HOUSE.

Join President Wilson's Family Circle at Thanksgiving Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—President Wilson's family circle was complete at the White House Thanksgiving dinner to-night. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre, who were married at the Executive Mansion last Tuesday, and whose whereabouts had been a secret since then, slipped quietly into Washington late to-day and got back to the White House without being observed.

Although the President's daughter could have used a White House automobile, she and her husband preferred a taxicab. They had come by train from Baltimore, where it is believed they had been since last Tuesday.

The couple will accompany the President to New York to-morrow on his trip to see the Army-Navy football game, but they will sail for Europe Saturday, several hours before the game begins. They expect to return to Williamstown, Mass., their future home, late in January.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre, the White House bridal couple, spent a part of Thanksgiving Day in Baltimore. They were the guests at luncheon of Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett, at Evergreen, the Garrett country seat on Charles Avenue. They came and left in an automobile, but the Garretts were very secretive concerning the visit. Robert Garrett, son of Mrs. Harrison Garrett, and his wife were also at the luncheon, and left Evergreen in the machine with the Sayres.

The unexpected appearance in Baltimore of Mr. and Mrs. Sayre seemed to give credence to the rumor circulated the last twenty-four hours that they were spending the honeymoon at one of the country estates near this city. The Garretts are old friends of the Wilsons, so are the McAdoos in the Green Spring Valley.

From what could be learned to-night Mr. and Mrs. Sayres have been spending the honeymoon at Evergreen, the home of Mrs. Harrison Garrett.

MISS LAURA SWAN TO WED.

Daughter of Mrs. Elisha Dyer Engaged to Andrew Robeson.

The engagement of Miss Laura P. Swan, daughter of Mrs. Elisha Dyer of Newport, New York, and Baltimore by her first husband, Donnell Swan, to Andrew Robeson, a son of Mrs. Andrew Robeson of Boston, was announced in Newport, R. I., last night at an informal dinner at Wayside, the villa of Mr. and Mrs. Dyer. Mr. Robeson is in the real estate business in New York.

The wedding, which will be a private family ceremony, will take place on Monday afternoon, Dec. 1, at Wayside. Neither Miss Swan nor Mr. Robeson will have attendants. Mrs. Robeson, Miss Harriet Lee Robeson, Rodman Robeson, and Mr. and Mrs. Dyer will be the only persons present.

Mr. and Mrs. Robeson will spend the Winter in Europe.

Miss Swan, who came out several years ago, has been an attendant at many fashionable weddings and has been prominent in New York and Newport society. She has also spent considerable time in travel abroad with her mother.

Miss Everett, Bride of C. E. Rousek

Miss Bertha Marie Everett, daughter of ex-Police Commissioner and Mrs. John B. Everett of Orange, N. J., and Charles E. Rousek of East Orange, were married in St. John's Church, Orange, yesterday with a nuptial mass celebrated by the assistant rector, the Rev. Nicholas A. Mannell. It was one of the largest weddings of the season in the Oranges. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Carolyn Everett, as maid of honor. Joseph O. Hoffman of Indianapolis, Ind., a classmate of the bridegroom at St. Mary's College, Cranford, was best man. The ushers were Ernest Rousek, brother of the bride; Frank Maher of Newark, Frank Radel of South Orange, and Charles and Harry Conlon of Newark. The young couple later left on a Southern honeymoon.

Miss Lilly Ober Weds Max Gellner.

After a romance that began in Germany last Summer Miss Lilly Ober, youngest daughter of Mrs. Bertha Ober of 120 East Eighty-fifth Street, this city, yesterday became the bride of Max Gellner of Berlin. The ceremony was held at noon at the Hotel Ansonia, the Rev. Dr. Hirsch officiating. The bride's uncle, Moses Bijur, gave her in marriage. She was attended by her sisters, the Misses Selma and Pauline Ober, her eldest sister, Mrs. Renate Lauffer, acting as matron of honor and her only brother, Sigmund Ober, as usher. Following the wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Gellner left on a brief honeymoon trip. They will sail on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria Dec. 11 for Berlin, where they will take up their permanent residence.

State Senator Pollock Weds.

State Senator Henry W. Pollock of this city was married last night to Miss Alma W. Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Black of 249 Culver Road, Rochester, at the Hotel Seneca of that city.

The bride's father gave her away. She was attended by Mrs. Adolph Bloch of Buffalo, matron of honor. Frederick W. Pollock, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served, attended by forty guests, relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom. After a Southern trip of a few weeks, Senator and Mrs. Pollock will take up their residence at 541 West 113th Street.

MAMMELL—HAZELTON.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 27.—Miss Lillian Lancaster Hazelton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazelton, and Benjamin Edgar Mammell, both of Brooklyn, were married at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. C. E. S. Bellows, in Woodland Avenue, this city. The Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, this city, officiated. Miss Florence Webster Hazelton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Betty Thompson of New York, niece of the bride, was flower girl. The best man was Robert C. Tait of New York. A reception followed the ceremony.

PEPIS—OLSAN.

The marriage of Abraham Pepis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Pepis of this city, and Miss Kate Olsan, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Olsan of 53 Hamilton Terrace, took place there at noon yesterday, the Rev. Edward Lissman officiating. None but the immediate families were present. Joseph Olsan of Atlanta, Ga., was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Pepis will spend their honeymoon in Atlanta.

LEWINE—COHN.

The wedding of Miss Cara Cohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cohn, to Hiram S. Lewine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fisher Lewine of this city, took place yesterday at noon at the Hotel Gotham. Mr. and Mrs. Lewine are sailing for Panama, and upon their return will live at 380 Riverside Drive.

PFORZHEIMER—BOCK.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Sutro announce the marriage of their ward, Miss Jeanne H. Bock, to Walter Pforzheimer, which took place at their home, 600 West End Avenue, yesterday at 4 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott officiated.

Luncheon for Countess de Rodellec.

Mrs. Charles J. Welch of 22 East Eightieth Street gave a luncheon yesterday for the Countess de Rodellec. Among those invited were Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. Frederick Neilson, Mrs. William Iselin, Mrs. Phillip Rhinelander, Mrs. David Lydig, Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mrs. Walter L. Suydam, Mrs. Joseph T. Thompson, Mrs. Lewis C. Hasell, Mrs. Lewis B. Gawtry, Mrs. Horwick, and Miss Julia C. Wells.

PHILIPP'S NEW FARCE IS FUNNY

"Two Lots in the Bronx" Acted in German and English at 57th Street Theatre.

ITS MUSIC IS PRETTY

Authors Plays the Leading Role in Comedy with Novel Plot Which Is Full of Local Color.

TWO LOTS IN THE BRONX, a musical farce comedy in three acts, by Adolf Philipp. At the Adolf Philipp Theatre.

Fred Dietz ..... Ernst Naumann
Augusta Dietz ..... Marie Serini
Frida Dietz ..... Leischen Schumann
Minna Dietz ..... Flora Arndt
August Lanz ..... Hans Dobers-Kissling
Charley Kern ..... Karl Steindler
Mary Dietz ..... Emil Berla
Douglas ..... Otto Meyer
Ernst Mueller ..... Jacob Brust
Anna Mueller ..... Lizzi Eckert
Elsbeth ..... Grete von Mayhof
Alex ..... Else Doret
Jimmy Wilson ..... Adolf Philipp

"Two Lots in the Bronx," a new musical farce by Adolf Philipp, was presented by that author at his own German theatre in Fifty-seventh Street last night with Mr. Philipp himself in the leading rôle. It replaced "The Midnight Girl," which ended a run of 100 performances Wednesday night.

The play is a novelty in that it is played in both German and English, the actors speaking partly in one language and partly in the other and occasionally mixing up the two. Persons in the audience who understood only one of the languages were able to follow the piece at all times, and the farcical situations were funny enough to please every one. In explanation of his broken German speech one of the characters in the play remarked: "Ine hab doch my German in the public school aufgepickt."

The music of the farce, while very reminiscent of Mr. Philipp's "Adele," is pretty and was thoroughly enjoyed by an audience which packed the theatre from top to bottom.

The two lots in the Bronx are not parcels of real estate, but two children who are being sought by a man and his wife who have been left a fortune on condition that they find the two lots. Naturally, the couple think they must find some ground up in the Bronx. After the children have been found and provided for, the money left the couple turns out to be counterfeit, and they are forced to burn what was left them. After the money is thrown into the fire, they discover that they have destroyed the only genuine money in the house.

Mr. Philipp played the rôle of a counterfeiter, pal of the man who left the money. He was on the stage most of the time and was responsible for a large part of the fun. Ernst Naumann as Fred Dietz, the man who was left the fortune, and Marie Serini as his wife, did splendid work. Miss Serini was continually telling the other characters to "talk German," and then going ahead and speaking German herself.

Emil Berla played a female rôle, that of Mary Leitz, and was very funny throughout the play. Miss Grete von Mayhof had only a small part, but to her fell the best songs of the evening.

"Two lots in the Bronx" is full of local color, with many references to Sheriff Harburger and other well-known German-American Association in 1809. He was knighted in 1906. Sir Aemilius Irving was a Director of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation and President of the York Old Boys' Association.

WILL REMODEL THE CENTURY

1,400 Cheap Seats to be Added After Close of Season.

The Messrs. Aborn announced yesterday that the Board of Directors of the Century Opera Company had decided to remodel the Century Opera House after the close of the season on May 23 and to increase its seating capacity from 2,100 to 3,500. The work will be done under the supervision of Carrere & Hastings, the architects who originally planned the structure for the New Theatre Company. They say that between 1,500 and 2,000 square feet of extra space can be converted to seating capacity without sacrificing the architectural beauty or convenience of the house.

It has been the experience of the season of the Century Opera Company that there were not nearly enough cheap seats to accommodate the public. The reconstruction of the auditorium will affect almost entirely the balconies, and will afford accommodation for nearly twice the present number of patrons of the lower priced seats next season.

PLAY FOR ALIMONY CLUB.

"The Misleading Lady" to be Acted in Ludlow St. Jail Sunday.

The Alimony Club in Ludlow Street Jail is to see a special performance of "The Misleading Lady" next Sunday afternoon, when the play will be put on there as an entertainment to the inmates of the jail under the direction of Sheriff Harburger. The Sheriff has arranged with William Harris, Jr., for the production.

Sheriff Harburger, who is soon to retire from office, attended the first performance of the play at the Fulton Theatre, and believing that many of the men locked up in Ludlow Street for failing to pay alimony had been victims of misleading women, he thought that it would make a fitting entertainment for them.

Ex-members of the Alimony Club have been invited to attend the performance.

Green Room Club's Revue Dec. 28.

The date of the eleventh annual revue of the Green Room Club at the Cohan Theatre was changed yesterday from Dec. 7 to Dec. 28, to give the members of the club more time to perfect their sketch, "The Movies," which is to be the feature of the programme. Among the members who will appear in the sketch are John Bunny, George M. Cohan, Raymond Hitchcock, Charles de Haven, Herbert Corthell, De Wolf Hopper, James Lackaye, Maurice Costello, "Little Billy" Dallas Welford, William Wadsworth, Bigelow Cooper, Donald MacKnight and Albert Riccardi.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The thirty-five players and the couches of the Navy football team, together with a party of navy and public officials, will attend the performance at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre to-night.

Edgar Smith, who wrote many of the old Weber & Field burlesques, has sold Charles Frohman a satire on moving pictures plays. It is "The Lone Trapper" and has been inserted into the third act of the Richard Carle-Hattie Williams musical comedy, "The Doll Girl." The cast consists of Carle as the trapper, Miss Williams as the trapperess, and Will West as the trapped.

The funeral service of E. M. Holland, the actor, who died last Monday in Cleveland, will take place this morning at 11 o'clock in the Little Church Around the Corner.

Taylor Holmes will make his first appearance in the cast of "Oh, I Say" at the Casino Theatre to-night. He will be seen in the rôle of Marcel Durand, which has been played by Charles Meaking.

Mme. Mimi Aguglia, the Italian actress, who has not been seen here since she appeared under the direction of Charles Frohman five years ago, sailed for New York yesterday from Buenos Aires and will arrive here Dec. 20. She is bringing an Italian company of eighteen players.

HENRY F. HAGGERTY DEAD.

Brooklyn Politician Was Once Law Partner of Late Senator McCarren.

Henry F. Haggerty, at one time the law partner of the late Senator Patrick H. McCarren, and leader of the Tenth Assembly District in Brooklyn for many years, died early yesterday morning at his home, 199 Washington Park, Brooklyn, after an illness of more than a month. At his bedside when the end came was his wife, his son, and daughter. He was 56 years old.

At the time of his death Mr. Haggerty kept a law office at 16 Court Street. His first public office came when he was elected to the Assembly from the Fourth District in the Fall of 1884. Since then he had been at different times Register of Kings County, Deputy Police Commissioner under Commissioner McAdoo, and five years a Brooklyn Police Magistrate, besides having served five terms as a member of the Assembly. He gave up the active leadership of the Tenth District several years ago when the Brooklyn districts were so reapportioned that that district took in the greater part of the Eleventh.

Mr. Haggerty was born in the old Eleventh Ward of Brooklyn in 1858 and was educated at St. Patrick's Academy. His parents were natives of Ulster, Ireland. Upon becoming of age he entered the manufacturing plumbing business, to which he returned after refusing a sixth nomination to the Assembly. Mr. Haggerty was a strong advocate of the Bridge Extension bill which was passed in 1885 and figured prominently as the supporter of several railroad bills for Long Island.

He was a relative of Thomas R. Farrell, the present Democratic leader of the Tenth Assembly District, and through his business relations with McCarren became one of the latter's closest friends. He was a member of the Elks, Knights of Columbus, and the Juantita Club, the Democratic organization of the Tenth District.

HENRY W. GREENWALL DEAD.

Theatrical Pioneer Dies at His Home in New Orleans, Aged 81.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27.—Henry W. Greenwall, the veteran theatrical manager, who was for many years a leader in theatricals in the Southwest, died here to-day at the age of 81 years.

Mr. Greenwall was the founder of the Greenwall circuit of theaters in the South and Southwest, embracing most of the theatres in this section of the country. He was the owner of the Greenwall Theatre in this city, and was for many years the lessee of the old Grand Opera House here, where he ran a stock company. He made a fortune in the theatrical business and his estate is believed to run into several millions of dollars.

Mr. Greenwall was a member of Lodge No. 1 of Elks, in New York, and was the representative in New Orleans of the Actors' Fund. He was active in theatrical work almost up to the time of his death.

SIR AEMILIUS IRVING DIES.

Nestor of Bar of Ontario, Canada, Succumbs in His 91st Year.

Sir Aemilius Irving, known as the Nestor of the Bar of Ontario, died in his ninety-first year yesterday at his home, Toronto, Canada. He was born at Leamington, England, and came to this country in 1834 with his father, the Hon. Jacob Aemilius Irving. He became a barrister in 1849, and was connected for many years with the Law Society. He was Crown Prosecutor on many occasions, and served on a number of royal commissions.

He was counsel for Ontario in the boundary disputes between the Governments of Quebec and Ontario and the Dominion Government, and represented the Ontario Bar at the meeting of the American Law Association in 1890. He was knighted in 1906. Sir Aemilius Irving was a Director of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation and President of the York Old Boys' Association.

Tax Exempt Bonds
We will be glad to advise investors whether or not they are exempt from the payment on the holdings of the personal normal income tax under the present interpretation of the Federal law.
Redmond & Co.
33 Pine St., New York.

Primary Considerations
The normal income tax of 1% amounts to only 10 cents on the annual interest of a 5% bond of $1,000 denomination.
The tax exempt feature alone should not, therefore, influence the selection of investments.
The primary considerations are still safety, marketability and fair income return.
Our current Investment List 210 includes bonds combining these features.

URUGUAY PAYS $4,000,000.

Republic Has Reduced Its Floating Debt Two-thirds in 1913.

The floating debt of the Republic of Uruguay has been reduced in the present year from $6,000,000 to $2,000,000, according to official information received by Consul General Jose Bustamante, and there has been deposited with European bankers funds necessary to meet interest charges on its foreign obligations in full. The National Bank of the Republic has at its disposal, out of its capital, nearly $3,000,000 in gold, and the liabilities consisting notes of the bank are under $7,000,000.

The estimate of income and budget expenditures of the Republic for 1914 has been made on the basis of $20,000,000, and the estimate of expenditures for the same year is $19,000,000, leaving a surplus of $1,000,000. The floating debt of the Republic is expected to be reduced to $1,000,000 by the end of 1914.

Good Tone in London Market—Berlin Prices Are Strong—Steadiness in Paris.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 28.—The Times in its city article this morning says:

"The demand for money was brisk, £2,000,000 of New South Wales Treasury bills being paid for, but only a moderate amount was approved from the Bank of England.

"Rates for early advances, short fixtures, and yearly Council money were shattered. The bank received £125,000 in bar gold. The banks have been allowed an increase of £2,000,000 in their fiduciary note issue, and the private banks have been allowed £1,000,000 each. The Bank of England's proportion of reserve to liabilities is 47 per cent., against 48 per cent. last week."

TEXTILE TRADE HEALTHY.

Effect Yet Felt from Removal of Wool Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—American woolen and cotton goods manufacturers seem to be in a very satisfactory condition, judging from the reports of business most of the so-called normal ones. Dupliches are coming and will shortly put more mills in subscription that thus will be unable to accept further orders except for late deliveries. Rumors of advances in prices are being sent to customers from day to day, and among those of the west and following Providence, Mass., and Woonsocket, R. I.

Business is declined to be pretty by the times worded dullness, many mills operating on a basis that schedule, while others complain of insufficient orders to run at the low end of the piece goods trade the first opening has not been showing cheaper overcoatings, practically last year's prices. In higher class fancies, however, there is found respecting foreign imitations, but the general run is not affected by them. The trade is characterized by delays in the part of the buyers in placing their orders.

With sales for the week reaching the very respectable total of 2,750,000 pounds, the textile combine is to-day's exhibit of steadiness. The English auction sales, opening on Tuesday of the present week, clearly showed that the American manufacturers have the upper hand, a pound on their tantage in the material home as compared with their European competitors. The activity of German and French buyers in England counteracts any depressing British influence, and to bring foreign wools to the level of the home markets would call for a recession of from 2½ to 5 per cent. from prices realized at the last English sales.

The reason why the wool industries are standing up so much better than steel and other lines is because it is expected from the fact that textile corporations do not come into such immediate contact with Government restrictions as do the iron and steel mills, which are the principal sellers to public service corporations. The difficulty of securing public service corporations in financing themselves at the present time is the cloud upon the horizon. The tariff changes which would apply most severely to the textile industry seem to have scarcely any influence.

Trade in the worsted and woolen yarn market there is still quite a brisk demand for 2-10s and 2-50s half blood, though there is some report that spinners are getting a little above the quoted prices of 75¾ cents for the former and 87½ cents for the latter for French spun in these yarns. It appears at this writing that weavers will largely use 2-28s and 2-50s half blood in making up their heavy-weight men's wear.

The dress goods manufacturers have not yet become a factor in the yarn market, except in a few isolated instances, cotton yarn quotations remaining about the same as last week, with a fair demand for both knitting and weaving yarns, and with quotations in cotton material a trifle easier. In cotton cloths, manufacturers would have been alarmed in previous years if they did not have a larger amount of orders on their books than they have at present, but the essential of insufficient supplies in the hands of distributors brings the aggregate buying fully up to, if not above, former years. The condition of various lines of gingham is a distinctly favorable one, in blended goods, the thing that pleases sellers most is the fact that buyers are continually asking for early shipment of goods.

The agitation for increased wages has not had any great effect in the textile markets and manufacturers are rather more concerned about the excessive cost of distribution and the profits of the jobbers and retailers. This is becoming the principal topic of conversation throughout the cotton industry.

CUT RATE TELEPHONE FIGHT

Bell Service Free in Jamestown, Competitor Says.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Hearings in the Government's anti-trust suit against the American Telephone & Telegraph Company continued to-day in order that the engineers and attorneys might not lose time. Witnesses were W. S. Peck of the old City Telephone Company, John H. Wright of the Home Telephone Company of Jamestown, N. Y., E. P. Bendall, counsel for the Home Telephone Company of St. Paul, and Theodore N. Vail, President of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Messrs. Peck and Bendall testified in behalf of the independent telephone companies represented by the Northwestern Independent Telephone Association, of which Mr. Wright said the Bell system had 300 free telephones in Jamestown and that in addition, North Dakota and Wisconsin, Mr. Randall said, charges always were excessive and the service poor until competition entered the field, when charges were lowered 50 cents to $1 per month. The Bell system and the independent companies operate on every competitive basis in some cities according to Mr. Randall, and the service in such cases is excellent.

OUR HOUSING LAWS IDEAL.

If They Were Enforced, Says Dr. Nemeyi—No Slums Like Europe's.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—American laws to promote sanitary housing of tailoring people are ideal, and if fully enforced would result in conditions unequaled in any other country, in the opinion of Dr. Bartholomew Nemeyi, who is here with a commission from the Hungarian Government to investigate this subject. He came to establish relations with the Chamber of Commerce of Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York. He thinks the slums in the United States are not so bad as those of Europe.

"I saw what were supposed to be the worst in New York," he said to-day, "and consider duplicate them in almost any European city. I think the worst I have seen are in Chicago, particularly those inhabited by the stock yards workers."

Dr. Nemeyi remarked that a great obstacle to the proper enforcement of sanitary housing laws in America was "the still frequent control of government by political machines."

Eggs $1 a Dozen in Brazil.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—"We don't eat eggs in Brazil, we eat AN egg," said Capt. J. F. Ellison, head of the Amazon River Navigation Company, in an address before the Chamber of Commerce. He said eggs sold at $1 a dozen in Brazil and that all food products cost five times as much there as they do in this country.

Bank of Austria Reduces Rate.

STORE EMPLOYES HURT THEMSELVES

Efficiency Expert Says Their Lack of Attention to Detail Keeps Earnings Down.

MOST SALARIES ARE FAIR

Interesting Bulletin to be Sent Out by National Retail Dry Goods Association.

The December bulletin of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, which will be sent out shortly, will contain an interesting talk to store employes. It is the work of J. W. Amrath, an efficiency engineer, who is well known in the Far West. According to Secretary Pinkham of the association, this talk is being sent out with the hope of stimulating members to prepare their own talks, and to encourage them to establish their own store papers, if possible.

In part, Mr. Amrath says:

"It may surprise you to realize that it is not the things undone, but the things done and done poorly, which tip the balance toward inefficiency. Perhaps you do not stop to think that it is only a question of doing your work more carefully, by giving attention to little things. You ought to realize that by care and attention you can make any customer a permanent customer, double the sales, and increase your wages. Here is something to think about.

"Remember that everything you do in the store, and outside of it, for that matter, has some influence on making a customer decide either to come again or go elsewhere to trade. The size of the pay envelope depends upon this decision, and the satisfaction you give to the customer depends upon your attention to all the seemingly little things in the daily routine.

"You may feel that your home life and your free time have nothing to do with your duties at the store. You may feel that it is your own affair as to what you read or how long you dance, or whether you conduct yourselves in an orderly manner—and so it is. Yet you ought to use every minute of your time to benefit and to advance yourselves. If you are disorderly in your habits at home you will be disorderly and inattentive at the store. If you stay out late at night habitually you cannot work efficiently. If you do not read good books you cannot learn the good things that advance your thoughts, and so advance you. All this affects your pay envelope.

"When you try to think how you can lighten the work of others by working with them you will lessen your own task and find it a pleasure instead of a burden. By right thinking you can brighten your future, the future of others, and the community in which you live. Remember that mistakes and misfortunes are the result of wrong thinking. If you do things because you have to, instead of because you want to for your own sake, you will find the store routine irksome and harsh. It is because you do not understand that store routine is nothing but service to yourselves by service to the customer. It is because you fail to see that the satisfied customer pays your wages; that your service to the customer regulates your living.

Individual Affects Whole.

"Some of you seem to have failed to appreciate heretofore that the efficiency of any one of you is increased or decreased according to the degree of efficiency of the rest. Boys and girls enter business without an adequate realization that on their individual action depends in a great measure the success of their employer. Do you realize that the success of this concern is the very means of paying your compensation, and that it is graded accordingly? Do you realize that keeping your minds on your present work is the basis of your own success in the future? The lad who, for instance, delivers a package at the wrong address, or who handles the package carelessly, or who may tramp up the front steps instead of going to the rear, or who is surly in doing so, does not realize that he is destroying the good effort put into the sale of the contents and the corner stone of his own future. The fact that he causes a customer to be disappointed and that he causes additional and unnecessary expense to his employer, which expense keeps the employer from paying greater wages, does not occur to him.

"It is the same with others who may be at the wrapping desk or behind the counter. As a rule, girls who enter business view their work as temporary. They do not, therefore, put forth the earnestness required to make a success of their vocation, the very success which will fit them to be better wives and mothers. In recent years the expense account of the employer has constantly increased, without corresponding return to him or to the employe. This is largely due to the indifference of the average employe.

"The more you economize in the matter of having goods taken home by the customer, the more the store can pay you in wages. The better use you make of your time and the less you idle, the more the wages will be. When you loiter you are thieving from yourselves and one another. When you waste five minutes here and ten there, and think nothing of it, you are putting your hands into your own and one another's pay envelope, because the store expense becomes greater than it ought to be. You may think that you have cleverly cheated your employer, but you have really cheated yourselves out of pay and increased opportunity.

"The employer does not pay for your failings if he can help it. He saddles your shortcomings on yourselves in smaller wages than he would pay if you were more efficient. You will be surprised to know that measuring tests in certain stores disclosed overmeasurements in cutting that amounted to thousands of dollars, the result of a few inches too much here and there.

Time Clocks Are Necessary.

"You must realize that when numbers of people are banded together, it is necessary, for the comfort of all, to observe certain regulations. For instance, the office, which is your servant in keeping your pay roll records, must be in some way informed of your presence. This information should be given in the shortest and cheapest manner, cheapest because the size of the expense account affects your wages. If the store had to employ clerks to keep your time there would be a reduction in your wages, but each person's wages would be less. Now, the shortest and cheapest way to let the office know that you are present is the time clock. When your time record shows you frequently behind time without good reason, it also shows that your mind is not on your work, and that you are not helping yourselves as much as you ought. When you are not on time, your work is left for some one else to do until you come, which often means that the work is undone. Thus you may upset the entire day's routine. When you fail to punch your time, or punch another number than your own, some one has to straighten out your mistake. When you try to deceive the house by punching for some one else, you lower the standard of the whole force, causing it to pay indirectly for that person's time.

"During the past year the house has doubtless expended a good many dollars in improvements. Do you know why this great amount was put back into the business instead of being paid out to the stockholders in dividends? It is because the house realized that it owed a dividend to you and to the customer. It is because it has become plainly understood in recent years that the employer incurs a responsibility toward his employes, which he must discharge by helping with all his might to provide better living, working, and educational conditions, not only for his own employes, but for the whole community in which he labors.

"There is no good reason, since a clear understanding has been given to the house and to you of the common interest relations of employer and employe, why both sides should not benefit. There is no reason why the earnings of both should not be doubled. It rests with yourselves, with the vim and enthusiasm you put into your work. It is not more labor, but efficient labor, that is required. You will find your wages regulated automatically and absolutely by the efforts and the earnestness which you put into your work.

"If we will all try to conserve a part of the enormous waste caused by indifference to our daily pursuit, we will thus turn the most effective weapon we have on the high cost of living. We will have greater comforts, derived from greater earnings, and great content from tasks well done. Then let us resolve, each of us, to enlist with hearty cooperation under the flag of 'Efficiency.'"

Importers Win in Contention Over Saddles—Samples to Pay Duty.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has sustained a protest by Kronfeld, Saunders & Co. in which it was asserted that saddles imported by the firm were made of leather of the bovine species, and therefore dutiable at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 450, Tariff Act of 1909. Collector Mitchel demanded duty at 35 per cent., on the ground that the saddles were mainly manufactured from pigskin. Appraiser Higgins reported to the board that the assessment was made under a misapprehension.

M. Park Parker was sustained in a contention of cotton fabrics having bleached or unbleached foundations, with colored extra threads forming figures. The goods were returned for duty at 40 per cent. ad valorem and 2 cents a square yard additional for the extra threads under Paragraphs 307 and 313, act of 1897. The board held that the fabrics were entitled to entry under the same paragraphs at 35 per cent. ad valorem and 2 cents a square yard.

The claim of Remy, Schmidt & Pleissner has been granted for lower duty on pillow cases, sheets, and other goods composed of flax, the edges of which were decorated by machine scalloping. The goods were returned at 60 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 339, act of 1897, and it was asserted properly were dutiable at 35 per cent. under Paragraph 346.

Bennet & Smith protested against an assessment of duty on samples which it was asserted were of no commercial value. The Collector at New York held them dutiable. The board disagreed with the Importers' contention and affirmed the payment of duty.

Referees' Notices

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—The TRUSTEES OF COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY in the City of New York, plaintiff, against KATHLEEN T. HARPER and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, and bearing date the 30th day of October, 1913, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey St., in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 16th day of December, 1913, at 12 o'clock noon, on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed in said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that certain plot, piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in the City and County of New York, bounded and described as follows:

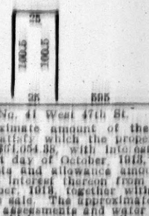
Beginning at a point in the northerly side of Forty-seventh Street, distant 500 feet Westerly from the intersection of the Northerly side of Forty-seventh Street and the Westerly side of Fifth Avenue, and running thence Northerly parallel with Fifth Avenue and part of the way through a party wall 100 feet 5 inches, thence Westerly parallel with Forty-seventh Street 25 feet, thence Southerly again parallel with Fifth Avenue and part of the way through another party wall 100 feet 5 inches to the Northerly side of Forty-seventh Street, and thence Easterly along the Northerly side of Forty-seventh Street 25 feet to the point or place of beginning, together with the buildings thereon.

Dated New York, November 20, 1913.

MAURICE MARK, Referee.

NASH & JONES, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 49 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is diagram of the property to be sold:



No. 41 West 47th St.

The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the property is to be sold, is $67,054.95, with interest thereon from the 21st day of October, 1913, together with the costs and allowance amounting to $400.95, with interest thereon from the 30th day of October, 1913, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is $3,900.23 and interest.

The property is sold subject to all the covenants, restrictions and easements contained in the deeds made by grantors of property on the Northerly side of 47th Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, in so far as the same may be now in force and effect and appertaining to this property.

FEW LANDMARKS AROUND KIP'S BAY

The Brewery Has Survived, but the Famous Old Methodist Church Has Disappeared.

DEFIED DRAFT RIOTERS

Pastor Met with Drawn Revolver Preached His Anti-Slavery Sermon Undaunted by Threats of Those Who Opposed Him.

An illustration of the difficulty of keeping pace with the rapid changes in this city was afforded at the meeting not long ago of the Kip's Bay Neighborhood Association. Charles C. Burlingham, President of the association, called attention to the fact that there was once a Kip's Bay brewery as well as a Kip's Bay Methodist Church, but the brewery has pushed the church, but although the church has been torn down and a telephone exchange built on the site, the fact that it was remembered at all was an indication of the fame it once enjoyed.

The Kip's Bay Methodist Church was torn down about two years ago. It was a diminutive old-fashioned red brick structure on the north side of East Twenty-first Street, between Second and Third Avenues. Like many of the old churches in what formerly was the section of a country seat on Manhattan Island, it was one of the first churches in what is now a residential section.

The church was organized a few years before the civil war, and it was during that conflict that it attained a fame which gave it a celebrity far beyond the confines of the district in which it stood. It was from the pulpit of this church that there arose the cry that the draft riots were being fomented by the Tammany leaders, and there it prayed to the end that the efforts of the draft riots might be defeated. The draft riots were defeated, and to-day the flag which floated over the church during the days of the civil war is in the possession of the pastor, the Rev. William H. Boole. It was the pastor of the church who defied the rioters, but he escaped with no more than a severe beating. He was dragged from the church and there it prayed to the end that the efforts of the draft riots might be

BIG SEWER PROBLEM WAITS ON SUBWAYS

Public Works Department Can Fit Its Plans to Express Station in Times Square.

WISH TO AVOID TRANSFERS

Opponents of Express Station at 48th St. Insist One There Would Cause Unnecessary Changes.

Any plan the Public Service Commission finally decides upon for the express stations in Times Square will involve reconstruction of the sewer system in that neighborhood. This is considered a fact of great consequence by those who are urging on the commission the importance to the city at large of providing a great traffic exchange at Forty-second Street and Broadway, as it affords an opportunity for settling in a comprehensive manner the entire problem of Times Square.

In the last few months on two or three occasions the present sewers proved to be inadequate to carry off a heavy rainfall, and the Subway was blocked by their overflow. The traffic of the city was dislocated, homegoers were put to serious inconvenience, and the damage to abutting property ran into very large figures.

If the city is to protect its property owners from damage and itself from paying heavy claims in the future, it must undertake the enlargement and replanning of its sewer system in this part of the city, and it happens that the sewers in question lie precisely in that territory about which the station controversy has arisen. The sewer which is supposed to take care of Times Square comes into it from the east at Forty-second Street, runs up Broadway to about Forty-fifth Street, and there turns west on its journey to the North River. It is about eight feet in diameter, except where present Interborough tracks go over it, and there it is replaced by a number of iron pipes each about thirty-six inches in diameter.

Wait for Commission's Decision.

The engineers of the Department of Public Works, in whose charge the sewers are, reckon that it will be necessary approximately to double the capacity of this sewer in order to guard against such public inconvenience as has resulted from recent heavy storms. They are waiting for the Public Service Commission to make their plans for the new subways to decide how this is to be done so that the sewer work may be taken up at the same time as the subway construction, thus reducing to the minimum the annoyance of the work to the neighborhood.

There has been some disposition on the part of those who would neglect the chance of improving this part of the city with a great union subway station, at which the expresses of both the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit would stop, and which would connect with the Steinway Tunnel line, to argue that it is almost impracticable from the engineering point of view to place above Forty-second Street the Brooklyn Rapid Transit station. There is, it is argued, such a tangle of subsurface structures to be handled under Times Square that it is impossible to secure through it the amount of space which the construction of the island platforms for the express station would add to the width of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit line.

The sewer are the most difficult of such structures to design for electric wires can go anywhere, and gas and water pipes are both operated under such pressure that its immaterial at what depth they are laid. Now it appears that, in the opinion of the new subways, a sewer problem of considerable difficulty has to be faced. This fact, however, has the great advantage of permitting the adoption of really effective measures instead of merely makeshift ones. Engineers of the Public Works office are fully aware that it will take some ingenuity to run a sewer system beneath the Brooklyn Rapid Transit line at Forty-second Street. But they are sure it can be done and are disposed to admit that it makes much difference to their job whether the Brooklyn Rapid Transit's station line above or below Forty-second Street.

Traffic Returns the Best Guide.

When the relative needs of traffic facilities at the north and south ends of Times Square are considered the best guide to the traffic returns of the present Subway. From this it appears that for the twelve months ending June 30, 1913, the number of passengers who bought their tickets at fifteenth Street on the Broadway branch was 5,770,742, whereas at Times Square the number was 13,211,057, or about two and a half times as many. It was pointed out yesterday, this means that unless the express station on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit is placed at the Forty-second Street and Broadway and instead of at Forty-eighth Street and Seventh Avenue, there will be on that line a congestion of two and a half times as many people transferring from expresses and locals than there need be. Direction of flow, when their express trains get overloaded, are fond of protesting that the relief of express riding is for the benefit of express riders enough, they contend, for the livermun in the gorun colard ritain about the ess, and the would be much wider if the street in the local train to stay is it until he reached his destination. But experience has shown that the average New Yorker will always get into an express at the first opportunity, even if in the end he has to change back again and take the local that he began in the first place. Moreover, the fact that an express stop at this or that point is merely an invitation to unnecessary transfers.

Columbus Circle an Example.

Some of the Commissioners favor the scheme that is providing the B. R. T. express stop at the north end of Times Square, the development of that section being so much nearer to that which will be in front of Forest, second street and Amsterdam. However, this point is disputed, the fact that Columbus Circle is the point of express riding is the point of express riding

Service Commission to reform real estate values, the Interborough experience does not show that it is in its power.

From the earliest days of the present Subway, Seventy-second Street has been an express stop, and yet all the traffic it could muster last year was 4,554,314 passengers. Columbus Circle has never been anything but a local station, yet last year it sold tickets to 6,615,407 passengers.

Like the lower end of Times Square, Columbus Circle is a theatrical and restaurant centre, and an important crosstown thoroughfare as well, and the people persist in going there, even though the facilities are poor.

From this it is argued that the power of the arrangement of subway stations to divert traffic has been greatly exaggerated, and the only effect of persistence on the part of the commission in their tentative plans will be the infliction on the part of Times Square's 13,000,000 which the B. R. T. line will capture of an unnecessary transfer.

FIRE IN A LOFT BUILDING.

Three Alarms Sent In for a Blaze in Third Street.

Fire destroyed the three top floors of the eight-story building at 55 and 57 West Third Street at 1 o'clock this morning. This building is known now as the Livingston Building, but was called formerly the Island Building. While it was being built in 1898 a vacein killed several men who were at work upon it.

Patrolman Bolen of the Mercer Street Station turned in an alarm when he saw smoke coming through the windows on the sixth floor this morning. The blaze spread very rapidly, and when Chief Kenlon arrived he turned in a second and third alarm. After fighting the blaze for an hour from the roofs of the buildings across the street, the firemen succeeded in getting it under control. The damage was estimated at $75,000.

The building is on the northeast corner of West Broadway and Third Street. Adjoining it is a five-story apartment house, 68 Washington Square South. The tenants in this apartment house were aroused when the firemen dragged several lines of hose up the stairs to fight the fire from the roof. Two water towers were also pressed into service before the fire was under control.

NO MINE STRIKE TRUCE.

Conference Fails to Reach Agreement, but Gov. Ammons Is Hopeful.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 27.—Whether the conference which adjourned at 1:30 this morning without reaching even a temporary truce would try to make any further effort to terminate the Colorado coal strike, was not decided definitely when Gov. Ammons reached his office to-day. The Governor was reticent, but it was believed he would either outline a plan for a further conference or offer recommendations to the committees based on the facts brought out at yesterday's hearing.

While the conference brought no tangible result, it was felt that the fact that representatives of the operators and miners discussed their differences fully and frankly was encouraging. The operators said they would grant demands of their employes for check weighmen, right to trade at any store, board at any place, call in any physician, and a rigid enforcement of the State mining laws.

The crux of the situation still is recognition of the United Mine Workers of America, which the operators said they would not grant.

Thaddeus Thomson Here.

Thaddeus Thomson, United States Minister to Colombia, arrived yesterday on the United Fruit steamship Metapan with his wife, who came here to undergo a serious operation at the Johns Hopkins Hospital. He declined to discuss affairs in Colombia and said that he had only been there three months and would hurry back as soon as his wife is through the operation. Dr. Jose Montoya of Bogota and a trained nurse accompanied Mrs. Thomson and her husband to New York.

Progressives Cling to Prouty.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 27.—The statement made yesterday of Interstate Commerce Commissioner Charles A. Prouty that if he should enter the contest for the United States Senatorship from Vermont it could be as a Republican was followed to-day by a statement from Charles H. Thompson, Progressive State Chairman, that the party was satisfied with all its conferences with the Commissioner.

IN NEW JERSEY.

NEWARK.—Through the process of reorganization of the system of medical inspection in the public schools, the Newark Board of Education has dropped thirty physicians who had been acting as Medical Inspectors. This will leave eighty of the original medical staff employed to inspect the school children. The physicians dropped are to be replaced with a smaller staff of nurses. The change goes into effect on Jan. 1.

NEWARK.—Samuel Kaskoff of 2 North Ninth Street, Newark, ended his life yesterday by shooting himself in the head. The body was found by Abraham Kaskoff, a brother. A note found on a table read: "I leave all to my wife Stella. Love to all blood-ties." None of the suicide's relatives could explain any cause for the act.

NEWARK.—Deputy Game Warden Hermann Menzer of Hackensack, who is also the local truant officer, yesterday narrowly escaped meeting the fate of Game Warden Reinhold of Hackensack, who was shot to death by a poacher while he was acting as hunter in the woods at Tappan a few years ago. Menzer found a trespasser who was hunting in the woods near Oldtownck, two miles from Nyack, and ordered him and two companions off the property. The hunter shook his three fists with him, and Menzer, considering discretion the better part of valor, decided that the man meant his threats. The hunter said he used to be deputy, but evidently had been relieved of the duty and fired, though only twenty feet away. The rifles passed through Menzer's thumb. Menzer then sneezed, shot at the fleeing hunter, but in case not show whether he hit him or not.

GOT ANT EATER ALIVE AFTER FIGHT IN TREE

J. J. Schmidt Hunted It Down in a South American Forest for the New York Zoo.

SNAKES AND MONKEYS, TOO

Custom Inspectors Not Anxious to Examine His Baggage, but His Wife Fondles the Boas.

J. J. Schmidt, the wild animal collector, who says he prefers a tame boa constrictor to a watchdog in his home, returned from the forests of Colombia on the United Fruit steamship Metapan yesterday, bringing with him an ant eater for the Zoological Park in the Bronx. He said there was not a live specimen of the South American ant eater in any zoological garden in the United States. New York once had one, Mr. Schmidt explained, but it pined away and died because it did not get the kind of red ants to eat that it had been accustomed to in its native lair.

Mr. Schmidt's ant eater is somewhat like a sheepdog, reddish brown in color, the hair shading to gray toward its bushy tail, and a long narrow head. It got lose one night when the ship was between Colon and Kingston, and started to eat up the coat of a New York newspaper man who was traveling for his health.

He alarmed the first officer, who ran to me and reported that my ant eater had its mouth so wide open that any one could see its spinal column, and was eating up the crew," said Mr. Schmidt. "I knew my pet could only open its mouth at the most about three-quarters of an inch, so I did not feel alarmed about its running amuck around the deck.

"The ant eaters in the Colombian forests," Mr. Schmidt went on to say, "are very difficult to catch, as they climb the tall cottonwood trees and hide out of sight. I went into the interior from Barranquilla with a bag of provisions, a rifle, and an Indian guide, and managed to catch this fellow after a lively chase. I spotted him in an open glade, making toward a grove of mango trees, near the Magdalena River, one night just as the moon was setting. Directly the ant eater scented me it put for the nearest tree like a streak. Throwing my sack and rifle to the guide I went after it.

"Near the top of the tree I made a grab for the ant eater, and it scratched my arm and hand, and crushed my fingers between its hard jaws, but I held on and got it to the ground, and then carried it back to camp in my arms."

In addition to the ant eater, Mr. Schmidt brought back 200 monkeys and parrots, 25 monkeys of various kinds, including the spider monkey, which is all black fur and bones, with gleaming yellow eyes, and two boa constrictors, one 10 and the other 15 feet long.

Mrs. Schmidt, who met her husband at the pier, took the serpents out of their box and twisted them around her neck as if they had been feather boas. The Customs officials declined the invitation to examine the boa constrictors, and said that they preferred to take the animal man's declaration as read.

SAVED A CRIPPLE, MAY DIE.

Dr. Bryne Caught Him from Under Car—Now In Hospital.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 27.—Dr. Patrick J. Byrne, Coroner of Cuyahoga County, may die as a result of saving a crippled man from being killed by a street car to-day. The doctor is in a hospital in a serious condition. He will be operated on.

The Coroner had been to the morgue to view the body of an unidentified man, who had been killed, and was on his way home for Thanksgiving dinner. In Woodland Avenue he saw the cripple crossing the street. When on the car track the cripple's crutches slipped and the man fell in front of an approaching car.

Dr. Byrne rushed forward, seized the man and carried him in his arms to the sidewalk. In doing so he overtaxed his strength.

MAIDA DUPRE'S SECRET.

Actress Ended Life Because She Was Ill and Out of Funds.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—A note written by Elizabeth Portz of New York, an actress known as Maida Dupre, who committed suicide by swallowing poison in a hotel here last Monday night, was made public here to-day. The note, which was addressed to the girl's sister, was as follows:

"Dear Rita—I have been very ill, have been in hard luck and have only my last month. If you do not hear from me again before Nov. 1 go to the home of Mrs. Fox, at 406 West fifty-seventh Street, and get my trunk. It will cost you but a few dollars. Don't tell mother. Kiss babies for me. Don't tell at 406 West Fifty-seventh Street until the 15th of next October. Lovingly, Dupre."

The body of the actress was taken to Brooklyn this afternoon.

10 ACRES OF BURIED FIRE.

Curious Underground Blaze Worries Savannah Fire Department.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 27.—The Fire Department has been called upon to fight a curious underground fire that has been burning over an extent of ten acres of land south of the city for several weeks. The fire is slowly consuming some substance a few feet under the surface.

The firemen fear to open up the earth and thus admit the smothering blaze is changed to get a firm foothold, and as the underground combustion is accompanied by little smoke from the outside it is impossible to tell exactly where the flames are. The cause is an old city garbage dump.

DANCES TANGO AT 87.

On 60th Wedding Day Winker Challenges Wife to Modern Dance.

With the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding falling upon Thanksgiving Day, Simon Winker and his wife celebrated by gathering the whole family at Fleischman's Casino in Westchester Avenue, the Bronx, last evening, and the amount of turkey consumed was amazing, for the sons and daughters of the Winkers number seven, and the grandchildren and great-grandchildren number sixty-nine.

When Mr. Winker, for all his 87 years, and the littlest greatgrandchild, for all his 2 years, had feasted to their hearts' content, the orchestra began to tune up, the chairs were pushed back and the room was cleared for dancing. The fiddler opened the programme by breaking into a lively, contagious bit written as an invitation to the new dances.

Then came the great moment of the evening, for, chuckling mischievously, Mr. Winker went to his wife's chair, and dared her to take a turn with him about the floor. She protested scornfully at first, but, not to be outdone, she stood and waited with him to catch the measure of the music.

When great-grandfather and great-grandmother made the circle of the room dancing what was unmistakably the tango, the cheers of the second and third and fourth generations were so tumultuous that others in the Casino crowded to the doors to see what the fun was all about.

They came in time to see Leon Winker, the oldest son, give to the flushed dancers a huge punch bowl made out of cut glass and set with diamonds, the gift of the whole seventy-six, for even the two-year-old contributed something to the sum that purchased it.

The Winkers were married in Germany. For many years Mr. Winker was a cigar manufacturer in this city. They live now at 642 East 161st Street. Mrs. Winker is nine years younger than her husband.

AT BAR FOR KNABE MURDER.

Dr. W. B. Craig to be Tried as Slayer of Indianapolis Woman.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Nov. 27.—Dr. William B. Craig, Dean of the Indiana Veterinary College at Indianapolis, will be placed on trial before Judge Alonzo Blair here to-morrow, charged with the murder of Dr. Helene Knabe at Indianapolis on Oct. 23, 1911. Dr. Craig was indicted at Indianapolis on Dec. 31, 1912, on testimony submitted by a detective employed by women of the State. The case was brought here on a change of venue.

The murder of Dr. Knabe was one of the most puzzling in the criminal history of the State. She was found dead in her bed with a gash in her throat, and the police, after a long investigation, declared it was a case of suicide.

COL. GAILLARD DYING.

Doctors Say There Is No Chance of the Panama Engineer's Recovery.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—Physicians of the Phippa Clinic at Johns Hopkins Hospital say there is no hope of the recovery of Lieut.-Col. David Du Bose Gaillard, the army engineer who dug Culebra Cut in the Panama Canal. He has been sinking steadily for the last few days.

Col. Gaillard's condition, it is said, now is such that death might be a matter of either a few hours or a few days, as is the usual result in brain diseases.

His son, Lieut. David P. Gaillard, U. S. A., said to-day that his father's trouble came on him suddenly in July.

Youth Shot Dead for a Deer.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—While hunting near this city to-day Byron Hutchinson, 18 years old, was accidentally shot and killed by Alvin Gisriel, 19 years old. On Thanksgiving Day three years ago the body of an elder brother of Hutchinson, who was killed by a train, was brought to the Hutchinson home.

The Home of Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes.

Tempus Fugit

BEST translated—"Time flies"—as indeed it does for busy men.

And because time is truly money for such people, time saved is money saved. Which seems like an unbearable load of axioms for one advertisement, but here is our reason:

Having clothes made to measure takes time—lots of it. Buying clothes ready to wear takes most no time at all, which is a big argument in favor of "ready" clothes.

But most of us are vain—and some, especially those who have never worn a Wallach-Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suit or Overcoat, are afraid they won't like garments ready to wear. To them we say, "Come and try on one of our suits or overcoats, see how well it fits, how well you look in it—and if you buy and for any reason are not satisfied—come back and we will refund you your money." Could anything be fairer? Could we do more?

You cannot lose by trying us and think what you can gain in time and money saved; for a Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suit or Overcoat at $25 is the equal of a custom-made garment at $40 to $50.

By the way, should you wish to open a charge account—give us the usual references and we will gladly arrange one for you.
